Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 21st February 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 18TH OF FEBRUARY 1893.

In the middle and close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed through the province and had given general rain, while following in the rear of the depression a wave of cold air had swept over the province, and hence the cold weather conditions had again became rather strongly developed, and the mean temperature on the 11th was in defect of the normal by from 5° to 7°. On the 12th a moderate to rather rapid decrease of pressure took place, while temperature was increasing rapidly, the increase varying from about 2° to 4°. Winds also became a little unsteady and were more or less southerly in many cases, so that there was a rather rapid increase in humidity, but weather still remained fine in Bengal with lightly clouded skies. On the other hand, on this day a barometric depression had appeared over North-Western and Western India, and this was travelling rather rapidly in an easterly direction, and on the 13th a shallow low pressure area existed over the Central Provinces and the west of Bengal, while a secondary depression had appeared in the Punjab. The depression which was affecting Bengal gave a moderate to rather rapid fall of pressure over the province, while the usual rapid increase of temperature took place, the increase equalling about 3° to 4°. Moist south-easterly winds set in over practically the whole province, the sky had clouded over, and a few rain showers were reported in the west and south of the province. On the 14th the depression had reached Orissa and the north-west of the Bay, where there was a distinct tendency to cyclonic circulation of winds, pressure had become below the normal by amounts ranging up to 0·08″ at Gopalpur, while temperature began to fall at many stations owing to the fairly general rain which was reported in all districts except Orissa. On the 15th the depression had apparently filled up or passed away in an easterly direction, pressure was rising moderately rapidly, and temperature was falling, while fairly dry westerly and north-westerly winds were generally setting in. Weather therefore commenced to clear, and on this day the showers were comparatively few in number. On the 16th weather had become fine over practically the whole of Bengal, pressure was increasing moderately to rapidly, while the temperature changes were irregular and winds were a little less steady than on the 15th. Over the central parts of India, however, another shallow depression had formed on the 16th, and was passing in an easterly or south-easterly direction and it affected Bengal from the 17th, when an extremely rapid fall of pressure took place, the fall at some of the western stations exceeding a fifth of an inch, and pressure again became moderately in defect of the normal, while the mean temperature also remained from one to two degrees lower than usual. Winds had, however, again become south-easterly in connection with the depression at almost all stations, and fairly general rain was reported on this date from Bihar and parts of North Bengal. On the 18th, or the last day of the week, the fall of pressure continued over the eastern half of Bengal and over Orissa, while an increase had set in over the western districts, and hence the depression had again moved in an easterly and south-easterly direction, temperature had generally slowly risen and was in excess of the normal in the southern and south-western districts, while westerly winds were blowing over the western half of the province and south-easterly winds over the eastern half. The area of rainfall had also advanced in an easterly direction, and fairly general rain was received in South-West Bengal and parts of North and East Bengal and Chota Nagpur. Hence conditions at the close of the week were decidedly unsettled, and good general rain has again been received in nearly all divisions of the province.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure during the week have again been very large, but of more or less opposite character, so that the variation of the mean is small. The mean pressure for the week has been in excess of the normal in all except some of the western and south-western districts. Slightly defective pressures are thus shown in Orissa and in parts of Chota Nagpur, but elsewhere slight excess pressures are recorded, but the general excess is not larger than about 0·02″, the largest excess being shown at the north-eastern stations.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the whole province for the week has been in defect of the normal by 1·8°, but the defect has been mainly confined to South-West Bengal, South Bihar and Chota Nagpur, where it has averaged nearly three degrees. This defect has, however, been almost entirely in the day or maximum temperature, which at many stations have been from 5° to 7° below the normal, while the night or minimum temperatures have been nearly normal.

The distribution of temperature for the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum, and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the week:—

Rainfall.—Rather heavy falls have again occurred in all divisions: the falls have averaged an inch and-a-half in South-West Bengal, one inch in Chota Nagpur, and about three-quarters of an inch over the remainder of the province, and these falls have hence been in all cases rather largely in excess of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 18th of February 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograp and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All th thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at th Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four fe above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerl at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed i the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

MIDDLE CHANNEL.—Middle channel buoy, marking the fairway of the eastern entrance to middle channel, is a conical buoy, painted red and black in horizontal stripes, surmounted by a black ball, and moored in 13 fathoms water. Approximate position, lat. 20° 17′ 35″ N., long. 110° 58′ 20″ E.

INNER PASSAGE OR SOUTH CHANNEL.—Magpie rock buoy, conical, black, surmounted by a black triangle, is moored in 8 fathoms water, about 2 cables eastward of the rock, and about 1$\frac{8}{10}$ miles south-east of Hainan point. Approximate position, lat. 20° 8′ 25″ N., long. 110° 42′ 40″ E. This buoy must be left on the port hand entering the passage from the south-east

Hainan head bank buoy, conical, red, surmounted by a black inverted frustum cage, is moored in 4¼ fathoms water, with Hainan point bearing S. 67° W., distant about 9 cables. This buoy should be left on the starboard hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

Hainan reef buoy, conical, black, surmounted by a black ball, is moored in 12 fathoms water, about 2¼ cables northward of the Outer rock at Hainan point reef, marked in plan of Inner passage "drives 4 feet." This buoy must be left on the port hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

NOTE.—Vessels using the Inner passage should pass about 3 cables eastward of Magpie rock buoy, and then steer to pass Hainan head bank buoy at about the same distance, taking care to guard against being set towards the shore, remembering that it is safe to borrow owards the banks on the starboard hand, of which the lead will give warning, while on the ther side the bottom is rocky and uneven, and the lead gives no warning. Hainan reef uoy may be rounded at the distance of about one cable.

IRRIGATION.

The 14th February 1893.

No. 35.—Notification.—The following rules, having reference to all the lines of navigation included in the following canal systems, viz., the Orissa Canals, the Midnapore Canal with branch to Narainghar, the Hijili Tidal Canal, the Orissa Coast Canal, and the Sone Canals, are proposed to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of section XI of the "Canals Act, 1864," No. V (B.C.), in supersession of those now in force.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward. A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals.—All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations. Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

26. The term "navigation officers" as used in the foregoing rules shall include the persons alluded to in section VIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all Public Works Officers or Subordinates in charge of the canal not below the grade of sub-overseer.

27. IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No. 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C.) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893:—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B.L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

A.—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bonâ fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duly certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges. No other vessels whatever shall be exempted.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gurreah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal boats.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or luggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or luggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders; but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section 11, Act V of 1861 (B C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 10th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 18th January 1882, page 69.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

This Examination will be held at the close of the year of probation, and will be called the "Final Examination."

10. The selected Candidates will also be tested during their probation as to their proficiency in riding.

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorized by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements:—

(b) These forms should be accompanied by evidence on the points mentioned in Regulation 2, and by a list of the subjects in which the Candidate desires to be examined. Evidence of health and character must bear date not earlier than 1st May 1893.

The choice thus given, however, will be subject to any other arrangement which the Secretary of State or the Government of India may deem necessary.

(ii) Should any appointments have to be made in excess of the 56 notified in the Regulations, they will be added to such group or groups as to the Secretary of State may seem proper.

(iii) No exchange of appointments will be permitted between selected Candidates who under paragraph 1 have made their choice of Presidency or Province, except between those who are members of the same group or of two adjoining groups, or who are separated by not more than 28 *others in the order of merit on the result of the Open Competition. (viii) The allowance of £100 will not be paid to any Selected Candidate until he has been certified by the Civil Service Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India; and every Certificated Candidate must, before receiving his allowance, attend at the India Office and give a written undertaking to refund the amount in the event of his failing to proceed to India.

(ix) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to agree to such Regulations for the provision of pensions for their families as may be approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(x) Candidates rejected at the Final Examination of 1894 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, the 12*th January* 1893.

Syllabus, showing the extent of the Examination in certain subjects at the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service in 1893.

THE Regulations governing the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service have been framed with a view to the principle regarded by Lord Macaulay's Committee, in 1854, as essential, viz., that the object of the competition should be to secure for the Indian Civil Service officers who "have received the best, the most liberal, the most finished education that their native country affords." The scheme of examination has accordingly been made to embrace most of the subjects of the Honour Schools in the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland. In administering the scheme, the Civil Service Commissioners, concurring with Lord Macaulay's Committee in the opinion "that no Candidate who may fail should, to whatever calling he may betake himself, have any reason to regret the time and labour which he has spent in preparing himself to be examined," desire to avoid all disturbance of the general course of University studies, and to render it possible, with due regard for the principle of Open Competition, for those who have graduated with honours at the Universities to attend the Examination for the Indian Civil Service with good prospects of success. The appended Syllabus shows in outline the intentions of the Commissioners with regard to the extent and character of the examination in those subjects which seem to require further definition. The scope of the examination in the subjects not mentioned in the Syllabus is sufficiently defined in the scheme published in the Regulations themselves. The Examiners will be instructed to keep the Standard in each subject up to the level of the highest course of study pursued in the Universities.

English Composition.—An Essay to be written on one of several subjects specified by the Civil Service Commissioners on their Examination Paper.

English Language and Literature.—The Examination will be in two parts. In the one the Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the course of English Literature, as represented (mainly) by the following writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III and the accession of Queen Victoria:

Verse—Chaucer, Langland, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Collins, Johnson, Goldsmith, Crabbe, Cowper, Campbell, Wordsworth, Scott, Byron, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats.

Prose—Bacon, Sir Thomas Browne, Milton, Cowley, Bunyan, Dryden, Swift, Defoe, Addison, Johnson, Burke, Scott, Macaulay (Essays and Biographies).

A minute knowledge of the works of these authors will not be looked for in this part of the Examination, which will, however, test how far the candidates have studied the chief productions of the greatest English writers in themselves, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English literature. Candidates will also be expected to show that they have studied in these authors the history of the English language in respect of its vocabulary, syntax, and prosody.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the periods named below, which will follow each other, year by year, in the order indicated :—

1.	A.D. 1600 to A.D. 1700
(1893)	[Shakespeare to Dryden]
2.	A.D. 1700 to A.D. 1800
(1894)	[Pope to Cowper]
3.	A.D. 1800 to A.D. 1832
(1895)	[Nineteenth Century writers to the death of Scott]
4	A.D 1360 to A D. 1600
(1896)	[Chaucer to Spenser]

The Examination in this part will require from Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English language and literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners.* The names placed under the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. All the works of Shakespeare, for example, will be regarded as falling within the first period; all the works of Swift within the second; all the works of Scott and Wordsworth within the third.

French Language and Literature.—Translation from French into English and from English into French; Critical questions on the French Language and Literature.

German Language and Literature.—As in French.

Latin Language and Literature.—Translation from Latin into English; Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, a paper of questions on Latin Philology). Critical questions on the Latin Language and Literature.

Greek Language and Literature.—Translation from Greek into English; Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, a paper of questions on Greek Philology). Critical questions on the Greek Language and Literature.

Sanskrit Language and Literature.—Translation from Sanskrit into English and from English into Sanskrit; History of Sanskrit Literature (including knowledge of such Indian History as bears upon the subject); Sanskrit Grammar; Vedic Philology.

Arabic Language and Literature.—Translations as in Sanskrit; History of Arabic Literature; Arabic Grammar; Arabic Prosody.

English History.—General questions on English History from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848; Questions on the Constitutional History of England from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848.

Questions covering the whole period named will be set, but Candidates will be allowed to attempt only a limited number of them.

General Modern History.—Candidates may, at their choice, be examined in any one of the following periods :—

1. From the accession of Charlemagne to the Third Crusade.
   [A.D. 800 to A D. 1193.]
2. From the Third Crusade to the Diet of Worms.
   [A.D. 1193 to A.D. 1521.]

	Thursday, 9th ditto ditto ditto.
Ganja, Siddhi, Charas, Majum ...	Friday, 10th ditto ditto ditto.
	Saturday, 11th ditto ditto ditto.
Opium, Madak, Chandu ...	Monday, 13th ditto ditto ditto.
Tari	Tuesday, 14th ditto ditto ditto.
	Wednesday, 15th ditto ditto ditto.

2. The term of the licenses will be for three years, viz., till the 31st March 1896, in regard to the sale of every other article, except Madak, Chandu, and Tari, the right of the retail sale of which will be sold for one year only, viz., till the 31st March 1894.

3. A complete list of all the shops for which licenses will be offered and a copy of each form of license are open to general inspection at the office of the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, 24, Dalhousie Square, and the number of these shops is not, under any circumstances, to be increased during the term of three years ending the 31st March 1896, except under the sanction of the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal, in each case. The Superintendent of Excise Revenue, however, reserves to himself the right, in case of combination, or for other cause, to transfer, subject to there being no objection on police grounds, either before or after its settlement, any shop from the site specified in the list, to some other site, provided that the new site, if it is more than 100 yards from the advertised one, does not bring the shop within a quarter of a mile of any other similar shop, the term of whose license is unexpired.

4. It is not at present intended to open any other shop during the term of the license; but the Superintendent of Excise Revenue does not absolutely bind himself in this respect. On special cause shown, and with the sanction of the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal, in each case, the number of shops may be increased: provided, however, that, whenever a new shop is opened, it will be optional to the holder of a similar license for the sale of Liquor or Drugs, if his shop is within a quarter of a mile of the new shop, to surrender his license without forfeiting his advance, when the Superintendent of Excise Revenue is to resettle the shop by auction or otherwise.

5. The right of retail sale of the Liquors and Drugs, except for the retail sale of Imported Liquors not to be drunk on the premises, is to be put up to auction at upset prices sanctioned by the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal.

6. The right of retail sale of the Liquors and Drugs, except for the retail sale of Imported Liquors not to be drunk on the premises, is to be put up to auction in separate lots of one or more shops either in the order specified in the list, or in such other order as the officer conducting the sale may deem fit. When one lot has been sold, the next lot is not to be put up until the sum payable in advance on account of the lot already sold has been actually paid: provided, however, that where the sum payable exceeds Rs. 25, a promissory note may be taken from any respectable and well-known purchaser in lieu of cash payment.

7. The purchasers of the right of retail sale of Country Spirit and Rum are entitled to sell Imported Liquors by the glass only, the liquor to be drunk on the premises, and shall also have the option of taking subsidiary licenses for the sale of Imported Liquors by bottles, not to be drunk on the premises, on payment of the fee fixed by the Board of Revenue for such licenses.

8. The purchasers of the right of retail sale of Madak and Chandu shall not have the privilege of allowing consumption of the drugs on the premises of these shops.

9. The auction is to be held subject to the following conditions :—

(a)—That the Superintendent of Excise Revenue does not bind himself to accept the highest or any bid.

(b)—That the settlement with each accepted purchaser will, in Calcutta and the Suburbs, be contingent on the production by him of the usual Police certificate or license, as the case may be, viz.—

For Excise licenses for— Doasta ... ... Rum ... ... Imported Liquors by glass... ... Tari ... ... Ganja ... ... Siddhi ... ... Charas ... ... Majum	If to be held in Calcutta, a police certificate in the form prescribed by section 36, Act IV (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced; and if to be held in the Suburbs, a Police certificate in the form prescribed by section 19, Act II (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced.
For Excise licenses for— Opium ... ... Madak ... ... Chandu	If to be held in Calcutta, a Police license in the form prescribed by section 39, Act IV (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced; and if to be held in the Suburbs, a Police license in the form prescribed by section 23 of Act II (B.C.) of 1866 must be produced.

(c)—That the person accepted as the purchaser is to state in writing, within seven days from the date of settlement, in what building he purposes to open his shop, and is at the same time to submit a plan showing clearly and distinctly what building or portion thereof he desires to be covered by the license, it being understood that the removal of shops to other premises than those named in the list attached to this notification will be contingent on the approval of both the Excise and Police authorities, and that any sum which has been paid as an advance of the license fee under the provisions of clause (d) of these conditions will be returned to any person to whom a license may be subsequently refused for Police reasons.

(d)—That the term of the license is to be for three years ending the 31st March 1896, and that, except in the case of Tari, the license fee for that period is to be paid in advance in the following instalments:—namely, the sum equivalent to the fee for two months at the time of sale, and one month's fee on the date on which the currency of the license commences, and one month's fee on the 1st day of every succeeding month, until the whole of the fee due on the license shall have been paid. In the case of Tari only one month's fee is to be paid in advance at the time of sale, and fifteen days' fee on the date on which the currency of the license commences, and the rest of the fee in half-monthly instalments, viz., on the 1st and 16th day of every month, until the whole of the fee due on the license shall have been paid. This condition is to be strictly enforced in future, and failure to comply with it is to be met by immediate cancelment of the license.

(e)—That the purchaser is not to be entitled to receive back any portion of his advance in the event of his shop being closed before the expiration of the term of the license on violation of any of the conditions of the license, or his being convicted of a non-bailable criminal offence, or of any offence against the Excise laws or rules; and in the case of the surrender of a license under Act VII (B.C.) of 1878, the licensee is to give fifteen days' previous notice in writing to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, and pay a sum equal to the license fee for fifteen days, over and above the amounts already paid in advance; and in the case of the surrender of a license under Act I of 1878, the licensee is to give one month's previous notice in writing to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, and pay such fine not exceeding six months' license fees as the Superintendent of Excise Revenue may adjudge, over and above the amounts already paid in advance.

(f)—That the currency of the license is to commence on the 1st April 1893, on which date the purchaser is to open his shop in all respects prepared for the accommodation of customers, to be certified by an Excise Officer—failure to comply with this condition is to be met by the immediate cancelment of the license, the forfeiture of the deposit and the levy of the fees for the month, except in the case of delay caused by the non-issue of the Police certificate or Police license, for which a reasonable extension of time may be allowed upon application and cause shown to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue.

(g)—That where the amount of the sum payable in advance is required to be paid at once in cash, and the bidder fails to make such payment, the officer conducting the sale is either immediately to put up the lot again for sale, or after the other lots in the list have been disposed of, or he may postpone the sale to such future date as he shall then and there notify; and the defaulting purchaser is to be debarred from bidding for such lot or for any other lot, and he is not to be allowed to remain in the auction-room; and that the defaulting purchaser will be liable for any loss that may accrue to Government in case it becomes necessary to resell a lot at a lower rate either in consequence of his failure to deposit the sum payable at the time of sale, or to redeem his promissory note on or before 4 P.M. on the day following that on which the note was signed.

(h)—That the purchasers are to adhere to all the provisions of the Opium, Excise, and Police laws, and of the rules which have been or may from time to time be prescribed by the Board of Revenue.

10. All sales subsequent to the date of the triennial sale in March are to be held subject to the conditions contained in this notification, so far as they may be applicable.

11. Any further information regarding the auction may be had on application at the office of the Superintendent of Excise Revenue.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

REVISED ADVERTISEMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India
BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.
Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The first five volumes and Vol. VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, Rs. 2-6 per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets; &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Vol. II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Vol. III contains the letters D, E, F and half of G. Vol IV latter half of G to middle of L; and Vol. V contains the latter half of L to end of "O." The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year; but an eighth volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a Glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals and minerals of India, and as such will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The period of registration of subscribers' names having expired on the 1st October, the price will in future be in India Rs. 45 and in England 3 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made). An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England, at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

THE HON'BLE MR. COTTON said:—"At the last meeting of the Council I presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade, and explained at some length, for the information of this Council and of the public, the principles which had guided the majority of the Select Committee in the preparation of the Bill which had been laid on the table. I have now the honour to move that, the report of the Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill."

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE said:—"Sir, the motion which I have the honour to move embodies the general principle enunciated in the dissent to the report of the Select Committee signed by the minority of that Committee. In presenting the report of the Committee to the Council at its last meeting, the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill, although there was before the Council no motion for the consideration of that report, took occasion to explain the principles upon which the majority of the Committee had proceeded, and upon which the view taken by the majority of the Committee would be maintained. I listened with considerable attention and great interest to the speech of the hon'ble member. I was naturally anxious to hear what might be said in support of the view of the majority, and as the hon'ble member's speech proceeded, I felt myself growing more and more interested, because, though it may be that I was in error in so thinking, I arrived at the conclusion that most of the observations which fell from the hon'ble member, tended rather to weaken than to support his contention.

"The principle, Sir, which is involved in the Resolution which I now move is, that the taxation of commercial interests for matters affecting the public good and the public convenience is opposed to all sound principles of political economy, and of those rules which govern the incidence of taxation in civilised countries. 'The general community are undoubtedly protected by the existence of a fire-brigade.' Those are words which I take from the HON'BLE MR. COTTON'S speech; and the hon'ble gentleman in defending the principle of imposing a tax on the general community, which should be of light incidence, went on to say that, 'in recognition of the immunity which the fire-brigade affords to the general public, we have considered it fair that a low rate should be levied.' There can be no question, it seems to me, Sir, but that the community generally, and as such, is protected by the existence of a fire-brigade, and that it does afford such immunity to the community as the hon'ble member maintained. The hon'ble member's words are but an echo of a statement made on this subject by the then Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in a letter dated the 15th of February, 1878, in which His Honour stated:—'The maintenance of the fire-brigade is an object in which all classes of the community are interested, and to which all ought to contribute.' This position is so clear that, it seems unnecessary to adduce arguments in support of it. It is a fact admitted by the hon'ble member in the speech to which I have referred. It is admitted in the Bill even as now framed that, there is immunity provided to the general public as such by the existence of the fire-brigade. It is sought, however, to distinguish and to show that that general rule is not to be applied to Calcutta. In other words, that to Calcutta the principle of taxation of commercial interests for the public benefit, for the public safety and for the public convenience is to be applied.

"I know of but two instances in which this principle has been accepted. One of them was in Egypt, but, under the administration of the noble Lord who is now at the head of affairs in Egypt, it no longer exists; the other is still in force in Calcutta. Some years ago, I read that when in Egypt it was desired for some reason to throw a bridge over a canal, the persons who were made to pay for that work were the boat-owners who passed under it. They did not particularly want the bridge, but the bridge compelled the boats to lower their masts and take down their sails; and it was accordingly considered but fair and natural they should be made to pay the tax. Calcutta still retains, in the present system of taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, this truly Egyptian policy. It taxes the commercial interest for the benefit of the public, and it is sought to maintain this untenable position upon the ground that, the commercial interest to a greater or a less extent shares in the benefit.

"The principle, Sir, for which I am contending has been recognised by the Legislature with growing distinctness both in England and in this country. In England, under the Act of 14 Geo. 3 C., 78, S. 75, it was provided that, fire-engines shall be kept up by the several parishes in and around the metropolis, and so until 1865 the law continued, when there was established the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act, 28 and 29 Vic., C. 90. Between the Act of Geo. 3 and the Act of Her present Majesty, to which I have referred, it was found that the parishes were remiss in the discharge of the public duty which had been laid on them. Accordingly in or about the year 1833, the Fire Insurance Offices in London banded themselves together for the purpose of making proper and better provision for the extinction of fires than was then in existence. The Association was a purely voluntary one, and was, in the first instance, established for the purpose of extinguishing and preventing the spread of fires in or to buildings which were covered by insurances. The establishment was maintained at a large cost by the Insurance Companies, and shortly before the passing of the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act in 1865, an arrangement was made with the Metropolitan Board of Works, by which the establishment which had been provided and maintained by the Fire-brigade Association was handed over to the Metropolitan Board of Works, and the value of the material so handed over was then estimated at about £30,000.

"On the passing of the Act, the funds necessary to be raised for the purposes of the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act were obtained by a contribution, I think, of £35 per million from Insurance Companies, by the grant of £10,000 a year from the Government, in consideration of the services rendered or likely to be rendered by the fire-brigade for preventing fires in and the spread of fires to public offices, and by a general tax of a half-penny in the pound. Here there is a clear recognition of the general liability of the public to maintain a fire-brigade. Intermediately there had been passed an Act known as the Police Clauses Act of 1847, and many other public general Acts which authorised the maintenance out of rates to be levied thereunder, of the cost of firemen, fire-engines and other requisites for the extinction of fires and for preventing the spread of fires. And I may say that at the present moment, with, I believe, the exception of the boroughs of Salford and Liverpool, where under two local Acts the costs attending the extinction of fires are chargeable in the case of insured property upon the Insurance Companies, all the large cities in Great Britain and Ireland maintain their fire-brigades out of public rates. It is so in two cities in which there is a great deal of work carried on involving the use of inflammable materials. I allude particularly to the case of Belfast, in which there is a large ship-building industry, and to the case of Dundee, where there is a very large jute industry. So far as I have been able to ascertain, there is no city on the continent of Europe in which the inhabitants do not pay for the cost and maintenance of the fire-brigade. In many of these cities there are not the same strict rules, so far as I have been able to ascertain, as prevail in London and the large cities of Great Britain and Ireland in respect of the building of houses—rules which minimise to the utmost extent the risk of fires in those cities, yet in almost every instance in which I have been able to inquire into, the fire-brigade is maintained out of general rates.

"This principle has also received recognition in this country. In 1872, when a fire-brigade was first established, it was provided by the Act II of 1872 of this Council, section 29, that, the full amount of the charges of the fire-brigade, over and above the monies which might accrue to the Fire-brigade Fund under sections 25 and 26 of the Act, which are the fees and fines in respect of licenses and the contribution by insurance companies, should be contributed by the Justices of Calcutta and the Commissioners of the Suburbs in the proportion of $\frac{7}{10}$ths and $\frac{3}{10}$ths. By Act III of 1884 of this Council, section 69, the Commissioners at a meeting were empowered, so far as the municipal fund permits, to apply that Fund to any works within the municipality of public utility calculated to promote the health, comfort or convenience of the inhabitants, and amongst other objects stated in that Act, and which fall within this description, I find the maintenance of a fire-brigade along with the establishment and maintenance of schools and the maintenance of hospitals. Probably the clearest and widest enunciation of this principle is to be found in the Act which at the present moment regulates the Municipality of Calcutta. By section 35 of that Act, all the properties vested in the Commissioners, and all funds received or raised by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of that Act, shall be applicable to the purposes expressly authorized by that Act. What are the purposes expressly authorised by this Act? Section 36, the following section, answers the question. It runs as follows:—'The purposes expressly authorised by this Act shall be held to include the objects connected with the public safety, health and convenience hereinafter specified, that is to say, No. 1—the payment of all or any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade for the extinction of fires in Calcutta.' Then follow a number of objects, and the section concludes with the words 'and generally all objects connected with the public safety, health or convenience.' That the Legislature in this country has therefore in unmistakeable terms given in its adhesion to the principle of the maintenance of the fire-brigade as a matter of public utility, as a matter which affects the public safety, health and convenience of the inhabitants, is beyond all doubt.

"Why, then, has Calcutta been singled out for exceptional treatment? In 1871, several fires occurred in jute stores situated in the central part of this city. The Chamber of Commerce, the Trades Association, the British Indian Association and several other public bodies presented petitions to the Government to take this matter into its consideration and to adopt measures calculated to promote the public safety, and to protect the public from the occurrence of fires. On the presentation of memorials to this effect to the Government, a Bill was introduced into this Council, which was afterwards passed into law as Act II of 1875, and I shall have presently to point out the entirely different state and condition of jute warehouses and places for storing jute as they were then known to exist, and as they exist now. Suffice it to say for the present that, they were then in a totally different state and condition from those in which they are now found. They were, as I shall show from the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Bernard in introducing that Bill, in an absolutely different state from what they are now as shown in the very able report of my hon'ble friend, Mr. Lambert, in his capacity as Commissioner of Police.

"Even then when jute warehouses were in such a state as they were when this Act was passed, it was not then the intention of the Legislature to impose the whole liability for the maintenance of the fire-brigade on the jute industry. That is manifest from the fact that, that Act provides for the meeting of the deficit, if any, from the funds of the municipalities of Calcutta and the Suburbs. It imposed a scale of fees on jute warehouses, which ranged, I think, from Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000 a year, and fees on insurance companies. For whatever reason it was, whether for want of adequate information as to the number of places for the storing of jute or from other causes I know not, but it is manifest that the scale of fees imposed on jute warehouses was excessive—grossly excessive; and from the income derived therefrom, for practically it is with that alone we need concern ourselves, the whole cost of the fire-brigade was maintained. That, with but minor alterations not bearing on the present question, is the state of the law as it exists at present. The rates were so excessive that between the month of August, 1875 and the month of April, 1881, there was paid away out of the Fire-brigade Fund a sum of Rs. 1,26,552. Who received the benefit of that sum? The Municipality of Calcutta—Calcutta in that wider sense in which it is now dealt with under Act II of 1888 of this Council. It received in August, 1875, a sum of Rs. 35,000 towards the widening of a lane near the Municipal Office, and a subsequent grant of Rs. 5,000 for the same purpose in January, 1876. In November, 1875, Rs. 16,275 was given to the Alipore Lock-hospital; in January, 1876, a grant of Rs. 10,000 was made to the Suburban Municipality, and in 1881, Rs. 60,000 was given for widening Chitpore Road. That the Act of 1879 when passed into law tended but ineffectually to reduce the incidence of this taxation on commercial interests, is manifest from the fact that, in 1881 there was surplus money to the extent of Rs. 60,000 to be paid away.

"The law stood so until 1883, when it was found that, owing to the limitation of $\frac{7}{10}$ths as against $\frac{3}{10}$ths, and to the further limitation as to the amount to which the $\frac{3}{10}$ths should run up to, the jute industry had, in a great measure removed from Calcutta to the outlying Suburbs. In 1883, there was passed Act IV of that year, which is the existing law. It did away with the proportion of $\frac{7}{10}$ths and $\frac{3}{10}$ths. The insurance companies had been relieved by the intermediate Act, but it still made the Fire-brigade Fund pay $1\frac{1}{4}$ times the cost of the fire-brigade. Eighty per cent. of the collections under the head of fees were paid to the Commissioner of Police for the up-keep of the fire-brigade; twenty per cent. went to the Municipality of Calcutta for the collection of those fees. There can be but little doubt that, during all these years, the Municipality has made a very good business of it in respect of that 20 per cent. in addition to the sums of money which I have shown it has received.

"Speaking of this state of affairs, the late hon'ble member of this Council, Sir Henry Harrison, in introducing the present Bill into Council, observed that, 'the jute legislation had reached that position rather by the process of drift than by any intention on the part of the Legislature.' I would recall the Council from this policy of drift, and ask that the matter be put on the fair, proper and reasonable footing by the incidence of taxation being thrown on the community at large. Why, I ask again, is it that Calcutta has been singled out? This retrospect in the history of the legislation in respect of the jute industry shows that the municipality had, like spoilt children, been educated into the belief that, they had a right to be exempted from the obligations which naturally and justly fall upon them. They ask, why should the previous state of things be altered? Why, to use the concurrent language of the Indian Association and the Municipality, who seem to be entirely in accord in the present matter—why should there be at one bound this relief to the jute industry? Is it the contention of hon'ble members who support the Bill that, continuance in wrong-doing is ground for its maintenance in perpetuity? Surely not; what are other reasons, then, can be suggested? That which I have just mentioned seems to me to be the one which ranks first in the minds of all those who have expressed an opinion on this subject in accord with the majority of the Select Committee. As this Bill has been introduced into Council for the purpose of relieving the jute and other cognate industries from the unjust and oppressive incidence of taxation, I ask why should not the matter be fully considered, and if justice demands it, let justice be done?

"But it is said, Sir, that there are other reasons. It is suggested that there is a radical difference between Calcutta and cities elsewhere throughout the civilised world. I deny this radical difference. It is said that, it has been found impossible in those other cities to make a fair apportionment between the amount of rate to be levied from ordinary ratepayers and from those engaged in commercial enterprises; in other words that, Calcutta is different from every other city in respect of the fire brigade, and it has successfuly attempted and overcome difficulties which have been found insurmountable in other countries. If others failed, I think we shall fail too. But I deny that it has been found impossible in other countries to make a fair apportionment between the amount of rate to be levied from ordinary rates and those engaged in commercial enterprises, because there has never been made any such attempt. The principle involved in this endeavour does not commend itself to those who understand the principles of political economy. As soon as one makes this attempt, he finds himself beset by the most enormous difficulties. The hon'ble member, with a courage worthy of a better cause, has not shrunk from the abyssmal depths of differential taxation, and has succeeded in producing a Bill which commends itself to nobody. The Calcutta Municipality does not like it; the Chamber of Commerce object to it, the Trades Association, have intimated their dissent from some details of the Bill; the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce is not satisfied with it, and the last contribution from the Indian Association, also falls foul of it and challenges it on the ground that, it contravenes the principles of Local Self-Government. I do not see that it interferes with the principles of Local Self-Government in the least. The first principle of Local Self-Government is, that all classes should bear the burden necessarily incident upon them, and that individual selfishness should give place to public interests.

"What is the difference between the houses in other cities and the houses in Calcutta? It is said that in the residential quarters of Calcutta, houses are built of uninflammable materials. But what about the residences of the citizens of Calcutta, whose lives and property are just as dear to them as the people who live in the residential quarters? Go up to the top of the tower in the Telegraph Office, or any other place of height in Calcutta, and look down upon what is spread before you. What will you see? With the very small exception of the quarter which is known as Chowringhee and some quarters in the north of the town, you will find a large mass of residences of the poor which are distinctly of an inflammable character, and those you will find fringed round by streets and lanes of pucka-built houses. In every one of these houses fire may break out, and in this city fires do frequently break out in such dwellings.

"In Bombay, the cost of the fire-brigade is borne by a three-fourth per cent. rate; in Rangoon, it is paid for out of the general rates; in Madras, so far as there are any appliances for extinguishing fires, they are paid for by the Municipality. Calcutta seems to stand alone. The houses in the residential quarters of Calcutta are no less substantially built than those in England. The sole difference, so far as I am aware, between the building of pucka houses in Calcutta and the building of every house in every street in London, is, that there are almost universally wooden floors in London houses, whereas they are to be found in but few houses here. On the other hand, in the Metropolitan district, there is a far more extensive, and a far more careful application of the rules relating to buildings by which the risk of fire is minimised to the utmost.

"Further, it is said that the cost of the fire-brigade should continue to be borne, though not in whole, yet at least to the extent of a moiety by the jute industry and other cognate industries, because, first, of the state of things which existed in 1871, and which led to the establishment of the fire-brigade. In the proceedings of this Council of December, 1871, the Hon'ble Mr. Bernard, in moving for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law for the registration of jute warehouses and to provide for the establishment of an efficient fire-brigade in Calcutta and the Suburbs, spoke as follows:—'In January last, there were 247 jute warehouses in Calcutta alone, besides those in the Suburbs.' I believe, if my information be correct, that the number of jute warehouses in Calcutta now is less than half of that number. The hon'ble member went on to say:—

'As hon'ble members of Council well know, the custom at many warehouses and pressing places was to leave the jute drums and loose jute out in open yards, and to spread jute clippings over the courtyard when a press might be at work. These jute yards were generally in the heart of the most populous parts of the city; some of them were in the midst of the mercantile quarter on the river-bank. It would be in the recollection of most of us that a few weeks back a fire broke out in a jute screw-house in the quay, and that fire, if there had been any wind, must have reached an adjoining jute store, it might have destroyed the quarter of Calcutta which contained all the chief warehouses of foreign goods, and it would probably have spread to the shipping.'

The hon'ble member further said:—

'A few days ago two Calcutta firms which had their offices and godowns on the quay, complained to the Magistrate against a jute warehouse next door to them. In the enclosure of their store, there were some 200 square yards of ground covered with jute clippings; the stack of clippings was 12 feet high and topped the wall of the yard. On one side of this yard, was a steam-engine and its fire; on the other, was a large forge constantly at work. If a spark had fallen from either of these fires on the jute clippings, and there had been any wind, a most disastrous fire must have been the result.'

'It was, Sir, to meet cases of this kind, and with reference to circumstances of this nature, that that Bill was brought in. But that is not now the condition of the jute warehouses and jute presses—far from it. Secondly, because it is stated that by far the largest number of fires of an important character occur in jute warehouses. The meaning of the phrase is wrapped in obscurity from the use of the word 'important.' What is an 'important fire?' Is it a fire in which the largest amount of property belonging to any one person is consumed? Surely not! Regarded by the community at large, the burning of a jute warehouse in which there may be thousands of bales of jute, disastrous though it may be to the individual, is less disastrous than a fire occurring in a busti, in which all the property of the inhabitants may be utterly destroyed, and even their very lives may be at risk. Such fires spread with a rapidity wholly unknown to the conflagration in a jute warehouse. But turning from the question of injury to the individual, the risk arising from fires in bastis and tiled huts is far more dangerous, because more widely spread and less under control. That appears to me to be the real test of importance. In a letter from this Government to the Government of India, dated the 3rd of February, 1892, the HON'BLE MR. RISLEY wrote:—'The measure of liability to contribute is the risk of fire incurred, not the value of the property or the amount of possible damage.'

"But how does the matter stand as regards the question of fires? The HON'BLE MR. LEE, then untrammelled by the weight of legislative responsibility, and speaking in his character of Chairman of the Municipal Corporation of Calcutta—took up the position that 'ninety per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the four years, 1886 to 1889, belonged to the jute and cotton interest.' [The HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—'I did not use those words. Those words are not to be found in any letter or statement of mine.'] If I misrepresent the hon'ble member, I sin in excellent company. In a letter from the Government of India, dated the 18th of February, 1891, (Municipal) I find it stated, over the signature of the hon'ble member opposite (Mr. Cotton), as Secretary to the Government of Bengal, that in a letter from the Chairman of the Corporation of Calcutta it was stated that, the Commissioners of Calcutta also object to any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade being defrayed by the general rate-payers; they consider, on the contrary, that the fire-brigade should still be maintained by the jute industry, 'and they adduce the following arguments in support of their opinion that, 90 per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the four years, 1886-89, belong to the jute or cotton interest.' That objection was made on behalf of the Municipality by the HON'BLE MR. LEE. Mr. Cotton writes:—

'The letter from the Chairman to the Corporation of Calcutta was forwarded by Government to the Commissioner of Police for an expression of his opinion. Mr. Lambert's reply, dated the 26th December, 1890, takes exception to the argument put forward by the Municipal Commissioners. It is argued that, of the fires which took place during the four years (1886-89), only 15 occurred in places licensed under the Jute Warehouse Act, against 123 fires in other places, and that the value of property destroyed by other fires almost equalled that destroyed by fires in licensed warehouses, the damage caused in jute fires being estimated at Rs 8,70,810, against Rs. 7,64,265 in other fires. Mr. Lambert shows that the strength of the brigade is in a great measure fixed with reference to the prevention of the spread of a conflagration not from jute warehouses which are surrounded by high walls, which confine the flames and minimise the danger of the fire spreading, but from bastis, woodyards, straw stacks, &c., when the risk of the conflagration extending to adjacent buildings is very great. The supply of water, he admits, is a benefit to the brigade; but he observes that, as a fact, out of the 138 fires which occurred during the four years, pipe-water was used in 37 only. The Commissioner of Police also observes that a contribution from municipal funds to the fire-brigade would not do greater violence to the principles of Local Self-Government than the contribution now made by the Corporation to public hospitals or to the cost of surveying the town of Calcutta.'

"Dealing with this matter, the Fire-brigade Committee in their report to this Government stated in their tenth paragraph that, the statement of fires furnished by the Commissioner of Police for the four years, 1886-89, though it showed heavy losses in jute warehouses, showed clearly that 'the numerical majority of fires break out in other places, and that it is impossible to deny that the general public derive much protection from the fire-brigade.' The reports of the Commissioner of Police as Chief of the Fire-brigade showed that, for the four years ending in 1892, that is from 1888 to 1892, out of 139 fires, only 10, that is to say 7 per cent. of the whole, occurred in warehouses licensed under Act IV of 1883, and that the property which was destroyed in those fires only came up to 23 per cent. of the total value of the property destroyed in the 139 fires which occurred during those four years. This dispels at once the statement as to the number of fires occurring in jute and cotton warehouses, and the value of the property destroyed in them. Extending the statistics so as to cover the period of seven years from 1886 to 1892, it would appear, from a representation made by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce to the Secretary of this Government during the time that this Bill was going through the Select Committee, that there were during that period 247 fires; that of these, there were 17 fires in buildings registered or licensed under Act IV of 1883; six fires of jute in unlicensed places, and 11 fires on board vessels in the river; and that the fires in other places not falling within the above category amounted to 213, that is to say, 86 per cent. of the fires which took place in Calcutta in the seven years from 1886 to 1892, both inclusive, were in places other than in licensed jute warehouses, or in jute stored in unlicensed places or on board vessels, and it further appears that the total value of the property destroyed in all these fires amounted to Rs. 28,42,000, of which only Rs. 8,37,560, or 29 per cent. worth of property, was stored in licensed warehouses. It cannot therefore be contended that, the fires in Calcutta were solely or even to the extent of one-half contributed or occasioned by fires in jute warehouses.

"That argument therefore fails. But it is said that, the legislation which was necessary in 1872 is necessary to be maintained now in a modified form. That also I question; and I question it on the same most undoubted authority, namely that of the Commissioner of Police, who is specially charged with the working of the fire-brigade, and to whose services and that of the fire-brigade staff Calcutta owes so much. The Commissioner of Police, after dealing with the assertion of the Municipality, that 90 per cent. of the fires in Calcutta are due to the jute industry, thus deals with the HON'BLE MR. COTTON'S argument that, if it had not been for the jute industry, a fire-brigade would not be required in the efficient state that it is. The Commissioner of Police says in the letter already quoted:—'The strength of the fire-brigade is in a great measure fixed by the reference to the prevention of the spread of a conflagration, not from jute warehouses which are surrounded by high walls, which confine flames and minimise the danger of the fire spreading, but from bastis, woodyards, straw stacks, &c., where the risk of the conflagration extending to adjacent buildings is very great.'

"There is the source of danger indicated in clear and unmistakeable terms, and it is pointed out by the Commissioner of Police that, these buildings are now of a substantial character; that the measures taken to prevent the spread of fire from them are effectual, and that, when a fire breaks out in a jute warehouse, it is often beyond the power of any fire-brigade, however well manned and however effective, to put out the fire. But there is a thing it can do and which it does do. It prevents the spread of fire from the place or building in which it occurs to the adjoining buildings, by pouring water on it and in preventing the rise of sparks by making a free passage and isolating the fire, or by so keeping it under in the place in which it occurs that the danger is entirely removed or most materially reduced.

"In more than one of the objections put forward by the Municipality there is involved this patent fallacy, that the cost of the maintenance of an institution required for municipal purposes generally affecting the public health, safety and convenience is to be borne only or mainly by certain persons deriving a certain special benefit. That is not the principle of civic life. The principle of civic life is, that every citizen shall, in accordance with his means and property, bear the burden or cost of those matters and things which subserve the public benefit, health, convenience and safety, though he may derive no benefit from them at all. As well, may we have blind men protesting that they ought not to be bound to pay a lighting-rate because they cannot see and do not require light. A doctor will tell you that, there are men who are particularly susceptible to malarial influences. Shall a heavier sewage-tax be imposed upon them as being more likely to be affected from want of proper sewerage? Why impose a tax on the unmarried for education? You might ring the changes from one end to the other of the system of taxation and find yourself confronted with matters of this kind. In each case, the individual must contribute to the public good. It may be asked—And what is the benefit which jute warehouses receive if a fire is not capable of being put out? The goods therein must burn, and the private individual suffers loss, but the benefit to the public remains. The fire does not spread.

"Now a few words more as to the difference in the state between jute warehouses in 1871 and 1872, and the present time. I quote again from the HON'BLE MR. LAMBERT'S report. He says:—

'The jute industry was, it would appear, required in the first instance to contribute to the expense of maintaining an efficient fire-brigade, because jute warehouses and yards were situated in the heart of the most populous parts of the city, and because loose jute was spread out and stacked in open yards often in close proximity to steam engines.'

"The hon'ble member no doubt had the speech of the HON'BLE MR. BERNARD in his mind. He went on to say:—

'Open yards for the storage of jute were to be found in the wealthiest quarters of the town, and the danger arising from this condition of the trade laid upon that industry the burden of contributing to the support, and eventually of solely supporting the fire-brigade. But this state of affairs has entirely changed during the past 18 years. The largest jute warehouses now lie outside the mercantile quarter of the city; loose jute is no longer stored in open yards, and jute presses and warehouses are now substantial masonry buildings, well adapted to stop the spread of fire. At the present time, there is infinitely less risk of the spreading of a fire in a jute warehouse than of a fire in a basti or the centres of the mercantile community in the native quarters of the town.'

"That is the deliberate opinion of a gentleman who knows what is the state of things. Before I pass on, allow me to supplement what I have said with respect to fires. Mr. Lee, in his report No. 33J, dated 1st July, 1891, on the working of the Licensed Warehouses and Fire-brigade Act in Calcutta during the year 1890-91, states in paragraph 8:—'No case of fire in any jute godown has occurred in the year under report.' In that year' there were 104 licensed warehouses on the register, and not one single fire occurred. Mr. Lee was succeeded by Mr. Ritchie, and he, in his report for 1891-92, paragraph 7, states:—'There was no case of fire in any jute warehouse during the year' That brings the matter down to last year. It cannot then be said that, jute warehouses are in themselves such a source of danger to the community at large as to justify any special taxation upon them. The large and vast majority of fires occur elsewhere.

"And now I proceed to show, in addition to what I have pointed out to the Council, basing myself on the authority of the letter of the Commissioner of Police, that the danger of fire from jute warehouses is minimised by the use of every possible appliance to check the spread of fire. I believe it will not be denied that, there is no instance of fire spreading from jute warehouses to any other buildings. Their own brigade and the manner in which the jute warehouses are constructed, obviate the possibility of this. Not only are these buildings now constructed of a substantial character, and the storing of loose jute in open spaces entirely superseded, but most important steps have been taken towards safeguarding them from the risk of fire. Everybody knows that a prudent man insures his place of business, and in order to secure favourable rates from Fire Insurance Offices, jute warehouses have been provided with various means and appliances for preventing and extinguishing and circumscribing fires. At Messrs. Ralli Brothers' press at Golabari there is a Merryweather's portable steam-engine kept standing ready for use at all times, and there is a special staff of firemen always on duty at night to work the fire-service. The suction-pipe from that engine is let into the water-supply tank, and delivery hoses are attached to the two discharge branch pipes ready for immediate work. Besides that, there are two portable manual pumps which can be worked by about 20 men each at all times ready for immediate action. In addition to those, there are 39 hydrants distributed all over the premises and connected with the main engine. Each hydrant has a hose box adjoining it, containing the delivery hoses, nozzles, &c. There is an aggregate supply of 10,000 gallons, and the tank belonging to this Press is supplied from the river.

"To such a state of efficiency has this Press come that they are not only absolutely independent of any fire-brigade, but they were in March, 1890, and 1892 able to give the greatest assistance, at the fires which took place at the Bengal Hydraulic Press and at Baliaghatta. In the latter instance, at a time when the resources of the fire-brigade were taxed to the uttermost in consequence of there being at the same time a fire at Howrah, at the Sibpur Jute Mills. The Strand Bank Press is another well-equiped press, and so is the Canal Press, which possesses a Tungye's duplex pump with piping laid throughout the works. In these two presses, the pumps are supplied with water from the river.

"I mention these among others which could be mentioned. In the largest and which, according to the HON'BLE MR. COTTON, are the most important fires which are likely to occur, the persons concerned are practically independent of the fire-brigade. Not only is the condition of fires in 1872 not in existence now, but the jute industry has practically rendered itself almost secure from danger from fires, and is almost entirely independent of the fire-brigade itself.

"But there are other reasons why this principle, supposing it were a fair and just principle, should not be applied to Calcutta. I have dealt with one of them, namely, that the state of things is such as to show that there is no obvious reason for applying this most extraordinary principle in the most extraordinary manner to this most extraordinary town. And it is this. At the present moment, money is contributed by the jute industry towards the funds of the town, amounting to Rs. 6,327 per annum. There were transferred to the Municipality various sums standing to the credit of the Fire-brigade Fund, amounting to Rs. 1,66,752, and those monies have been spent in making substantial improvements, and it must be assumed that, those sums would not have been transferred by the Government without a necessity for such improvements. Those sums taken at a moderate rate of interest have made the municipal fund better than it would otherwise have been by Rs. 6,327 per annum. The Corporation has laid out those sums in making permanent improvements, and it is but fair and reasonable to suppose that otherwise they would have had to raise money to effect those improvements and pay interest thereon, and that, by reason of those improvements, they have received increased rates and taxes.

"There is but little more I need trouble the Council with, and I apologise for the length at which I have dwelt on the subject. The principle at stake is of the greatest importance, in that the interests of Calcutta centre in its commerce. But for its situation at the bottom of the Gangetic valley, Calcutta would have no importance whatever among the cities of India. It is to this port that the principal wealth of this country in the shape of produce comes, and by the establishment of railways and river communications, goods imported from foreign countries find their readiest market, and are most easily distributed.

"Mr. Lee, in dealing with this point as a Port Commissioner, justly observed that, this port was the most heavily taxed in the world, and that for his part, he would most gladly shift from the port to the municipality anything which could be so shifted. If we proceed further in the way of legislation by imposing taxation on commercial interests, we may arrive at a time when Calcutta will be but little better than a first class municipality. A gentleman, now deceased, who was on the Committee of the fire-brigade, objected to the system of general taxation on the ground that, the tax would fall on land which is not inflammable. I do not believe that Calcutta mud is one bit more inflammable than London clay. But what makes the mud so valuable? It is that thereon there are built houses in which the commerce of Calcutta is carried on. Remove that commerce. You may do so by improper legislation, as the Legislature of Great Britain demolished the ship-building trade, the linen trade and the woollen trade of Ireland. This Government may by legislation in like manner bring about a state of things in which there may be left Calcutta land and nought but Calcutta land, and it would not need the services of a fire-brigade.

"For these reasons, I contend first that, there are no grounds for imposing this tax on any special industries, such as jute and cotton, oil or other materials dealt with by this Bill, but also that there are good and abundant reasons why they should not be so dealt with. As far as I can find out, the rateable value of Calcutta and the Suburbs, which come within the provisions of the Bill, amounts to about 210 lakhs. The hon'ble member the other day produced a statement containing, as he himself admitted, some considerable inaccuracies. That statement was not before the Select Committee, and could not be considered there. Taking 210 lakhs as the basis of the rateable value of property, it is perfectly clear that a ¼ per cent. rate, that is one-third of what is imposed in Bombay, would meet all the expenses of the fire-brigade. As to how that may be done, if the resolution which I am putting to the Council meet with its assent, is a matter for future determination. It may be, for the reasons adduced by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON, that the incidence of this rate should fall more on occupiers than upon owners, upon the ground that the property in houses is more likely to be destroyed than the house itself. The Council should not attempt the impossible, as the HON'BLE MR. COTTON has attempted to do. The chorus of disapprobation which has arisen against the differential taxation is proof positive that, the hon'ble member has not been able to answer the demands of every one, and whether this motion receive the assent of the Council or not, of one thing I am confident, that in a time to come, the principles for which I am now contending will meet with acceptance. They are the only sound principles which can be applied; they are simple in their application; they are equitable in their distribution; they adopt the broad principle that, in a community all members must alike contribute towards the public good, though they may not enjoy equal advantages.

"For these reasons, I have the honour to move that the resolution which stands in my name be accepted."

THE HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—"The amendment which stands in the name of the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE is moved by him chiefly in the interests of commerce, and it is mainly in the true interests of commerce, which are identical with the best interests of this city, that I oppose the motion. The learned Advocate-General began by referring to the present Municipal Act II of 1888 of this Council, and read the whole of section 35 and the beginning of section 36. Section 35 states that 'all property vested in the Commissioners and all funds received or raised by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be applicable to the purposes expressly authorized by this Act', and section 36 mentions what those purposes are and enumerates them all; whereas the learned Advocate-General stopped short at the first of those purposes, viz., 'the payment of the whole or any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade for the extinction of fires in Calcutta.' (Section 36 was here read by the speaker in full).

"The learned Advocate-General did not read or refer to the section of real importance in this case, (section 37), which lays down what the duties of the Commissioners are. These duties are there categorically stated, and the maintenance of a fire-brigade is not included among them. The Commissioners have to provide for the payment of interest on the municipal debt, to complete and extend throughout Calcutta drainage-works, and open out and improve bastis (expending for these purposes annually a sum of not less than two lakhs of rupees), to maintain a water-supply, to make adequate and suitable provision for the cleaning and conservancy of Calcutta, the maintenance and cleaning of drains and drainage-works, the construction and maintenance of public latrines and urinals and a number of other sanitary objects which I need not enumerate; and finally they have to devote a sum of three lakhs a year to the improvement of the newly-added area. In referring to the maintenance of a fire-brigade as being the first of the objects mentioned under section 36, it escaped the attention of the learned Advocate-General that this proviso represents merely a 'paper transaction.' The whole of the cost of the fire-brigade is paid to the Municipal Commissioners under another Act, and it was therefore necessary that in this Municipal Act an enabling clause should be added, so that the Commissioners might transfer their receipts under the Fire-brigade Act to the furtherance of the object for which those receipts are collected. The proposal, then, that is now moved is, in effect, to add another to the list of duties drawn up by this Council and enumerated by section 37. Now it is not open to me to question the legality of this course, since it has the approval of the learned Advocate-General, nor will I contend that it is not in the present circumstances necessary. But it is, I think, most unfortunate that an amendment of section 37 of the Municipal Act should be brought forward in this way, because we are precluded from going into the details of the receipts and expenditure of the Municipal Commissioners. None of the sections of the Act, except, perhaps, those regarding the assessment of the taxes of Calcutta, received more careful consideration in this Council than those two sections—37 and 36—and that was so short a time as four years ago.

"The learned Advocate-General has observed that it is incumbent on the community to provide for the cost of education. Now that, I think, is certainly an object for which the Commissioners might as fairly be allowed to contribute something as that they should be asked to pay the greater part of the cost of the fire-brigade. But what happened when that very proposal on the subject of education was before this Council? The Director of Public Instruction brought forward a motion that, the Commissioners of Calcutta should be empowered to spend money on other than primary and technical education. He even did not ask that the Commissioners of Calcutta should be compelled to spend a certain amount of money on other than primary and technical education. His speech was an extremely powerful one; he adduced arguments that seemed very hard to meet as to the desirability of the Commissioners contributing towards the cost of higher education. But how did the Council regard the matter, and how did they decide? I will ask the attention of the Council to the following words which Sir Henry Harrison delivered at the time. He said:—'I am bound to admit that, so far as the precedents and practice of Bombay and other municipalities are concerned, they are all against me. * * * * *'

"My hon'ble friend referred to two arguments which might bear specially against his proposal. One is, that the proposal is against the weight of practice or precedent elsewhere. That argument cannot be met because he proved success fully that both practice and precedent are against us. He also referred to the argument that, heavy expenditure is required for the sanitation of Calcutta and the Suburbs, and that is the only argument I feel bound to press upon the consideration of the Council. The first point to recollect is, that Municipalities in India are essentially poor bodies; the Municipalities of Calcutta and Bombay are by far the richest in India, but yet their means cannot compare with the means at the disposal of civilized municipalities elsewhere. Calcutta has to levy its taxation almost entirely by rates on property, and the assessable value of property in Calcutta does not exceed £1,200,000 a year. It is considerably less than one-twentieth of the rateable value of London, and the population of that city is only seven times larger. It is less than one-tenth of New York with a population twice as large. It is less than one-fourth of Philadelphia with a population only slightly larger; so that the Calcutta Municipality cannot command anything like the funds of other large cities. But when we come to the question of expenditure, then we find that sanitation in Calcutta attains such importance that, so far from the expenditure being less, expenditure quite on the same scale as in English cities becomes obligatory. We are to have a large area in the most insanitary condition added immediately to the town. Nobody would say that the town itself is in anything like a satisfactory sanitary condition. The difficulty in adding the suburban area has been simply and solely this, that no one could suggest the sources from which the funds should come. The Amalgamation Committee was distinctly of opinion that about six lakhs ought to be added to the funds of the Municipality from some source. I myself formed a more sanguine estimate, and leaned to the opinion that, probably four lakhs might suffice. I took a more sanguine estimate than any other member of the Committee. Can anyone in this Council doubt that, as soon as the suburban area is added to the town, we shall have the fullest possible use for all the funds at the disposal of the Municipality?

"And here, I will interpolate that the latest estimate I have received for the drainage of the suburban area, prepared under Mr. Baldwin Latham's advice by the Engineer of the Corporation, amounts to Rs. 1,70,69,570, which may or may not be capable of reduction; and we have spent quite lately 15 lakhs for giving a water-supply to the Suburbs, and other large sums on sanitary works.

'I admit,' continued Sir Henry Harrison, 'that education is a legitimate subject of municipal expenditure, but I also maintain that it is a secondary object. It is not to be put on the same plane as the primary objects, such as the repair of roads, the removal of refuse, cleansing, sewering, supplying water, and in one general word sanitation. If education is to supplant any of these objects, would it be right? I put it to the Council whether, if Rs. 50,000 be taken from the purposes of sanitation and given to education, it would not be a mistake. That is a point on which I am so satisfied that, I must press this view on the attention of the Council.'

"On that occasion the learned Advocate-General, Sir Charles Paul, observed that he could not vote for the inclusion of assistance to higher education among the purposes on which municipal funds could be legitimately spent. He said:—

'If I could approach the subject of this discussion with the fact that the municipal funds of this town were unencumbered and in a flourishing condition, and with the assurance that the money which would be raised would be more than sufficient to supply all the wants of the town in respect of its sanitation, I would consider the present a proper time for discussing the question raised. Unless we are satisfied that the requirements of the Municipality can be met in this respect, we are not in a position to introduce another subject of expenditure. Therefore, I do not intend to consider or discuss the question whether, strictly speaking, municipal institutions are concerned in education or not, nor even the merits of the smaller proposition put forward by the Hon'ble Dr. Gooroo Das Banerjee in reference to the larger measure advocated by the Hon'ble Sir Alfred Croft. I wish to impress upon the Council that, the time has not arrived for these amendments. If I were perfectly satisfied that the funds now in hand were not all required for sanitary purposes in particular parts of the town of Calcutta, then, as I said before, the question would arise. So long as the municipal funds are urgently required for sanitary and other purposes, I would protest against enlarging the area of the subject to which they might be applied. I would not enlarge it beyond the purposes stated in section 39 of the Bill.'

"And how did the representatives of commerce vote? They and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General voted against the proposal. There were in the minority, Sir Alfred Croft, Mr. Macaulay, Mr. Reynolds and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor—four votes against nine. The commercial members, Mr. Moore and Mr. Irving, voted in the majority. Mr. Allen, the Advocate-General, Sir Henry Harrison, Dr. Gooroo Das Banerjee, Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, Babu Kali Nath Mitter and Maulvi Abdul Jubbar completing the nine.

"A matter of the supremest importance to the interests of this city is, the rigid maintenance of the principle that its sanitary funds should not be whittled away. It is said that a special rate will be added to the rates that we have already in Calcutta on general property, and therefore there will be nothing taken from the receipts that now come in I reply, Sir, that in fact it will not be so. For the last four years Sir Henry Harrison, and each year subsequently I, as Chairman of the Corporation, have asked the Commissioners, when the budget has been before them to consider whether, they ought not to raise the general tax above 9½ per cent. We knew that the water-rate, the lighting-rate and the sewage-rate were levied at their maxima. We were very reluctant to ask the Commissioners to raise the general tax because the four property taxes, coming as they do to an aggregate of 19½ per cent. on the yearly value of property, fall very hardly on the masses. It is with the greatest difficulty that many persons in Calcutta can meet the tax-payers' call; so that when the Commissioners were appealed to raise the taxes, they found that they could not, and they did not. It was thought that the objections to raising the taxes were greater than the benefits which could result. The taxes can only be raised to 22 per cent.: they are now, as I have said, at 19½ per cent. If the property taxes which are now so heavy in Calcutta be added to by a tax of even ½ per cent., it would simply mean that the collections will fall off, that the Commissioners will not be able to increase the general tax as soon as they otherwise might, or it may be that they will feel themselves compelled to even reduce the 9½ per cent. they are now levying to 9 per cent., or slightly over 9 per cent.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe has referred to the case of Bombay, and has asked why, if a ¾ per cent. rate is levied in Bombay, a general rate should not be also raised in Calcutta? Now, Sir, I will take this opportunity of dealing the death-blow, if I can, to this pestilent comparison between Bombay and Calcutta, in the matter of municipal expenditure. In Bombay, the Commissioners received last year town duties to the amount of Rs. 8,40,222, and liquor license fees and tobacco duty fees, amounting to Rs. 3,29,900, making a total of over Rs. 11,70,000 from sources not at all available to the Commissioners of Calcutta. It is impossible for any one to ask the Commissioners of Calcutta to follow the example of the Commissioners of Bombay in their expenditure on education, police, the fire-brigade, and in their liberal policy of exempting from taxation charitable institutions, and in various other similar directions, unless and until the Government puts itself in the same position towards the Corporation of Calcutta that the Government of Bombay assumes towards the Corporation of Bombay. If it should happen that the Government of Bengal will make over to the Commissioners of Calcutta the canal dues, and a considerable proportion of the license fees received from excise, then, or in like case, will it be possible for the Commissioners to incur any other expenses than those they have now to meet.

"As regards the difference between Calcutta and Bombay in this special matter of jute-licenses and the fire-brigade, I do not propose myself, Sir, to deal with that subject in detail. There are others present who can do so better and with more authority, but I will venture to call the attention of the Council to an extract from the last report on the Bombay fire-brigade. A list is there given of the fires where property to the value of Rs. 2,000 and upwards was destroyed: there were eight such cases, and only one of them was in a place where the material stored would have been taxable under our Fire-brigade Act, and there property of the value of only Rs. 2,000 was destroyed. The largest fire was in a house where Rs. 20,000 worth of property was destroyed: the next largest was of Rs. 13,500, and the next of Rs. 9,000 worth of property in houses, and actually the very lowest in the list was in the warehouse, where some loose cotton was destroyed. I would ask you to compare that with the list in the last report that I have seen published in the Calcutta Gazette on the working of the Calcutta Fire-brigade, as the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE has referred to recent figures to show that, there have been of late few fires in jute houses in and near Calcutta. The supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of the 21st of September last contains a list of the fires during the year 1891-92 that occurred in Howrah. First, there is the fire in the Sibpur Jute Mills, where property to the value of Rs. 3,35,000 was destroyed. In all the other fires taken together, property to the extent of Rs. 760 was destroyed, such as here one tiled hut, there one stack of straw, there one boat load of straw, and the like. That is the list for Howrah only. I have said that I do not propose on this occasion, at all events, to go into the history of the fire-brigade, or the demands which the jute industry has made and still continues to make on the fire-brigade establishment; but that the jute industry should still continue to bear a considerable proportion of the cost of the brigade there can be no doubt, and that will be established by figures which will be given by my hon'ble friend, the Commissioner of Police.

"As I have been reported to have said what I never did say, and have been so reported, not only once, but twice, I endeavoured to correct the misapprehension in the Select Committee, but it escaped the attention of the Advocate-General or he would not have repeated the mistake to-day. I never used the words '90 per cent. of the property so destroyed by fire during the past four years (1886-89) belong to the jute and cotton interests.' I quite understand how the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE was misled, because those words appear in a letter from the Chamber of Commerce to the Government of Bengal in inverted commas. It says:—'Mr. Lee, Chairman of the Municipality, has committed himself in his letter No. 90 (J), dated 18th August, 1890, to the statement that, 90 per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the past four years (1886-89) belong to the jute and cotton interests.' That would naturally lead any one to suppose that, I used those words. But what I wrote was this:—

'I append a statement of property destroyed by fire in the course of the last four years in the town, the suburbs and Howrah, which I have extracted from the Annual Administration Reports of the Commissioner of Police. It shows that Rs. 16,35,075 worth of property was so destroyed, and that out of this, no less than Rs. 14,45,100 was property of the jute and cotton interests. The ratio is nearly 90 per cent. No stronger confirmation could be needed of the fact that, this proportion, which holds for the last four years, is not higher than the proportion, which would be found to hold through a prolonged period, than is afforded by the insurance rates paid for different classes of goods and property. I am informed that the rate for insuring jute presses is Rs. 3½ per cent., and for jute warehouses Rs. 2 per cent.; while the rates for ordinary masonry house property and non-hazardous goods stored therein is, 1½ annas per cent. The proportion of Rs. 2-12 to 1½ annas is 88 to 3.'

"That was in the form of an argument. I appended a list of the fires that had occurred with full details. The reason that there afterwards appeared a misconception in the matter was due to the fact that, the Commissioner of Police in making out his comparative list excluded, from his list of fires that had occurred of property belonging to the jute and cotton industries, two large fires, in which a certain amount of jute gunny-bags only was destroyed with other property. One of those two fires burned Rs. 3,00,000 of property in the Port Commissioners' warehouse, containing gunny-bags and piece-goods. Similarly, regarding another item of Rs. 10,000 worth of gunny-bags and tobacco destroyed by fire. These two being transferred out of the list of fires debitable to the jute and cotton interests, the percentage would be, of course, lowered; for it would make a total difference in the calculation, of twice Rs. 3,10,000, but my view is, that the only available method of taxing the jute interests at all is through the warehouses. We did try in Select Committee to find some other way of spreading the incidence of taxation on the industry, but found none possible. Finally, I would observe that even the calculation, as made by the Chamber of Commerce, showed that Rs. 8,60,100 worth of property belonging to the jute industry was destroyed in those four years as compared with other property worth Rs. 7,64,975.

"The speech of the hon'ble mover of the amendment divides itself into two parts—one to show that some alteration of the existing law is necessary, and the other to show that the alteration should be by way of imposing a general tax on property in Calcutta. As regards the first, I do not think it is necessary at this stage to enter into the details which will have to be considered when we come to decide how the taxation should be distributed. As regards the latter contention, I think that I have shown that, the Corporation of Calcutta is not in a position to accept the whole responsibility or any great portion of it, and that it would be unwise and wrong to try to put it on the general funds of the Municipalities."

THE HON'BLE MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"Twenty years ago the hon'ble member who then represented the mercantile community in this Council took exception to the original Fire-brigade Bill, as imposing 'a tax on persons for the benefit of the community;' and the merchants of Calcutta, upholding this view, have ever since expostulated against such a system of taxation, contending that as the whole community of Calcutta enjoys the protection of the brigade, the cost should be contributed by all through a municipal assessment. And while the merchants of Calcutta were pressing their views upon the Government of Bengal, it has transpired that the merchants of London, through the Association of Fire Insurance Companies, gave expression to similar views to the Metropolitan Board of Works, under date the 14th of January, 1886, and in these words:—

'The protection of life and property from fire is as much a public duty as are protection from murder and robbery, sanitary arrangements, maintenance of roads, &c., and, as such, it should in the interests of the community at large, be provided at the public expense. In cities and large towns the extinction of fires is the public duty of the municipal or governing body thereof, who are bound to make the necessary provision for the same, and to defray the cost out of the rates which they are authorized to levy for the purpose. The principle has been recognized by the Legislature, which not only on passing the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, but in every other general public Act, authorizing the maintenance out of rates to be levied thereunder of firemen, fire-engines and other appliances and requisites for extinguishing fires, has not authorized any charge to be made for the use thereof in the case of fires occurring within the boundaries of any city or town to which such Act applies.'

'Taxation of a commercial interest for matters affecting the public good and public convenience is opposed to all sound principles of political economy. It is never suggested that Life Insurance Offices should contribute towards sanitary improvements, or Marine Insurance Offices to the cost of harbours of refuge, lighthouses, &c., and yet they are no less interested in such works than are Fire Insurance Offices in arrangements for fire extinction.'

"The fire-brigade was established twenty years ago under Act II of 1872, on account of the then dreaded frequency of fires in jute godowns scattered throughout a wealthy part of the native quarter. Many of these jute press-houses and godowns were then situated in and around Clive Street and Radha Bazar, within gunshot of this Council Chamber; and owing to the lax manner in which jute was stored in inferior godowns and stacked in open yards, the trade was considered a source of danger to the community.

"The tax for the maintenance of the fire-brigade was, in consequence, mainly levied upon the jute trade. The trade has, however, remodelled itself, both as regards situation and working. Jute is now pressed for export in hydraulic press-houses, which are situated, for the most part beyond the town of Calcutta. There is no attraction to bring these back to within the limits of the town, and the Justices who grant the licenses for warehouses will doubtless be careful to prevent their return. The press-house buildings, as they now exist, are of substantial masonry construction, mostly fireproof, and are equipped so fully with fire-extinguishing appliances and a fire-brigade staff of their own that, it has become a matter of indifference to them whether or not a public fire-brigade exists. The companies are encouraged to maintain this high state of efficiency by a liberal reduction or discount allowed in the rate of insurance, amounting to 15 per cent. according to the highest standard of efficiency, and to 10 per cent. according to a lower standard of efficiency.

"It is found that 6 of the largest hydraulic presses out of a total of 23 have become entitled to the full reduction of 15 per cent. and that the rest, with exception of 3, claim a reduction of 10 per cent. Eight of the press-houses are owned by native merchants. The conditions that carry these discounts are both practical and complete in themselves. To obtain a rebate of 15 per cent. of the premium, the establishment, according to the Insurance Schedule, must include—'A steam fire-engine, a manual fire-engine, boiler pumping-engine, fire-plugs, buckets, cans, extincteurs with, in each case, water (available from public or other sources), and with those sufficient to command the premises insured, and with a trained fire-brigade consisting of not less than 8 men.' The 10 per cent. allowance contemplates less efficient appliances, and stipulates for—'A steam fire-engine, or stationary fire-engine worked by steam or water, or fire-pump worked by steam or water, or fire-plugs with, in each case, water (available from public or other sources) and hose sufficient to command the premises insured.' These arrangements have been promoted in the interests of owners of press-houses and insurance companies, by the experience that, unless a fire in a peel of jute is discovered and extinguished when it commences, it burns itself out, and no public fire-brigade, however alert and efficient, is of the least use. Such being the case, owners of well-built, efficiently-equipped and isolated press-houses naturally not only demur, but strongly protest against being taxed for the maintenance of a fire-brigade, the head-quarters of which is situated one-and-a-half miles distant from them, and which has been chiefly of use in dealing with conflagrations in bastis and marts.

"The native jute mart is confined to Hatkhollah and to Durmahatta, situated on the river bank. The jute is for the most part stored in brick buildings. Fires are infrequent, and the owners do not insure. No instance has been reported of a conflagration having extended to neighbouring property from a fire breaking out in premises licensed under the Act. On the other hand, the whole community sleeps secure, knowing that, in the event of fire, the brigade is at call. Houses and dwellings between Chowringhee and Intally, between the Strand and Sealdah, schools, colleges, theatres, Government offices, godowns, stores, shops, are all protected by the brigade; and such being the case, I contend that the owners or occupiers are called upon to contribute generally to the cost. If the owners do not wish to do this, the brigade may be abolished. It is for the public to choose whether, they will control fires or pay higher rates of insurance premium.

"In no other country, and in no other city of this empire, is a particular industry separately assessed for the support of a fire-brigade. In Bombay, Madras and Rangoon the cost is defrayed by general taxation. In Bombay, cotton is not separately taxed, as it is with jute in Calcutta. Calcutta, therefore, stands out as the exception to a general common-sense and reasonable rule. The European and Native jute and cotton merchants naturally object to be so penalised. The practice, too, in Calcutta, is certainly not supported or justified by facts as to the occurrence of fires.

"The learned Advocate-General has pointed out that, during the past seven years only 7 per cent., that is to say, only 17 out of 247 fires, occurred in warehouses licensed under Act IV of 1883. The reports for the two years ending April, 1892, show that, no fires occurred in jute warehouses in that period. And it may be added that no fires in jute warehouses have occurred during the ten months of the current year. The owners and occupiers of licensed warehouses, therefore, protest that the history of fires in Calcutta in no way proves them liable to be assessed for the cost of a fire-brigade, when the maintenance of that brigade is so plainly for the benefit of the whole community. The other fires include what may well be termed, the devastating conflagrations in bastis, when hundreds of houses have been destroyed, fires in wood and hay stores at the Port Commissioners' jetties, and in Government stores, including an important loss of property which lately occurred in the Government Clothing Department at Alipore, and, I believe, a fire once occurred in Government House.

"It is proposed by the present Bill that the rate of taxation on hazardous trades, for the most part represented by the jute and cotton industries, should continue at 10 per cent. of the municipal assessment, with a maximum fee of Rs. 750 for any one license, and provided that the total trade contributions shall not exceed 50 per cent. of the annual cost of the brigade. In effect, this points to taxation to the extent of $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. to 5 per cent. of the municipal assessment, or even more; whereas, if spread over the community, the incidence would not exceed $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. In Bombay, the tax does not exceed $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. and includes the provision of interest on a special fire-brigade loan. In other words, a godown to hold cotton assessed by the municipality at Rs. 8,000 would in Bombay pay a fire-brigade tax of Rs. 60, and in Calcutta, under the proposed Bill, will pay Rs. 750. If the cost of the brigade is spread over the community, this godown would pay about Rs. 20. Again, the Bill will operate most unfairly upon the small trader in comparison with the large. An Hydraulic Press Company at Cossipore, with an assessed valuation of Rs. 42,000, will be limited to a payment of Rs. 750, or about $1\frac{3}{4}$ per cent.; while a press-house in Calcutta, with a municipal assessment of Rs. 12,000, will also pay Rs. 750, or $6\frac{1}{4}$ per cent., and Babu Gooroogobind Shaw having godowns close by, assessed by the Municipality at Rs. 9,000, will also pay Rs. 750, or $8\frac{1}{3}$ per cent.

"The Chamber of Commerce, at the suggestion of the Fire-brigade Committee, examined the subject very closely, with a view to arrive, if possible, at a differential rate that might be fair to all, and after careful study have had to abandon the attempt. I do not consider the efforts of the Select Committee have been more successful.

"The pressing trade has not always been a profitable industry. It continued unprofitable until a confederacy in the working of the Hydraulic Press Companies was inaugurated. This system of working is still of necessity upheld, but it yet implies that, while the companies have a combined capacity to screw forty-four lakhs of bales of jute in a season, only about sixteen lakhs of bales are screwed, because exporters find it more advantageous to screw elsewhere; and the port of Chittagong reaps the benefit. This is a matter of serious consideration to those interested in the port of Calcutta, and is of itself a warning that no unnecessary impost should be placed upon the trade of the port. The castor-oil industry, too, owing to the keen competition there now is with American mineral oil for lubricating purposes, is in no way fit to bear further special taxation, as is suggested by the Bill.

"The late Sir Henry Harrison considered that, the interest of the mercantile community of the town was of the first importance, and Mr. Harry Lee, Port Commissioner, lately delivered himself of the following clear opinion, which, I hope, will be echoed in this Council:—

'Nothing can be more certain than that the prosperity of the town is involved in the prosperity of the port, and that this is already an expensive port. These truths are so obvious that, we and the Municipal Commissioners and the Local Government must be alike alive to them; and any burdens that the Municipal Commissioners or the Local Government can with fairness remove from the shoulders of the port to the public, must undoubtedly be shifted.'

"There is still a further reason in support of the tax becoming a general rate. The history of the Calcutta fire-brigade is unique. The jute and cotton industries have not only paid for the up-keep of the fire-brigade; they have not only paid for establishments to collect the funds and towards pension funds, but they have also paid for the cost of establishing the brigade and, in addition, have been taxed to such an extent as to yield a very large surplus amounting to over a lakh and a quarter of rupees. This sum has neither been used to perfect the brigade nor to provide pension and depreciation funds; but it has been appropriated by the Municipality to widen streets and enlarge the lock-hospital, I may add, to the utter astonishment of the whole mercantile community. If an account were now taken between the Fire-brigade Fund and the Municipality, these sums would, at 6 per cent. interest, represent a capital of Rs. 2,40,000 due by the Municipality. I take this rate on the authority of the hon'ble member, the Chairman of the Corporation, who elsewhere has remarked:—

'In fixing the rate of assessment for the Municipal Consolidation Act, it was considered, after the fullest argument, that no sane person would invest money in property in Calcutta, except in the hopes of securing considerably over 5 per cent. on his capital. Allowance was made for occasional disappointments, and an all-round rate of 5 per cent. was deemed fair.'

"If, therefore, the Municipality has been presented with these contributions and with a ready-made fire-brigade also, it will have obtained a gift from a single branch of trade that is without precedent. In Bombay, a loan of five lakhs of rupees was raised by the municipality to establish a brigade; and in London, the Metropolitan Board of Works paid £30,000 sterling to the Fire Insurance Association when taking over their brigade. It is clear that the jute and cotton industries have already done a very great deal for the general public good, and the commercial community consider that the time has come when, in common justice, they should be afforded the relief prayed for, and the justice of such has been admitted by Government since 1878, and declared, moreover, in the last Municipal Act for Calcutta passed by this Council, Act II of 1888. The mercantile community cannot be expected to rest satisfied until this is granted.

"In conclusion, I would venture to say that the Bengal Chamber of Commerce will never approach the Government of Bengal as a suppliant for legislative favours on behalf of any particular industry; but it will come, asking that just remedies may be applied to redress a grievance and remove a wrong which, in the present instance, the Chamber does."

THE HON'BLE MR. COTTON said:—"I only wish to trouble the Council with a very few words in reply to some of the arguments brought forward by the mover of this proposal and by the hon'ble member who has just sat down. At the last meeting of this Council, I referred to the principle maintained by the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE that, taxation in this matter of the fire-brigade should be evenly spread among all branches of the community. There is much to be said in favour of that principle, and the Advocate-General has supported it with conspicuous ability. But he certainly appears to me to have failed to recognise the peculiar circumstances of this metropolis. He has described Calcutta as an 'extraordinary' city. This is the language, as I understand it, of sarcasm; but if he had as thorough a knowledge of the town as I have, he would have used the word seriously. The position of Calcutta is not comparable to that of any large city in Europe. If there were no other difference, it would be this, that Calcutta is situated in the tropics or very near the border of the tropics. In a cold country fires break out repeatedly in residential houses and in shops, and they are due mainly to accidents occurring from the fires which are daily lighted in those houses. Fires at certain seasons of the year are burned in every room of each house. They are also due to the inflammable character of the houses themselves; to the large amount of wood used in the furniture, and in the wooden flooring.

"These are the circumstances which establish a radical distinction between European capitals and this city; and if there were no other reasons which justify a distinction being drawn in the source for the realization of funds for the maintenance of a fire-brigade, this one would be sufficient. The fire-brigade maintained in European cities would have to be maintained in all of them, whether there were large commercial warehouses in those cities or not. But, as I observed at the last meeting of the Council, it can admit of no dispute that, were it not for the existence of commercial warehouses, principally jute warehouses, in Calcutta, the brigade of this city would never have been maintained at its existing strength. In London, the majority of fires that break out are in residential houses, and the greater portion of the time of the fire-brigade is taken up in extinguishing those fires. I shall be succeeded to-day by the HON'BLE MR. LAMBERT, who will be able to state to you, with more authority than I can, the proportion of time taken up by the present fire-brigade in extinguishing fires in jute warehouses, and in other dwellings including bastis. He will tell you that there is no comparison between the amount of work done by the fire-brigade for warehouses and the amount done in bastis and private residences. And this is what I meant when I said that, the majority of important fires occurred in warehouses. By the word 'important' I mean important in the point of view of the fire-brigade. If a fire takes the brigade a week to extinguish, it is immeasurably more important than a fire which takes one hour to extinguish. Therefore it is that I said that, the majority of important fires occurred in warehouses, and that it was mainly on account of these warehouses that the brigade had to be maintained at its present strength.

"Now I shall recur to the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair. He observed, and observed justly, that great improvements have been effected in warehouses where jute is stored—improvements which no doubt greatly reduce the risk of fire. But notwithstanding these improvements, Sir, it is still the case that jute warehouses pay a rate of insurance far and away above the rate paid by other buildings in this city. I attach great weight to this consideration. If it is a fact, and I am credibly assured that it is so, it is in itself sufficient to justify the special treatment of these warehouses by this Council. I hold in my hand a statement of the rates paid to one of the largest fire insurance companies in this city, and it is there stated that jute presses and jute warehouses pay a premium of 3½ per cent. That, in comparison with rates paid by other buildings, is absolutely a penal rate. Were it not that the jute contained in these buildings is an eminently inflammable material; were it not that there is great risk of this jute taking fire, such a high rate would certainly not be levied; and so long as the rate levied on jute warehouses is out of all proportion higher than the rates of insurance levied on other buildings in this city, so long will it be justifiable to levy a special fee from these warehouses on account of the maintenance of the fire-brigade. This is a further reason why, in the opinion of the majority of the Select Committee, it was considered fair and reasonable that jute should still continue to pay special rates for this purpose.

"I entirely agree that it is exceedingly unfair that, the jute industry should continue to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade. I recognise that the general community is undoubtedly benefited by the maintenance of the brigade, and that they should pay some share of the cost; and this principle we have endeavoured to give effect to in the Bill before you. But it was also recognised by the majority of the Select Committee that, considering the inflammable nature of jute, it was reasonable that it should still continue to pay a large proportion of the cost. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General observed that the differential rates of tax contemplated by the Bill must be bad because they were condemned on all sides. Now, Sir, it is my experience that every measure of taxation will be opposed by people who are called upon to pay the tax, and I would indeed have been surprised if the Municipality, represented in this Council by my hon'ble friend, the Chairman of the Corporation, and other hon'ble members, who are also members of the Corporation, should have accepted with equanimity those additional charges upon the public which the Bill contemplates. I should have been surprised if the hon'ble gentleman who represents the Chamber of Commerce should not have protested on behalf of the jute interest. It is natural also that, those who represent the other particular interests affected should protest against any new form of taxation imposed upon them. But when I observe that the Bill is opposed to the bitter end on both sides, that on one side, it is argued that the whole rate should continue to be borne by the jute interest, and that on the other hand, my hon'ble friend, the Advocate-General, says:—'No, there should be no special rate on any commodity or any interest; let there be an equal rate on all alike.' When I see these extreme views taken up, I am disposed to think that we have adopted the only fair and equitable course, which I have been told more than once is impossible, when we have tried, as we have done, to steer a middle channel avoiding either extreme, and to impose a differential rate in proportion to the inflammability of the commodities affected and the degree of protection afforded and benefit derived."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert said:—"I desire to say briefly why I am unable to support the amendment brought forward by the learned Advocate-General.

If the question now before the Council was the establishment in Calcutta of a fire-brigade for the first time, no doubt the case made out by the Advocate-General would be a very strong one; but the matter now under consideration is not, whether a fire-brigade is to be maintained, but who is to maintain it, whether, in fact, any change is to be made. Therefore, before those principles which were accepted twenty years ago regarding the impost of taxation are set aside, we should not lose sight of the causes which rendered it necessary to establish and maintain an efficient fire-brigade. Up to 1872, Calcutta had no brigade worthy of the name; but in 1871, serious fires had broken out, endangering the safety of the town, and these fires were caused by the laxity with which the jute trade was conducted. Therefore, several bodies—the Chamber of Commerce at their head—pressed on the Government the necessity of bringing the jute trade under better supervision and of organising an efficient brigade; and so in 1872, a fire-brigade was formed—not so large or costly as that now maintained, but that was the beginning of it. At first, steam fire-engines were stationed only at the head police office. Then the jute industry spread to the suburbs of Chitpore and Cossipore, and the cry was, that better protection against fire was needed there. So in 1887, an out-station was established at Chitpore at an outlay of about Rs. 40,000. Meanwhile the Act had included Howrah, and it was soon urged on the Commissioner of Police that the fire-brigade arrangements, which had been sufficient for the general community at Howrah, were altogether insufficient for the protection of the jute industry there. So in 1889 at Howrah, too, an out-station was established at a further cost of about Rs. 40,000. It will be noticed that these large outlays have been incurred in recent years. Now it seems that having got its fire-brigade, the jute industry want some one else to maintain it.

"It has indeed been suggested that, at the large mills and presses the appliances for extinguishing fires are now so complete that the fire-brigade is not wanted. But this statement has yet to find general acceptance. So far as I am aware, at only one press is the equipment on such a scale that a large fire could be dealt with. At several others, something has been done to provide fire-appliances, but more, I think, to satisfy the insurance offices than to be prepared to extinguish a serious fire. Certainly the owners of the smaller warehouses, numbering about 160, have no fire-appliances at all. My experience is, that when a fire breaks out in a jute press, all who are interested—owners, managers and fire insurance agents—are on the look-out for the arrival of the brigade; and generally those interested in the fire, detain the brigade on the spot long after in the opinion of those responsible for the working of the brigade think that it could be removed without risk. Certainly, these jute fires tax the resources of the brigade more severely than any other fires. How great is the strain is shown by the average period at which the brigade is employed at such fires. The records for 1888 to 1892 show this. During this period, 15 fires occurred in licensed buildings; and the average duration of the employment of the brigade at each fire, was a little over three days. During this same period, 141 large fires occurred in other places, and among these was the fire at Baliaghata, which lasted seven days. Yet the average period of attendance at these 141 fires was only five hours—five hours against three days!

"Taking into consideration, therefore, the fact that, in Calcutta the strength and cost of the fire-brigade has been fixed chiefly to meet requirements arising from the jute trade, I see no reason why that industry should now be relieved entirely of its liability to maintain the brigade. But there are good reasons why the burden should be lightened. Among these reasons I may name two: one, that the conditions under which the trade is now carried on are widely different from those which existed twenty years ago, and that the risk of a fire spreading to contiguous buildings is thereby very greatly diminished—I cannot say with the learned Advocate-General entirely removed, for it is not the case that fires in press houses never spread outside of the press premises. I can quote one serious instance. On the 20th December, 1888, the Canal Jute Press caught fire, and the damage sustained amounted to Rs. 4,00,000. Sparks flew from this press, and ignited a large flat lying on the river laden with 17,890 maunds of jute, valued at Rs. 1,19,490, and the whole of this cargo was destroyed. My second reason is, that experience has shown that the general community benefits largely by the maintenance of the fire-brigade, which is now wholly supported by the jute industry. During the last ten years, the brigade has attended at only twenty-five fires in licensed warehouses, against 219 fires in bastis and 107 other fires. Therefore the jute industry is, in my opinion, entitled to very substantial relief. What that relief should be, will be best considered when the clauses of the Bill come under discussion."

THE HON'BLE MR. WALLIS said:—"It would scarcely have been necessary for me to have addressed the Council on this occasion but for a remark which had fallen from the learned Advocate-General in the course of his speech to the effect that, the Calcutta Trades Association had expressed its dissent to some of the provisions of the Bill, although in accord with its general principles. As Master of that Association, I deem it expedient to point out that, I am yet to learn in what way the Committee of the Association dissent from the provisions of the Bill. The Bill, as amended, has been considered by the Committee, and they are in complete accord with the principles of taxation recommended. The suggestions put forward by the learned Advocate-General and supported by the HON'BLE MR. PLAYFAIR are not such as are likely to commend themselves to the approval of this Council, as they fail to adduce any grounds for the imposition of a general rate, which have not already been duly considered and rejected. It will be within the recollection of hon'ble members that, throughout the discussions which have taken place in connection with the raising of funds for the up-keep of the fire-brigade, this question of an all-round rate to be levied on the general tax-payer by the municipalities has from time to time been advanced, has often to be put on one side as wholly unsuited to a place like Calcutta, where the risk of fire in the majority of buildings is so remote, and where the danger from warehouses for the storage of goods of a highly inflammable nature and in bastis presents the opposite extreme. Owing to the continued representations made to Government by those concerned, a Resolution, dated the 18th of February, 1891, was issued by this Government, appointing a most influential and representative Committee for the consideration of the question in all its bearings.

"This Committee held its first meeting on the 7th of April, 1891, at which those present were unanimous in the opinion that, it was manifestly unfair that any one industry should be saddled with the entire cost, as it was impossible to deny that the general public derived much benefit from the brigade. At this meeting it was admitted that, the jute industry should be taxed to the extent of one-half of the total cost of the brigade. At the second meeting, held on the 14th of April, this question of a general rate was freely discussed, but the majority of those present decided against its imposition; and at each of the five meetings held by this Committee, the question was brought forward, but was as often vetoed, the Committee being of opinion that it was not desirable to place all buildings on an equal footing, and finally recommended that the cost should be met by several industries of a more or less hazardous nature, and partly by the general tax-payer. These lines have been followed in the Bill as amended.

"In like manner, when the Bill (as originally drafted) was referred to the Select Committee of this Council, this point of a general rate was discussed at great length, but the majority were against its adoption, accepting the principles set forth by the Committee of 1891. It may, therefore, be accepted that, the consensus of opinion of those most competent to judge is, that a differential rate is more suited to Calcutta than a general one. The Bill as now amended recognizes the claim to relief put forward on behalf of the jute industry; it provides that, goods of a less hazardous class shall pay a lighter rate than that imposed on highly inflammable goods; that bastis shall contribute a half per cent. rate, and it affirms the principle that, the general public should, in a still lesser degree, (i.e., $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent. on the value of property as assessed for municipal taxation), help in maintaining an institution, having for its objects the protection of life and property from fire.

"It, therefore, seems to me, Sir, that the recommendations made in the Bill must meet with the approval of the majority of the members of this Council, as being perfectly equitable in all the provisions referring to the raising of funds to meet the cost of the fire-brigade."

THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY said:—"I wish to say a very few words in support of the arguments in favour of the general principle advocated by the learned Advocate-General. He has laid stress very justly on the impolicy of imposing a special tax on a special branch of industry. Whilst his speech was going on, I was reminded of the analogy between this and the special rates charged on special crops of land. I venture to say that if we were now discussing a Rent Bill, no words would be too bad, which for the rapacious landlord who should impose special high rates of assessments on specially valuable crops. This case is just the same. It deals with an industry which is specially valuable and profitable—an industry which has brought prosperity to Calcutta by drawing trade to it—and you set to work and discourage the trade generally by imposing a special property tax on those who are engaged in the industry. Under similar circumstances, a Continental Government would give the trade a bounty, as France and Prussia actually do in the case of beetroot sugar.

"Moreover, it is difficult to say, when you come to consider it, where this principle is to stop. It admits of almost unlimited application. You may tax horses and carriages and apply the proceeds to keeping up the roads, you may tax unwholesome trades for sanitation, and the dealers in indigestible articles of food for the support of the hospitals. Certainly, if you carry the principle to its logical consequence, so far from taxing the jute trade for the support of a lock-hospital, you would be bound to impose a poll-tax on the demi-monde of Calcutta. In that case, at any rate, there would be no question about the persons taxed getting their money's worth, which is more than can be said in the case of the jute warehouses. These, indeed, derive comparatively little benefit from the tax, because, as I understand, jute warehouses and presses have been much improved in their construction, and any fire which may break out will be pretty well circumscribed, as each building is surrounded by a high wall, and most of them are provided with fire and manual engines and extincteurs for the extinguishing of fire, so that the fire can hardly spread further.

"There is, moreover, another reason why persons connected with the jute trade do not benefit by the maintenance of a fire-brigade, because it is absolutely out of the question for the fire-brigade to think of putting out a fire which has once broken out in a jute warehouse; and further, the general public are probably less injured by jute fires than by fires in other cases. The premises are carefully guarded, and the fire has a less tendency to damage the property of the general public than a fire which occurs in a basti. On the other hand, a fire occurring in a basti has a greater tendency to spread.

"Then there is the question, of the value of the property destroyed with reference to the proportion of the cost of maintaining the brigade. We ought to look to the interest of the general public. The general public do not know what may be the value of the property destroyed. What concerns them is, whether a fire is liable to spread. In the case of fires in jute warehouses, we are told that the fire is not liable to spread. In the case of a basti fire, it spreads so rapidly that the whole basti is on fire before the brigade can arrive at the spot.

"Then there is a minor point as to the advantage of uniformity in legislation. If we are to legislate on any particular subject, it is no doubt a good thing to be guided by the experience of the rest of the world. We have had reference made to English experience, and to the practice at Bombay and Madras and Rangoon. I have also looked up the question, and find, as far as I have been able to ascertain from the authorities to which I have had access show, that the obligation of maintaining a fire-brigade is regarded on the Continents of Europe as strictly a municipal obligation. Endeavour is made to restrict fires as much as possible by having very strict building regulations expressly with the object of preventing the occurrence of fires, and I know that houses on the Continent are very much more carefully built, so as to prevent the occurrence of fires, than are houses in England."

THE HON'BLE BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"I should have had no hesitation in supporting the recommendation of the Select Committee if I found that it was proposed to distribute the incidence of taxation on account of the fire-brigade on all those who derive benefit directly from it; but as I find that it proposes to levy a rate not only on basti lands but on pucka houses and other lands, I do not agree with the Committee. The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, enables the Commissioners to levy a rate of eight annas per cent. on all basti lands, and a rate not exceeding two annas per cent. on all pucka houses and other lands. The amendment of the learned Advocate-General, if carried, will have the effect of reducing the rate from eight annas to four annas per cent. on basti lands, and of increasing the two annas rate on houses and lands to four annas. We all know that bastis are occupied by poor people, and any measure which will tend to lighten the burden of these people, should have our support. I entertain a very strong view that pucka houses in this city ought not to bear any share of the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade, and as I find that the learned Advocate General's proposal of this all-round tax of four annas per cent. on occupiers of premises will lessen the burden on bastis, I think I cannot do better than support his amendment."

CALCUTTA;
The 28th February, 1893.

Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Legislative Department.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE OPIUM DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—OPIUM.

Calcutta, the 18th February 1893.

READ—

The Report on the Administration of the Opium Department for the year 1891-92 (1st September 1891 to 31st August 1892).

General.

The opium year 1891-92 is the fourth in succession with an unfavourable record—a record worse by far than of either of the two years immediately preceding. The total area engaged for in the two Agencies was 799,771 bighas. Poppy was actually sown on 787,041 bighas, but the crop failed on 45,178 bighas, or over 5¾ per cent. of the area sown; the net area of cultivation was thus reduced to 741,863 bighas against an average of 770,208 bighas during the three years, and 836,358 bighas during the nine years preceding. The abandonment of the policy of extending cultivation when the outturn of the seasons has been so deficient as to diminish seriously the quantity of opium held in reserve, and the disappointment of the cultivators during several years consecutively, are the principal causes of the diminished area of poppy cultivation. In the four years preceding 1888-89, the average gross yield of crops in a year was 55,000 maunds, and the average produce per bigha a little above 5 seers in the Bihar Agency, and 65,120 maunds and 5¾ seers respectively in the Benares Agency; but during the three years immediately preceding the year of report, namely, 1888-89 to 1890-91, the average gross yield amounted to 38,035 maunds only, and the produce per bigha to 3⅔ seers in Bihar, and in Benares to only 44,198 maunds and 4⅔ seers respectively. There is, however, another factor which is steadily gaining importance, namely, the competition with other commercial crops, chiefly tobacco, oilseeds, potato and sugarcane, which are less delicate and more remunerative in an average year than poppy. There are no data for the Bihar Agency regarding the extent to which poppy has been supplanted by other crops. The report of the Land Records Department, North-Western Provinces, of the kharif season ending with 31st December 1891 in those Provinces shows that the area sown with sugarcane during that season was in excess of the area of the preceding season by as much as 402,900 bighas. Some European firms are reported by the Benares Agent to have organized a regular system of advances to stimulate the cultivation of cereals which, for the last few years, have commanded high prices. Poppy is no longer cultivated on the best of the soil everywhere, and, as observed by the Opium Agent, Bihar, it must be satisfied with such land as it gets, while Government must trust to more efficient supervision and to the grant of more aid in the way of loans for irrigation to secure better outturn. It may also perhaps be necessary, if the rise in the price of other produce continues, to raise the Government price of opium by 8 annas per seer, in order to keep pace with that rise. It is reported by the Bihar Agent that a well-known planter of Tirhut cultivated 30 bighas of land formerly under indigo with poppy last year, and that, encouraged by the success obtained, five more planters intend to try the experiment during the current season. The land which these planters are expected to devote to poppy cultivation during the present season is 75 bighas. These figures as yet are too insignificant for any general conclusions. It may be anticipated, however, that a successful season now will do much to restore the popularity of poppy cultivation.

Outturn.

2. In spite of the decrease in the area of cultivation, and the dryness of the season (the monsoon having closed early and hardly any rain fallen during the winter), the prospects up to the end of February continued favourable and promised a good outturn. But the setting in of strong westerly winds at the time of gathering the produce entirely upset all previous calculations, and proved to be particularly disastrous by drying up the juice which exudes from the capsules when lanced. These disadvantages were further aggravated by the occurrence of hailstorms in portions of the Benares Agency. The produce, reduced to a standard of 70 per cent. consistence, amounted only to 31,955 maunds 19 seers 2 chitaks in the Bihar Agency, and to 38,490 maunds 10 seers 13 chitaks in the Benares Agency, against 38,759 maunds 3 seers and 44,373 maunds 19 seers 2 chitaks, respectively, during the previous year. The total produce was 70,445 maunds 30 seers against 83,132 maunds 22 seers in 1890-91, and the average produce per bigha was 3 seers 6¼ chitaks in the Bihar Agency and 4 seers 3 chitaks in the Benares Agency, against 3 seers 12½ chitaks and 4 seers 8 chitaks, respectively, in 1890-91. In the Bihar Agency the average produce per bigha was highest in Tehta, Gaya, and Shahabad, where it was 4 seers 2½ chitaks, 4 seers 2 chitaks, and 4 seers 0¾ chitaks, respectively, and lowest in Tirhut, where it was 1 seer 3½ chitaks. In the Benares Agency the highest average was in Ghazipur, 4 seers 13¾ chitaks, and the lowest in Etawa, 3 seers 8¼ chitaks. The average was higher in Gaya, Basti, Mirzapur, and Faizabad than in the previous year.

Manufacture.

3. The amount of provision opium manufactured during the season was 20,846 chests, eight cakes, in Bihar, and 12,833 chests in Benares, which was less than the quantity manufactured in the previous year by 988 chests, 12 cakes in the former, and 9,855 chests in the latter Agency. The great disparity in the outturn of the two Agencies is accounted for by the fact that more than 9,000 maunds of the Ghazipur drug, which was of too high a consistence for Benares provision opium, the standard consistence of which is 71°, were transferred to Bihar and there manufactured with the produce of that Agency for Bihar provision opium, of which the standard consistence is 75°. In consequence of abnormal climatic conditions, the consistence of opium at both the Agencies was unusually high, Bihar opium being manufactured at an average consistence of 77°, and Benares at an average of 74°, the former being two degrees above the standard and the latter three degrees. The fact of the standard consistence of the Benares provision opium having been raised from 70° to 71°, has been publicly notified.

Reserve.

4. The number of chests to be sold in 1893 has been fixed at 43,704, and the reserve on the 31st December 1893 will fall to 1,947 chests of Patna opium, with a deficit of 33 chests of Benares opium, which will have to be provided in 1893, contrary to the usual practice, from the manufacture of the produce of the cold weather of 1892-93. The prospects of the current season have been hitherto reported to be above the average, but experience has shown how delusive such forecasts may prove in the case of opium. Should the results of the outturn of the cold weather crop of 1892-93 be again unfavourable, the question of the reserve will, as the Board observe, assume a serious aspect.

Receipts and expenditure of opium.

5. The principal point in the Board's report which the Lieutenant-Governor has to criticize is the difficulty of finding out what the actual receipts and expenditure of opium were. The statement given in paragraph 4, page 1 of the Board's Report shows the quantity produced in the year, and the amount of provision opium, but does not include excise opium or opium manufactured for medical purposes. The Board are requested to devise a clear statement in maunds and seers reduced to a uniform consistence, of opium in stock, opium received in the year, opium used in different ways, and balance in stock at end of the year. The accounts give the expenditure in cakes, maunds, and chests, which is somewhat confusing.

Nepal opium.

6. The quantity of Nepal opium delivered amounted to 136 maunds only, against 157 maunds in the previous season. It is reported that the bad season was felt in Nepal also. Under the orders of Government, Nepal opium will in future be received from the Nepalese cultivators direct on the same terms as opium brought by British subjects, as the arrangement under which this opium used to be supplied through an intermediary approved by Government was found to be unsatisfactory.

Expenditure.

7. The expenditure in the Bihar Agency amounted to Rs. 73,73,691 against Rs. 88,19,349 in the preceding year, and in the Benares Agency to Rs. 88,72,927 against Rs. 1,02,28,196 in 1890-91. The combined expenditure in the two Agencies was thus Rs. 1,62,46,618, which is less than the expenditure in 1890-91 by Rs. 28,00,927. A detailed statement of the expenditure is furnished by the Benares Agent. The Bihar Agent explains that he has been unable to furnish the statement in consequence of Part IV of the Opium Manual containing all the revised forms and tables for calculation being still in the press. This explanation is accepted by the Board, but it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that the Board need not have failed to obtain a detailed statement of the expenditure in the Bihar Agency if they had made any attempt to get it or had prescribed a form for Bihar. The Benares statement (reprinted in paragraph 41 of the Board's report) is arranged under 18 budget heads (which should have been numbered): these can be grouped under—

		Heads.
1.	Cost price of opium	3, 4, 5
2.	Establishment	1, 2, 7, 10, 11, 12
3.	Transit, weighment and freight	6, 8
4.	Manufacturing	9
5.	Miscellaneous	13 to 18

The Bihar expenditure should be divided in the same way, and the rateable incidence of the several heads of expenditure should be divided over the quantity of opium produced so as to separate permanent establishment, which cannot vary, from the temporary or variable establishment which ought to rise and fall with the weight of the crop. The statement ought to show at a glance the cost per maund to Government divided into (1) price paid to cultivators; (2) cost of manufacturing; (3) cost of supervising establishment. Column 5 of the abstract statements for Bihar and Benares divided by column 3 shows the cost per maund to have been Rs 231 in Bihar and Rs. 250 in Benares.

Outstanding balances.

8. In the Bihar Agency the outstanding balance of advances to cultivators is said to be Rs. 12,020, exclusive of Rs. 270 written off as irrecoverable. The Benares Agent states in paragraph 96 of his report that the balance on the 1st November 1891 on account of season 1891-92 was Rs. 1,49,735-12, the amount realised between 1st November 1891 and 1st November 1892 Rs. 1,38,017, and the net balance on the 1st November 1892 of advances for the season Rs. 11,718-12-1. These figures require explanation. The Opium Manual shows that in the Benares Agency the arrangements with cultivators are begun about the middle of August, and simultaneouly with the engagements advances are given at the prescribed rate, the first advance being about one-third of the estimated value of the return. No second advance is generally made in the Benares Agency. It is obvious that under this system the amount of advances for season 1891-92 on the 1st November 1891 would be much higher than Rs. 1,49,735-12. Statement B appended to the Benares Agent's report shows that the total amount of advances during 1891-92 for provision opium was Rs. 78,43,539, which was in excess of the value of the produce by Rs. 1,35,249. The Bihar Opium Agent considers it to be a specially unsatisfactory feature of the accounts of the year that the cultivators of Bihar should have had to refund out of the advances taken by them as much as Rs. 80,530, which sum exceeds the corresponding amount for any previous year except the year 1882-83, which is memorable for its disastrous blight. In His Honour's opinion the poor outturn fully explains why the advances exceeded the value of the crop brought in for weighment and the cultivators had to refund the balance; but it is an exceptional circumstance. In Benares the amount, viz. Rs. 1,38,017, which the cultivators had to refund for the year's advances far exceeded that in Bihar.

Irrigation.

9. Statement A of the Bihar Agency shows that out of a total area of 375,586 bighas, 69,057 bighas, or above 17 per cent., were unirrigated, against 81,678 bighas, or 20 per cent, in the preceding year. In the corresponding statement for the Benares Agency the unirrigated area is only 8,345 bighas, or a little above 2 per cent. The Bihar statement reduces the bighas into acres, which should in future be done in the Benares statement, the Agency bigha in both Bihar and Benares being equal to $\frac{19}{30}$ths of an acre. In the Bihar Agency a strong prejudice, which the Agent reports to be well founded, exists against the use of canal water for poppy cultivation in the Shahabad and Patna districts. The amount advanced for the construction and repairs of wells was Rs. 49,535, against Rs. 24,355 in the previous year in the Bihar Agency, and Rs. 11,359 against Rs. 15,583 in 1890-91 in the Benares Agency. The Benares Agent reports that the reasons which operate against the expansion of the system are (1) insecurity of the tenure on which the raiyats generally hold their lands; (2) fear of the cultivators of their inability to repay the loan; and (3) want of sound and sufficient security. It appears to Sir Charles Elliott to be very remarkable and contrary to the belief which has hitherto prevailed if the raiyat in Bihar feels more secure in his tenure than the raiyat in the North-Western Provinces. This matter will be brought to the notice of the Government of the North-Western Provinces.

Saw Mills.

10. The account furnished in the Board's report of the working of the Patna Saw Mills and Chest Department is very confused. From the report of the Bihar Opium Agent it appears that during the year 1891-92 22,388 chests were made, of which 11,892 were sâl and 10,496 mango wood, against 26,113 chests, all of sâl, in the previous year. The cost of a sâl wood chest was Rs. 5-14-7, and of a mango wood chest Rs. 2-7-5. The difference between these two prices represents the saving effected by the substitution of mango wood for sâl wood. The total amount of saving in this way is represented by Rs. 35,937. With a view to economy the Mill was, with the sanction of Government, closed for the month of October 1891, and for April, May, and June 1892. The net expenditure on account of the mills in 1891-92 is stated by the Board to have been Rs. 19,384, after deducting certain receipts, against Rs. 22,425 in the preceding year. The separate letter on this subject referred to by the Board shows, however, that the actual expenditure was Rs. 24,434 against Rs. 27,751. This shows a satisfactory saving. But it appears from the Bihar Agent's report that 33,000 ready made chests purchased for contractors with lids were sent to Ghazipur. This appears to have been hardly wise, unless the cost of a purchased chest is less than that of a chest made at the Saw Mill, as prima facie, instead of keeping the Mill closed for some months, it might have been utilized for the chests required for the Ghazipur Agency. The reason also why 33,000 chests were required for Ghazipur when 22,388 sufficed for Patna requires explanation.

Breaches of Opium Laws.

11. Compared with the year 1890-91, there was a decrease of 72 in the number of cases in Bengal, and an increase of 41 cases in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the total number during the year 1891-92 being 501 in the former and 605 in the latter. Three of the cases in Bengal during the year were of considerable importance. In one case 19 seers of opium were sent up from Hooghly: it was reported that the opium was dropped by some up-country men who were passing through the town and ran away when challenged, leaving their property behind them. In another case four jars, containing about 3 maunds 15 seers, supposed to have been stolen during transit to Ghazipur out of a truck in the Bengal and North-Western Railway, were found on board some boats in the river at Calcutta. In May last about 11 maunds 35 seers of opium smuggled from Nepal were seized in a station on the Tirhut State Railway. The opium was concealed in packages said to contain spices. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that in the Bihar Agency, as well as in the Benares Agency, the requisite enquiries are made by the local opium officers to ascertain from what source the illicit drug in any case of smuggling which comes to light has been obtained. A large number of cases in Benares consisted of those in which a cultivator's wife or mother claimed to have retained a few grains of opium for medical purposes. The Agent did not think it necessary to punish the accused departmentally in addition to the punishment inflicted in the Criminal Court, as they were good cultivators. Mr. Rivett-Carnac considers that the existence of any organized contraband trade assisted by the cultivators is improbable, but he appears to think that smuggling to Calcutta is carried on by the purchase of excise opium at Rs. 16 per seer, which is the price fixed for the Patna Division, and also for adjoining districts of the North Western Provinces. The propriety of raising this figure is now under discussion with the Board, and an additional argument for such a measure may be found in the fact that the State loses considerably by selling at the present price. The statistics of the average price of provision opium sold at Calcutta from October 1891 to September 1892 show that Bihar provision opium sold at Rs. 17 per seer. Considering the higher consistence of excise opium, Rs. 16 per seer represent a much lower price than the Calcutta price of provision opium.

Tours.

12. Mr. Stevens, while in charge of the Miscellaneous Revenue Department in the Board of Revenue, visited both the factories as well as the weighing station at Ekdari in the Nepal frontier. He submitted notes to Government of discussions with the local opium officers on (1) the question of obtaining Nepal opium through Mr. Cockell; (2) the partial introduction of the assamiwar system prevalent in the Benares Agency in a part of the Motihari Agency; and (3) an improved method of packing opium jars. Orders have been passed separately by Government on these matters. With regard to the introduction of the Benares system of engagements, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that it is hardly worth while to discuss the merits of the system or to make an experiment in a single kothi, unless there is a definite intention of carrrying out a change. At present there is no such intention, and it is not worth while to enquire whether the reason given by Mr. Kemble, namely, the additional cost which the Benares system would entail, is valid or not. The Agents and the Sub-Deputy Agents made useful tours within their respective charges. Under orders of Government directing the mutual interchange of visits between the Factory Superintendents, the Superintendent of the Ghazipur Factory visited the Patna Factory in September last. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that these visits will be of decided benefit to the factories and to the interests of Government by the interchange of ideas.

Merits of officers.

13. The Board have reported to Government the names of Messrs. Tytler, Ryves, Harrison, Bryson, Murray and Blair among the Sub-Deputy Opium Agents as having worked well in the Bihar Agency. The Benares Agent has not made any recommendations this year. Dr. Sedgefield, Dr. Owen and Mr. Gregory are favourably reported on for their able discharge of their duties. The Lieutenant-Governor has again to acknowledge the efficient management of the Opium De, artment by the Agents, Mr. Kemble, Mr. Rivett-Carnac, and Mr. Hopkins, who held charge during the year, and the careful supervision exercised by the Board of Revenue.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

27	Monghyr Feb. 25, '93	1·53	Continual showers. Weather damp and cold. The present weather is injurious to much of the rabi, but it is hoped the wheat and other late kinds may benefit to some extent. Poppy must suffer severely as the extraction had already commenced, and each day's rain takes away some of the value. The loss may be now roughly put down at 3 annas, and the outturn is likely to be less even than that of last year, although the land sown is 2,000 bighas more and the failure of crop reported was 300 bighas less than in the previous year. The renewed moisture will be very advantageous for indigo lands. Prices of common rice:—

The tori harvest is finished in Araria with a very fair outturn; elsewhere that crop is being reaped. The rain will also facilitate ploughing of the bhadoi lands. Fodder and water sufficient. The crops cut and stored in open fields have been specially damaged, but their proportion is still small. The weather still continues cloudy and rainy, and if there is no bright sunshine soon much damage will be done to the rabi crops. The repeated showers have washed off some lanced drugs of the poppy, and the high winds have done some damage to the plants. This crop is, however, still in flower in many places, and the damage will not be very serious if there is bright sunshine soon. Fodder and water for cattle sufficient.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at l 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 28th February 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 25TH OF FEBRUARY 1893.

At the close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed in an easterly direction over Bengal, and on the 18th, or the last day of the week, had apparently reached Burma. Hence rain had been received at many stations in Bengal, and the falls were general and rather heavy in the eastern and southern districts, while conditions over Bengal remained very disturbed. On the 19th, or the first day of the present week, the barometric changes in Bengal were irregular, a low pressure area existed over the Central Provinces and the neighbouring parts of Orissa, and also over the northern parts of Madras. Pressure was also falling rather rapidly on this day at Darjeeling, pointing to the existence of disturbed weather in and near the Himalayas, and at Gnatong a snowstorm was reported, while a few rain showers also fell in parts of Bengal. On the 20th the area of low pressure had apparently passed over the north of the Bay, and pressure was generally rising over Bengal, though at Gnatong a fall had been reported. The weather from the 19th to the 20th had been very disturbed in Bengal, heavy rain had fallen at many stations, and in several cases the rain accompanied rather severe thunderstorms, while at Jessore hail was also reported. On the 21st the area of low pressure in the Bay apparently filled up or disappeared, and weather generally in Bengal improved rapidly and the sky cleared to a great extent, and only a few light showers were reported, and these were confined to parts of Orissa and South-East Bengal. In the hills, however, the disturbed conditions continued and Gnatong again reported a snowstorm. On this date, however, a fresh barometric disturbance or depression was entering North-Western India from the westward, which was advancing in an easterly direction, and on the 22nd one barometric depression was over the Central Provinces while a second large depression existed over the Punjab. Hence pressure was falling generally in Bengal except in and near the hills, and rain had recommenced at some of the Bihar and Chutia Nagpur stations, while at Gnatong snow was again reported. On the 23rd the depression from the Central Provinces had reached Orissa, and the depression in the Punjab had passed eastward into the hills, while a new depression had advanced from the westward into North-Western India. Hence again conditions were exceedingly disturbed and rain became general in Bengal, and on the 23rd heavy rain, exceeding one and two inches, was reported at many stations, while Gnatong again reported a snowstorm. On the 24th the depression in Orissa had advanced a little in an easterly direction and had become more diffused, while pressure was generally rising slowly, and rain was again received in the southern districts of Bengal. Finally on the 25th pressure had again risen slowly in Bengal, and apparently the depression was moving from Orissa in a south-easterly direction, but weather in Bengal was still very disturbed, and over the whole of the south of the province the sky was heavily overcast, though from the 24th to the 25th the rainfall reported was confined to parts of South-West Bengal, Bihar and Chutia Nagpur. Hence throughout the whole week and quite up to its close very unsettled weather prevailed in Bengal, and considerable amounts of rain had fallen over the whole province.

Pressure.—Notwithstanding the passage of several depressions over and near the province during the week, the general pressure has been in excess of the normal by from about 0·02″ to 0·04.″ At the extreme western and south-western stations, however, which have been mainly affected by the passage of the depressions, pressure has been in slight defect of the normal, and this has been the case at Gopalpur, False Point, and Cuttack in Orissa, and also at Hazaribagh and Ranchi. At Darjeeling also pressure has been no less than 0·04″ in defect of the normal.

Temperature.—Owing to the unusually heavy rainfall during the week, and the heavily clouded skies in the plains, and to the comparatively large snowfall in the hills, temperature has been unusually low during the week, and the mean of the province has been no less than 4·1° in defect of the normal. This defect has been largest in South-West Bengal, South Bihar and Chota Nagpur, where it has been about 6° and upwards.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. It will be seen that the defects have again been largest in the day or maximum temperatures, which have been in many cases 10° and upwards in defect, and at Burdwan the day temperature has been even 14·1° lower than usual. At Calcutta the defect in the maximum temperature has been 9·7°:—

Rainfall.—The falls during the week have been exceedingly heavy, and have averaged nearly two and-a-half inches in Chota Nagpur and South-West Bengal, more than one and-a-half inches in East Bengal and South Bihar, an inch and-a-quarter in Orissa and North Bengal, and about two-thirds of an inch in North Bihar. It is needless to say that these falls have been many times larger than the normal for the week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 25th of February 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

Britto bank—Disappearance of N.-W. Whistle buoy.

With reference to notice to Mariners, No. 156, dated 5th September last, issued by this office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No. 65 of 1893) that the automatic whistle buoy (black and white vertical stripes) previously moored on the north-west side of Britto bank, has disappeared. The bank therefore is now only marked by the north-east whistle buoy.

Approximate position of north-west buoy, lat. 10° 29½′ N., long. 107° 50½′ E.

As there seems to be a difficulty in maintaining these buoys in such exposed positions, especially during the north-east monsoon, a note has been placed on the Admiralty charts, that "The buoys marking the banks are liable to drift."

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation, the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a pas-port that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals—All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

19. Fittings.—Vessels must have their masts, high awnings, and funnels fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed, and no bamboos or poles shall be erected on or by vessels when at anchor.

20. Conduct of navigation.—Vessels are prohibited from making fast to any portion of the lockgates or gearing, and steamers are prohibited from making fast the tow lines of their boats until the latter are clear of the locks. Steamers are prohibited from lashing boats or barges alongside while proceeding within locks. Towing ropes of a greater length than 50 feet are not to be used in a canal. The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

22. If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boats seized under the "Canals Act," he shall notify the seizure in the most public manner available.

23. In the event of any damage or injury being occasioned to the canal works by wilfulness or negligence on the part of any person in charge of a vessel, the navigation officers may detain the vessel at any point within the canal for a period not exceeding 48 hours; provided that, within that period, the navigation officers shall lodge a complaint against such person in charge of the vessel before a Magistrate under section XVI of the "Canals Act."

24. For any contravention of rules 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, the person in charge of the vessel shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs 50.

25. All offences against the provisions of these rules shall be punishable as provided for in section XVIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all fines imposed may be recovered in the manner mentioned in section XVII of the same Act.

26. The term "navigation officers" as used in the foregoing rules shall include the persons alluded to in section VIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all Public Works Officers or Subordinates in charge of the canal not below the grade of sub-overseer.

27. The canals may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to them on one month's notice of the intention so to close them being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency, the canals may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No. 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893:—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

A.—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bonâ fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duly certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gurreah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal boats.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or luggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or luggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders: but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section II, Act V of 1864 (B.C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 16th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 18th January 1882, page 60.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

Incidental charges for colouring, mounting and binding maps and for packing cases are included in the bills submitted by this office. When accounts are settled by book debit, the rules as to the disposal of the duplicate and triplicate copies of the invoice printed thereon must be strictly adhered to. Cash payments include payments by Money Order, Remittance Transfer Receipts and Drafts on Calcutta. Stamps and Receipts for payment into Treasuries are not accepted.

In the case of confidential maps, the previous sanction of the Government of India in the Military Department must be obtained, except in the case of specially authorised officers. (N.B.—Trans-frontier maps are, as a general rule, confidential.)

4. The mode of transit and address or station to which the maps are to be sent should invariably be specified.

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE in reply said:—"Sir, there has been, if I may be permitted to say so, a not unprofitable discussion on this motion of mine, and it is admitted that, if this matter were now before the Council for the first time, the case which I have attempted to lay before the Council is one which could not be satisfactorily met, that it is, in other words, a strong case. But it is said, and this is the only answer that has been attempted, that this is not now before the Council for the first time, and that the industries concerned ought to be satisfied with the partial relief secured to them by the Bill as it left the Select Committee. But I say with great submission that the whole question, whether these commercial interests should be subjected to taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, is before the Council. It is because the present state of things is undesirable, because the injustice of it is apparent, that legislation has been recommended and held to be absolutely necessary.

"It is said that, the Committee of 1891 favoured a proposition adverse to that for which I am contending. But it is to be observed from the proceedings of that Committee that, the Chamber of Commerce was not addressed till the fundamental lines had been previously settled. Sir Henry Harrison stated so in express terms. When the Chamber and other bodies came before that Committee they were met, so to speak, with a foregone conclusion on this point. But notwithstanding that, the general principle was over and over again asserted after the door had been practically closed to its admission. In the first meeting, at which Mr. Malcolm, the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was present, he contended 'that jute warehouses should be placed on the same footing as regards taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade as residential houses, mills and depôts for goods other than jute;' and quoted figures to show that, the value of the property (not jute) destroyed by conflagrations was nearly equal to the value of the jute which had been burned. He returned to the charge again at a later meeting, and said that 'he could only repeat what he urged on the last occasion, namely, that to do justice to all and to conform to the practice of other countries, there should be equal taxation on all classes for the support of the fire-brigade, and that the proposal to reduce the fees on jute warehouses by 50 per cent. was only a tardy act of justice to jute industries; but not, in the opinion of the Chamber, that entire measure of justice which they were entitled to claim, which consisted in jute owners being subjected to equal taxation with others whose goods are likewise protected by the fire-brigade.'

"It was in consequence of that position of affairs, that in a letter of this Government to the Government of India, I find it stated that the recommendations which the Committee arrived at were arrived at mainly by a sort of compromise and did not profess to be passed on any definite principle whatever. It was, in fact, the result of that species of drift which the late Sir Henry Harrison, to whose memory so just a tribute was paid by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON the other day, pointed out, was not due to any deliberate policy on the part of the Government. For these reasons, I venture to submit that the conclusions to which the Fire-brigade Committee arrived, are not of much weight in this matter. It is true they did suggest that, the jute industry should be relieved to the extent of 50 per cent., but that suggestion was made tentatively. It was sought to ascertain if it was possible, whilst not ignoring that there existed great difficulty in carrying out that principle. It is said that the Bill as it has left the Select Committee provides a final solution of the difficulty. But I venture to think that, in the attempted solution proposed by the majority of the Committee, so many serious difficulties exist that the solution can only be described, as Sir George Jessel once said of a case before him:—'It reminds me of nothing so much as a cullender, it is so full of holes.'

"It was suggested by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON that Calcutta is not so extraordinary a place as I spoke of it in the language of sarcasm, and that its position on the borders of the tropics renders it incomparable to other large cities. Bombay is not so far from the equator as Calcutta. Rangoon is at about the same distance, and Madras is nearer the equator than Calcutta. Further, it is said that, but for the jute industry, the fire-brigade would not have been constituted in its present state of efficiency. That may be. But for the growth of inhabitants in this town, it would still perhaps be permeated with those large open sewers which existed some twenty years ago. The frightful mortality from cholera necessarily led to increased taxation for sanitary purposes. Could it be suggested that an aditional tax should be imposed upon persons coming into Calcutta so as to prevent the population from growing, and rendering it less necessary to construct sewers and other sanitary appliances? I trow not.

"Now as to the meaning of the word 'permanent' in regard to fires. It has been said that, those are important fires which for a length of time require the services of the fire-brigade. Surely that is not the test of importance in regard to fires! It may be of great importance to the fire-brigade as regards the amount of work it has to perform. But is it suggested that those fires are therefore the more dangerous? Not so. Which really are the most dangerous fires? The fires which are dangerous are those which blaze and spread within so short a space of time, that very often the fire-brigade is unable to come before the conflagration has most widely spread. I am therefore not surprised to find that, the time occupied in putting out fires in jute warehouses is three days in the one and in bastis only five hours.

"There is one further matter to which I desire to refer. The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton referred to a paper which he laid before the Select Committee with respect to the rate of insurance, as showing that jute presses paid a premium of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The hon'ble gentleman said that a rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in jute press-houses is an excessive rate as compared with the rates of insurance on godowns with loose jute (2 per cent.) and on baled jute (one per cent.) and $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent. on private houses. But I wish to draw the Council's attention to the note which is set opposite to that statement in the paper. In that note, the Commercial Union Company through their manager point out that, the premium on jute presses is $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., such premium is subject to a deduction of from 5 to 15 per cent, according to the nature of the appliances for putting out fires. But there is another note, and that the latest quotation which the writer had heard of was $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. less 30 per cent., or nearly one-third, so that the rates have come down to one-third of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

"One word more as to another matter, and I conclude. It is with reference to the observation of the Hon'ble Mr. Lee dealing with the question of Act II of 1888. I had not forgotten the language of section 37. I did not refer to it because it is irrelevant. It is irrelevant because, when the Municipal Act was passed, the cost of the fire-brigade was borne by the jute and other industries, and the amendment of the Fire-brigade Act was not then in the contemplation of the Legislature. Consequently, although section 36 says, that the maintenance of the fire-brigade is one of the proper objects of municipal expenditure, it did not find a place in section 37. The object of my amendment is to remedy that state of affairs.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Lee referred at some length to the discussion which took place on the passing of Act II of 1888, with respect to education. But with every respect for educational projects, I for one do not see that the preservation of life and the protection of property from fire, stand on the same footing as education.

"Again, it is observed that, there is a project here of having special rates, which extend to all classes of property, and in that I am at one in saying that, I recognise to the full, the propriety of the imposition of these rates if there are to be differential rates on occupiers rather than upon the owners of houses. That, however, is a matter for subsequent consideration.

"I do not make any observations about the proportion of jute fires to other fires. I could not follow, though with every desire to do so, the Hon'ble Mr. Lee in his attempted explanation of this matter. I still understand him to say that, 90 per cent. of the property consumed belongs to the jute industry. With the Hon'ble Mr. Risley, I venture to express the opinion that, the value of property consumed is no element whatever in the consideration of the matter now before the Council.

"The time has now arrived in which this question, which has been so repeatedly brought forward, but which has hitherto not received that full discussion which is necessary, should receive its final solution. There can be but one final solution—the acceptance of the principle of a general rate of taxation. If that solution is not arrived at on the present occasion, I feel sure that the time will come when the justice and fairness of the demand which I now formulate in this Council in this matter will render itself more and more apparent."

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE'S Motion being put to the vote the Council divided:—

Ayes 4.	Noes 7.
The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.	The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.	The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Motion, that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, was then put to the vote and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 25th February, 1893.

A.—The embankments in Orissa which are maintained under Act XXXII of 1855.

B.—The embankments enumerated in Schedule D of Act VI (B.C.) of 1873, among which are included those of the Burdwan Ráj estate taken over in 1804, and some additional lengths which have at various times been added to the schedule under the provisions of section 43 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882, as also two short lengths of embankments in the Pabna and Bankura districts.

Embankments of the second class are situated in several districts, the most important being those on the banks of the river Gandak in the Champaran, Muzaffarpur and Saran districts, and those in the Midnapore district. These again are divided into two classes—

C.—Those in which the cost of maintenance is recovered from the persons interested by the payment of a fixed annual charge under a contract extending over a term of years not exceeding 30, as provided for in sections 63-68 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882.

D.—Those on which the cost of maintenance is recovered from the persons benefitted by an annual apportionment of the actual charges.

2. The lengths of embankments in each class and the total charges for maintenance during the year were as follows :—

The distribution of the above by districts is given in the appended statement B.

3. In Orissa the total length of the embankments at the close of the year was less than that in 1890-91 by 45 miles 2,920 feet, owing to the formal exclusion from the list of certain embankments which had been superseded by more recently-constructed canal and other embankments. All these embankments are now being re-classified according to their comparative utility for purposes connected with the new settlement in progress in Orissa, and further reductions may not improbably be effected. The cost of repairs fell from Rs. 96,091 in 1890-91 to Rs. 77,565 in 1891-92, notwithstanding heavy damages caused by floods and by a cyclone which visited the district during the year under review.

(A) Embankments of the first class in Orissa.

4. In addition to the ordinary repairs to embankments, certain original works were carried out during the year at a cost of Rs. 13,803, the principal of which was the construction of six groynes at Pattamundi close to the canal in order to prevent further erosion of the right bank of the river Brahmani.

(B) Embankments of the first class—Schedule D and other Government embankments in Pabna and Bankura districts.

5. The total length of Schedule D embankments was nearly the same as last year. Two Government embankments in Pabna and Bankura were added during the year, but have not yet been brought on the schedule. Decreases occurred owing to the abandonment of 3 miles 4,082 feet of embankments in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts, while 2 miles 1,690 feet were added in the Rajshahi district. The actual charges for repairs, however, increased from Rs. 1,82,276 in the previous year to Rs. 2,37,275 in 1891-92. The main causes of the increase, amounting to Rs. 54,999, were as follows

6. A new embankment, called the Godágari road embankment, 2 miles 1,690 feet in length, was constructed in the Rajshahi district at a cost of Rs. 24,934 for the protection of the country north of Rampur-Boalia up to the Baral river, while four small retired lines of embankment, costing Rs. 5,860, in addition to Rs. 2,892 for land compensation, were necessitated in the 24-Parganas district by the encroachment of the rivers Hooghly and Bidiadhari and Diamond Harbour Creek, which seriously threatened the safety of the embankments at those places. The removal of portions of the embankments, including 3¼ miles of Schedule D and 1½ miles of Takávi embankments on the right bank of the Damodar river to allow a free passage for the flood spill, coupled with the necessity for filling in breaches made by the floods, caused an expenditure of Rs. 24,013 in the Burdwan district, and in Midnapore Rs. 9,125 were spent on emergent repairs due to flood damages and the construction of retired lines. The last-mentioned district was the only one in which any high floods occurred, and here they were of ordinary character.

7. In the four districts mentioned above the cost of repairing these embankments aggregated Rs. 73,273 more than in the previous year, and savings were effected to the extent of Rs. 12,322 in the Murshidabad and Rs. 7,382 in the Hooghly districts. In theformer of these two districts the level to which the flood of the Bhagirathi river rose during the year was the lowest since the year 1883, but notwithstanding this the embankment was breached rather extensively in the 23rd mile at Mahula. No damage, however, resulted owing to the dwarf bunds which had been thrown up in rear of the main embankment during the year 1890-91 for the protection of the town of Berhampore. A diversion channel for the Gobra nala, involving a weir at the outfall, was constructed in rear of the Lalthákuri bund, and acted effectively in intercepting drainage water and thus preventing percolation under that embankment.

8. The embankments, which protect the Burdwan Ráj Estate in the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly, Birbhum, and Midnapore are kept up by Government in consideration of an addition of Rs. 53,742 to the land revenue of the estate. The cost of repairs during the year amounted to Rs. 89,246, against Rs. 69,794 in 1890-91.

9. The Government embankment in Pabna alluded to above and situated on the right bank of the river Ichamati is 5,150 feet in length, and was constructed in 1890-91 for the protection of the Pabna civil station. It was repaired during the year at a cost of Rs. 443. The other embankment added during the year at Bankura is 4,600 feet in length, and was constructed in 1889-90 for the protection of the Government estates Pithaipur and Rajarbari from the floods of the river Darkeswar. During the year Rs. 702 was expended on protective works.

(C) Embankments maintained by contract.

10. The length of embankments maintained by Government under contract with the persons interested was increased during the year by 4 miles 1,901 feet owing to the construction of retired lines in the Champaran district. The sums payable under contract compared with the outlay, including book charges for establishment and tools and plant, on account of the maintenance of these embankments, from the introduction of the system to the end of 1891-92 are shown in the following statement:—

The total amount payable yearly by the persons interested is Rs. 1,02,315, while the expenditure incurred purely on works and repairs amounted to Rs. 92,707, and including all charges to Rs. 1,35,214.* Government is therefore a loser of Rs. 32,899 on the results of the year.

11. Looking at the result of the year under review, the expenditure on repair works only in Midnapore, Muzaffarpur and Saran was within the contract amount, while in Champaran it was more than four times the amount owing to the erosion of the banks of the river Gandak, necessitating the construction of retired lines. In Saran a further expenditure of Rs. 8,759 was incurred by Government in surveying the river Gogra as a preliminary to deciding the question of embanking one or both banks. The cost of this survey is not included in the figures given above. The survey has been completed, and detailed estimates are under preparation for an embankment along the north bank from Gatni to Chapra.

(D) Embankments maintained on repayment of actual cost.

12. A decrease of 1 mile 2,047 feet occurred in the length of the embankments maintained under the system of annual apportionment of the actual charges, and the cost of repairs, excluding charges for establishment and tools and plant also fell from Rs. 14,551 in 1890-91 to Rs. 13,398 in the year under review.

13. The principal embankments maintained under this system are the Turkí main embankment on the right bank of the Bagmati river, in the Muzaffarpur district, and the Bazitpur and Monghyr embankments on the left bank of the river Ganges in the Darbhanga and Monghyr districts. The repairs of the Turkí bund were carried out at a cost of Rs. 5,617, against Rs. 8,228 in 1890-91, the reduction being mainly due to the absence of heavy floods. A scheme, having for its object the protection of a considerable tract of country from the floods of the river Bagmati, and involving the construction of a masonry weir in the Turki embankment, and raising a portion of the Titariya road at an estimated cost of Rs. 19,970, has been approved by the Chief Engineer in the Irrigation Department, and a notification for carrying out the work under the provisions of section 14 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882 was published in Part I, page 1141 of the Calcutta Gazette of 21st December 1892. The amount of the estimate was deposited in the Muzaffarpur Collectorate in January 1892 by the proprietors of the Kánti Concern, who are the persons principally interested in the work. Ordinary repairs of the Bazitpur and Monghyr embankments were carried out during the year at a cost comparing favourably with that incurred in 1890-91, no damage having been caused to the embankments by floods.

* Exclusive of a deduction of Rs. 5,217 under suspense accounts, which reduces the amount to Rs. 1,29,997.

14. In this class (D) are also included six drainage schemes carried out under the provisions of Act VI (B.C.) of 1880, the heaviest expenditure having been Rs. 77,375 on the Dainan basin scheme in Midnapur, including Rs. 37,954 for the construction of a sluice at Srirámpur, which was completed in August 1891.

15. An amended estimate, amounting to Rs. 65,344, for capitalization of the maintenance charges of the Dankúni Drainage Project was sanctioned in Bengal Government No. 1793*I.*, dated 21st December 1891, the date of apportionment of the capitalized amount being fixed as 1st April 1891, and an estimate, amounting to Rs. 5,178, being sanctioned to provide for the cost of repairs and maintenance during the year 1891-92, against which an expenditure of Rs. 4,070 was incurred. The annual cost of maintenance is calculated at Rs. 4,390, and it is expected that, on the average of a number of years, this amount will not be exceeded.

16. Details of the expenditure incurred during the year under review, the recoveries made and outstanding balances at the beginning and end of the year for each of the works in class D are given in the appended table A.

17. Among other works chargeable to the Provincial grant for agricultural works, the most important is the conversion of the Balliagahi Branch Canal into a drain, which was undertaken with the double object of improving the bed of the Rasúlpur river by causing an increased scour and of draining a tract of country known as the Barachanka jalla, and that lying to the west of the Argawal circuit embankment. In the above respects the work has so far proved successful, and it has further proved to be of considerable use as a navigation channel. The expenditure of the year amounted to Rs. 53,464. A sum of Rs. 1,119 was spent on remodelling the Partapkhali khal to provide for the drainage of a tract of 16 square miles of country in the Midnapore district. Repairs to the Balli Bhil drainage works involved an expenditure of Rs. 1,902. The question of the drainage of the south of the Midnapore district, involving proposals for the removal of the Argawal and Udbadal circuit embankments, and schemes for the retirement of the marginal embankments on the Rupnarayan, and for the abandonment of 31 miles of the Bhagirathi embankment in the Murshidabad district are still under consideration.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. W. ODLING,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

From—A. POWER, Esq., Commissioner of the Burdwan Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

WITH reference to your No. 6492C., dated the 21st December, to the address of the Board of Revenue, I have the honour to submit copy of a letter written by the Mukhtear of Moharani Swarnamoyi of Kasimbazar, to the Covenanted Deputy Collector of Howrah, waiving all her claims to compensation for her land in front of Shalimar House, required to be taken up for the new road connecting Howrah with the Botanical Gardens. It is reported that the actual value of the land is small, but the Moharani might have put in claims for severance which would have amounted to many thousands of rupees, which would have been very difficult to settle, and which, if accepted, would have made the road so expensive that it would have been impossible to construct it.

2. The road will not only be a great boon to the public, uniting Calcutta and Howrah with the Botanical Gardens along the riverside, but will also save a circuitous journey.

3. Mr. Grierson has suggested that she may be publicly thanked by Government for this very handsome gift. I support the Magistrate's recommendation.

Dated the 28th January 1893.

From—MOHARANI SWARNAMOYI, by her Mukhtear BABU TROYLUCKO NATH BARAT,
To—The Covenanted Deputy Collector, Howrah.

WITH reference to the notice No. 4 of 1892-93, dated the 21st December 1892, served upon me, requiring me to file a claim in respect of the acquisition of land required for the foreshore road in front of my Shalimar property in the village of Sibpur, I beg to state that I forego all my claims for compensation in respect of the acquisition of land aforesaid claimable under Act X of 1870.

No. 1272C., dated Calcutta, the 1st March 1893.

From—F. J. JOHNSTONE, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. Dept.,
To—The Commissioner of the Burdwan Division.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 681R.L., dated the 13th February 1893, submitting, for information, copy of a letter (dated the 28th January 1893) from the Mukhtear of the Moharani Swarnomoyi, of Kasimbazar, waiving all her claims to compensation for the land in front of Shalimar House required for constructing the Howrah foreshore road.

2. The actual value of the land given is small, but you rightly say that the Moharani might have put in claims for severance which would have amounted to many thousands of rupees. These, as you remark, would no doubt have been very difficult to settle, and, if accepted, would have made the foreshore road so very expensive that it would have been impossible to construct it.

3. In reply, I am to state that the Lieutenant-Governor notes with satisfaction this graceful act on the part of the Moharani in foregoing all her claims to compensation, and I am desired to request that you will convey to her the thanks of His Honour for her handsome gift, which will now enable the Government to proceed with the construction of the road, which will be a great boon to the public.

4. The correspondence on this subject will be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

The bright sunshine after the rain is also a little injurious to the pulses, as the pods crackle and the grain is thus thrown away in fields. The sunshine is, however, very favourable to poppy. Lancing of poppy is in progress, and the yield is reported good, about 6 annas collection having been already made. Fodder and water for cattle sufficient. Slight damage is reported to have been done to peas and opium by rain, but the favourable weather which has followed has given an impetus to the later sowing of poppy, that it will fully if not more than make up for the slight loss sustained by the first sowing. Price of common rice at Sasaram has risen by 4 chitaks in the rupee; elsewhere it is stationary. Cattle in good condition with sufficient fodder and water.

Mustard being harvested, and the yield is estimated at 16 annas. The late continuous rain and cloudy weather spoiled the poppy leaves. 36	Muzaffarpur ,, 4, '93	Nil	Weather—cloudy in the beginning of the week, but now seasonable. The rabi crops, except for the damage done by the late rainfall, are doing well. The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2·1 lower; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 7th March 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 4TH OF MARCH 1893.

AT the close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed through Orissa travelling in an easterly direction, and conditions in Bengal on the 25th of February, or the last day of that week, were unusually disturbed over practically the whole province. Skies were heavily clouded, and abnormal north-easterly winds prevailed over a considerable part of the province, but on the other hand pressure was in excess of the normal by amounts ranging up to about a tenth of an inch. On the 26th, or the first day of the present week, the pressure changes were decidedly irregular, while temperature had fallen rapidly, and fairly general rain had been received from the 25th to the 26th, the falls being as a rule not heavy. The effects of the depression had, however, to a great extent disappeared, and the sky was clearing rapidly on the 26th in all districts. On the 27th pressure had risen moderately and by nearly equal amounts in all districts, and temperature had also risen rather briskly. A steady north-westerly wind current had set in over the whole province except at one or two stations in Orissa, the sky was only lightly clouded, weather had become fine and settled, and rainfall was practically entirely absent. From this date up till the end of the week, the changes of meteorological conditions have been of comparatively little importance except as regards temperature, and fine and fairly settled weather has prevailed, while there has been a steady increase in the temperature. Thus for the 24 hours from the 27th to the 28th of February, the mean temperature of a large part of the province was from 10° to 12° below the normal, and this defect has been steadily reduced till on March 4th it only equalled from 4° to 6°. Pressure, on the other hand, fell slowly on February 28th and on March 1st and 2nd, but on the 3rd and 4th it commenced to increase again, and on the 4th it was in excess of the normal by amounts ranging generally from 0·12″ to 0·16″. Throughout the whole of the last five days of the week a steady westerly and north-westerly wind has been blowing over the greater part of the province, though towards the close of the week there was a distinct tendency for south-westerly winds to set in at the southern stations. Skies have also been generally only lightly clouded, and from the 26th of February up till March the 4th practically no rain whatever was reported over the whole of Bengal.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure during the week have been small, and the average pressure for the week has been in excess of the normal by amounts ranging from about 0·11″ at the eastern stations up to 0·15″ in the west of the province.

Temperature—As stated previously, has been rising steadily almost throughout the week, and the very abnormal conditions of temperature which obtained during the second half of February have partially disappeared, though even at the close of the week under review the mean temperature of the province was from 4° to 6° lower than usual. The mean temperature of the whole province for the week averaged 7·7° below the normal for the period, while in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur the defect has equalled nearly 10°.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. The defect, it will be seen, has been most marked in the maximum or day temperatures, which at such stations as Cuttack, Calcutta, Burdwan, Patna, Gaya and Hazaribagh have been from 10° to 13° in defect of the normal:—

Rainfall.—The rainfall during the week has been small, the heaviest falls having occurred in Orissa, where they have averaged 0·62 inch. In the other divisions the falls have generally averaged about a tenth of an inch and less. Hence the only division in which the fall has been above or even equal to the normal has been Orissa, where it has been about twice as much as usual.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 4th of March 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

Britto bank—Disappearance of N.-W. Whistle buoy.

WITH reference to notice to Mariners, No. 156, dated 5th September last, issued by this office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No. 65 of 1893) that the automatic whistle buoy (black and white vertical stripes) previously moored on the north-west side of Britto bank, has disappeared. Inner passage or South channel.—Magpie rock buoy, conical, black, surmounted by a black triangle, is moored in 8 fathoms water, about 2 cables eastward of the rock, and about 1$\frac{1}{10}$ miles south-east of Hainan point. Approximate position, lat. 20° 8′ 25″ N., long. 110° 42′ 40″ E. This buoy must be left on the port hand entering the passage from the south-east

Hainan head bank buoy, conical, red, surmounted by a black inverted frustum cage, is moored in 4$\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms water, with Hainan point bearing S. 67° W., distant about 9 cables. This buoy should be left on the starboard hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

Hainan reef buoy, conical, black, surmounted by a black ball, is moored in 12 fathoms water, about 2$\frac{1}{2}$ cables northward of the Outer rock at Hainan point reef, marked in plan of Inner passage "drives 4 feet." This buoy must be left on the port hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

Note.—Vessels using the Inner passage should pass about 3 cables eastward of Magpie rock buoy, and then steer to pass Hainan head bank buoy at about the same distance, taking care to guard against being set towards the shore, remembering that it is safe to borrow towards the banks on the starboard hand, of which the lead will give warning, while on the other side the bottom is rocky and uneven, and the lead gives no warning. Hainan reef buoy may be rounded at the distance of about one cable.

The depths given are at low water spring tides.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals—All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations. Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

19. Fittings.—Vessels must have their masts, high awnings, and funnels fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed, and no bamboos or poles shall be erected on or by vessels when at anchor.

20. Conduct of navigation.—Vessels are prohibited from making fast to any portion of the lockgates or gearing, and steamers are prohibited from making fast the tow lines of their boats until the latter are clear of the locks. Steamers are prohibited from lashing boats or barges alongside while proceeding within locks. Towing ropes of a greater length than 50 feet are not to be used in a canal. The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

22. If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boats seized under the "Canals Act," he shall notify the seizure in the most public manner available.

23. In the event of any damage or injury being occasioned to the canal works by wilfulness or negligence on the part of any person in charge of a vessel, the navigation officers may detain the vessel at any point within the canal for a period not exceeding 48 hours; provided that, within that period, the navigation officers shall lodge a complaint against such person in charge of the vessel before a Magistrate under section XVI of the "Canals Act."

24. For any contravention of rules 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, the person in charge of the vessel shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs 50.

25. All offences against the provisions of these rules shall be punishable as provided for in section XVIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all fines imposed may be recovered in the manner mentioned in section XVII of the same Act.

26. The term "navigation officers" as used in the foregoing rules shall include the persons alluded to in section VIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all Public Works Officers or Subordinates in charge of the canal not below the grade of sub-overseer.

27. The canals may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to them on one month's notice of the intention so to close them being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency, the canals may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No. 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C.) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893:—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B.L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

A.—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bonâ fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duty certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gureah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal Coals.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or huggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or huggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders; but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section 11, Act V of 1864 (B.C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 10th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 18th January 1882, page 60.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 67.

The Council met at the Council Chamber on Saturday, the 25th February, 1893.

Present:

The HON'BLE SIR CHARLES ALFRED ELLIOTT, K.C.S.I., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, presiding.

The HON'BLE J. T. WOODROFFE, Offg. Advocate-General.

The HON'BLE T. T. ALLEN.

The HON'BLE H. J. S. COTTON, C.S.I.

The HON'BLE H. H. RISLEY, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE J. LAMBERT, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE H. LEE.

THE HON'BLE DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE A. H. WALLIS.

The HON'BLE GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER.

The HON'BLE P. PLAYFAIR.

The HON'BLE MAHARAJAH RAVANESHWAR PROSAD SING BAHADUR.

NEW MEMBER.

The Hon'ble Maharajah Rav'aneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur took his seat in Council.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton moved that the clauses of the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe moved that, in clause (g) of section 3, the word "coir" be omitted.

He said:—"It is right that I should explain how, notwithstanding that the Bill as settled by the Select Committee, of which I was a member, deals with 'coir' as an inflammable substance, this amendment comes to be moved by me. At the time when the Bill was before the Select Committee, a memorial was placed before us from the Secretary to the Calcutta Trades' Association, in which it was urged that 'coir' was not inflammable; that if thrown on a live fire, it would not blaze but only smoulder; that seventy-five per cent. of the rope made in Bengal is made of imported coir yarn, and that during the eighty years these roperies had been in existence, no fire had occurred in them.

"I believe the Select Committee were much impressed by this memorial, and they would not have included 'coir' amongst the highly inflammable substances, were it not for a fire having occurred in which a considerable amount of coir had been destroyed. Under these circumstances, 'coir' was put into the clauses of the Bill when it was passing through the Select Committee. Since then a further representation has been made on the subject, not only to myself, but also, I believe, to other members of the Council, with the result that we are satisfied that the article, though inflammable, is not of that extremely inflammable character which would justify its retention in this clause. It can, however, hereafter be dealt with under section 26, clause (a), of the Bill, which provides that the Commissioners may, for the purpose of further providing the cost of the fire-brigade, levy a rate not exceeding two and-a-half per cent. on buildings employed for the storage of any other inflammable substance or thing not specifically mentioned in clause (g) of section 3. With these explanations and observations, I move this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert said:—"As far as I am aware, there has been only one fire in a godown in which coir and cocoanut fibre is stored, and that occurred on the 11th of January last. It was not a very important fire; and there are not many store-houses which would contribute to this tax, if coir were included amongst the inflammable articles. On these grounds, I support the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis said:—"Since this question was considered by the Select Committee, it has been represented to me by one or two firms interested in the coir industry that 'coir' should not be included amongst goods of a highly inflammable nature, as coir yarn of itself will not burn. I am glad to hear the Hon'ble Mr. Lambert say that he has no knowledge of any other case of fire in a coir godown. I may mention that the fire which recently took place in Ezra Street was in a very small godown about 50 feet long by 10 feet by 8 feet in measurement, which contained 3,500 bundles of coir of 30lb each, and 50 bales of coir fibre. Out of this, 2,100 bundles coir yarn and the 50 bales of coir fibre were untouched by fire; the remaining 1,400 bundles were damaged, but half the yarn was picked out the next day and sold: not a single bundle was wholly burnt, and the damage was chiefly confined to four inches of the ends of the bundles. The fire was caused by the mats in which the fibre was packed catching fire, and when these were burnt, the fire was deprived of fuel, and did not spread. The godown adjoining which was only separated by a wooden door was burnt through, and yet the coir yarn in that godown, though resting against the door, did not communicate the fire to the contents. The fire broke out at 7 P.M., and for two hours after the brigade arrived there was no water available, yet the fire was put out about midnight. This shows that a coir godown is not so dangerous as to justify it being classed under the definition of 'warehouse.'"

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I support the amendment proposed by the learned Advocate-General. Coir, I understand, is not inflammable, neither is ship-chandlery as distinguished from the articles separately mentioned under section 3, nor is linseed oil; and when the vendors of these articles realize, as their more alert neighbours have done, that their godowns and yards are about to be specially taxed for the support of the fire-brigade, it is fully to be expected that they, too, will raise a protest. I would suggest, with your Honour's approval, that 'ship-chandlery' and 'linseed oil' be also omitted from clause (9) of section 3 of the Bill. And if your Honour will permit this amendment to be put to the Council without formal notice, I beg leave to submit it."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE'S motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR'S motions that, in clause (5) of section 3, the words "nor linseed oil" be inserted after the figures "1886," and that in clause (9) of the same section, the word "ship-chandlery" be omitted, were also put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"As the amendments Nos. 2 to 6 in the List of Business standing against my name relate to the same matter, I ask permission to refer to them together as one amendment. The matters involved in these amendments relate to the power of the Commissioners to grant or refuse licenses. The Select Committee have introduced an alteration in section 6 of the original Bill, the effect of which is to withdraw the power of granting or refusing licenses from the Commissioners and to put that power in the hands of the Chairman. The system of granting licenses to warehouses was first introduced by Act IV of 1866, which provided that licenses should be obtained from the Justices. Then Act II of 1872 repealed so much of Act IV of 1866 as related to the granting and refusing of licenses to jute warehouses, and that Act provided that it should be within the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to grant or refuse licenses; and Act V of 1879 conferred those powers on the Commissioners at a special meeting. Act IV of 1883, which repealed Act V of 1879, also retained these powers in the Commissioners at a special meeting.

"The Committee which was appointed in 1891 under the presidency of Sir Henry Harrison recommended, amongst other things, that the power of granting licenses should remain with the Municipality, and the Bill, which was introduced into this Council by the late Sir Henry Harrison, than whom I may say, without fear of contradiction, few persons can claim greater experience in these matters, left the power of the Commissioners in this behalf untouched; but the Select Committee have thought fit to withdraw this power from the Commissioners. They, however, did not assign any reason in their Report why this power has been withdrawn from the Commissioners. They merely say that this power has been reserved to the Chairman, but why it has been taken from the Commissioners and given to the Chairman does not appear. Nor do I find anything in the statement made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill when presenting the Report of the Select Committee showing why it is that the Select Committee thought fit to take away this power from the Commissioners.

"It seems to me, Sir, that this proposal of the Select Committee is opposed to the spirit of Local Self-Government, which, I take it, it is the intention of the Government of this Province to encourage, develop and extend as far as practicable. With reference to this provision of the amended Bill, I find that the Commissioners have sent in a report in support of my amendment, in which they say:—

'Section 8 of the Bill modifying section 6 of the present Fire-Brigade Act (Act IV of 1883, B.C.)—The Commissioners must beg leave to protest against this section, which deprives them of the power which they now possess to grant licenses to jute warehouses, and vests this power in the Chairman or in a Committee appointed with the consent of the Chairman. This provision is in conflict with the principle which runs through the whole of the present Municipal Act, by which the Commissioners in meeting direct and control the proceedings of the Chairman in all matters. Nor, indeed, has any case been made out for this change in the law. For in the only instance where there has been some hesitation on the part of the Commissioners to grant a license to a jute warehouse, viz., in respect of premises No. 15, Kassi Mitter's Ghat Street, belonging to Messrs. Finlay, Muir & Co., such license was eventually granted on the conditions suggested by the Commissioners being accepted by Messrs. Finlay, Muir & Co. And even if it were admitted that the Commissioners made a mistake in this case, they submit that one isolated instance like this is not sufficient ground to justify the withdrawal from them of this power, which they claim that they have on the whole satisfactorily exercised.'

"I find that the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, the Chairman of the Corporation, was a member of the Select Committee of the Council on this Bill; but whether in agreeing with the Committee he referred the matter to the Commissioners and obtained their assent to this provision or not, does not appear. We find, however, that the Commissioners themselves protest against this alteration, and ask that the power of granting licenses be restored to them. As no reason has been assigned why this power has been taken away from the Commissioners, I submit that it ought not to be taken away; and if this view is accepted by the Council, section 9 of the Bill will be unnecessary. I therefore move that in section 5, the words 'Chairman of the' be omitted, the effect of which will be to restore the power which the Commissioners have exercised for over twenty-six years."

The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair said:—"The views of the mercantile community, including the Hydraulic Press Association, upon the amendment proposed by the hon'ble member, may be found in the letter addressed by the Chamber of Commerce, dated the 22nd of September last, to the Government of Bengal, and are couched in these words which I ask permission to read:—

'In dealing with the general question of the grant of a license, the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce would point out that, under the existing Act, the machinery employed is as cumbrous and unbusiness-like as it is possible to conceive. By section 6 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1883, the granting of a license rests within the discretion of the Commissioners at a special meeting. It is impossible that such a system should work smoothly or well. The Committee would therefore suggest that, however the questions dealt with in this letter may be settled, there should be a provision of law confining the granting, refusing, cancelling or re-granting of licenses, if licenses are to be resorted to, to a small working committee, composed of, say, the Chairman of a municipality and three or four Commissioners holding office for a given time.'

"I believe I am correct in saying that, out of respect to these views, the Select Committee drafted sections 6, 7, 8 and 9 of the Bill now before Council, conferring power upon the Chairman of the Commissioners to grant licenses. If the procedure in the granting of licenses has been 'unbusiness-like' and 'cumbrous' in the past, when only a limited number of licenses have been required in connection with jute and cotton warehouses, the inconvenience to the public under the same system is likely to be much enhanced by the additional number of licenses made compulsory on trades specified in clause (9) of section 3 of the Bill. It has become all the more necessary, therefore, that the routine observed in the consideration and granting of licenses should be altered. It is a general experience that large Committees impede and protract the despatch of business; and, in public estimation, the Commissioners in general meeting have not escaped from this fault. I hold that a license should be obtainable by any person whose premises are constructed in conformity with the requirements of the Act and are situated in a locality recognized as suitable for the trade. Such license should be forthcoming promptly after inspection, and the inspection should be made on application. To protect traders from inconvenience and possible loss, it is necessary that it should be so. It has been a great hardship to jute merchants to have to wait weeks, and in some instances many months, before a license is granted, and while the Municipal Commissioners in general meeting assembled hold an academic discussion over the application. I cannot, therefore, support the amendment proposed by the hon'ble member."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I feel bound to oppose this motion. By grouping all these motions together, the hon'ble member has not, I venture to think, a little obscured the real question at issue. As regards the proposed amendment to section 5, for instance, it is obviously unnecessary for an applicant for a license to do more than to apply in writing to the Chairman of the Commissioners. The case is the same as regards the proposed amendment of section 6. The real question is in respect of sections 7 and 8, and the suggested omission of section 9, which provides that the Commissioners can have, and in all probability will almost invariably have, in the form of a Special Committee therein provided for, the power to exercise the functions of the Chairman under this Act with his consent. It appears to me that it is not only on the ground of the delays which have taken place in the granting of licenses, as explained to us in Select Committee, but also that there has been not unfrequently something which is described on the other side of the Atlantic as 'lobbying'—various persons putting pressure on the Commissioners to vote for the grant or refusal of licenses—that it is eminently desirable that the power of granting or refusing licenses should be vested in the Chairman, and, with his consent, in a Special Committee of the Commissioners. The Select Committee in framing this section of the Bill had in view the selection of Commissioners who, from their position, knowledge and experience, would be able to exercise proper and due control in the matter of granting or refusing licenses.

"I cannot, however, sit down without referring to the observation of the hon'ble mover of these amendments that he did not know whether Mr. Lee, who was the Chairman of the Corporation and a member of the Select Committee, had the consent of the Commissioners to vote in the manner in which he did. It seems to me that there is involved in that observation a suggestion which is not tolerable. I venture to assert that hon'ble members of this Council, whether in Council or in Select Committee, do not stand in the position of delegates, and are not and cannot for one moment be supposed to be bound by any orders or any directions emanating from any source whatever."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I think it possible to suggest an arrangement which may meet the suggestion of the hon'ble mover of these amendments, and also, perhaps, be accepted by the gentlemen opposite who have opposed it. I do think there is considerable force in the contention of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder that the innovation introduced in the Bill is an encroahment on the powers which have been exercised for a great many years by the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta; and I would be exceedingly reluctant to identify myself with any such encroachment. But this is due, I think, mainly to the fact that, as the law now stands, licenses can only be granted by the Municipal Commissioners at a special meeting convened for the purpose. This means, in effect, that the whole of the Commissioners in a body deliberate on the question, and there can be no doubt whatever that, when an executive matter of this kind is entrusted to a representative body of men like the Commissioners, it is apt to be badly handled; it is apt to be greatly delayed; and, as the learned Advocate-General has pointed out, there is great risk of what he has described as 'lobbying' or backstairs influence. I certainly think that it is very undesirable that questions of this nature should be taken up at a special meeting of the Commissioners. At the same time, I do not think sufficient cause has been made out for withdrawing the power of granting these licenses from the Commissioners altogether; and I conceive that this question of granting or refusing licenses to jute warehouses is eminently a power which should be dealt with by a Select Committee of the Commissioners appointed by the Commissioners for the purpose.

"This suggestion will, I believe, meet with the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's acceptance, and I hope that hon'ble members opposite will not object to it. It will come to this that, instead of the power resting in the Chairman and the Chairman approving of the appointment of a Select Committee for the purpose, the power will rest in the Commissioners and the Commissioners will appoint a Committee. In this way the rights of the Municipal Commissioners will not be in any way interfered with, while the matter may expect to receive as prompt and fair treatment as it would do under the present provisions of the Bill. I may add, with regard to the question of despatch in dealing with these applications, that it is dealt with by a separate section of the Bill (section 7), to which I see no objection has been taken; and if that section becomes law, I do not think there can be any reasonable grounds for apprehending unnecessary delay in the disposal of applications for the licensing of warehouses.

"If this suggestion of mine meets with the approval of the Council, the necessary verbal alterations needed in the Bill will be drafted without difficulty by the Secretary. I do not wish to commit myself to them while addressing the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis said:—"I think the hon'ble mover of the amendment has rather overrated the danger to municipal authority and privilege from the adoption of the recommendations of the Select Committee. The object, as I understood it in Select Committee, was to appoint a Special Committee to consider these questions of granting licenses where applications are submitted; but I cannot agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that a Special Committee should be appointed on each occasion. ['The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton said:—'My idea was that a Standing Committee should be appointed, not a Special Committee in each case.'] Then I fail to see the difference between the proposal made by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton and the provision contained in the Bill. As I take it, the effect of the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder would be that the existing Act shall remain in its present form. It has been shown by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair that the working of this portion of the Act has proved unsatisfactory; that it has caused endless delays, and consequent inconvenience and loss to those applying for licenses. The object, and I think the effect, of section 9 of the Bill will be the appointment, with the sanction of the Chairman of the Commissioners, of a Special Committee which would always consider all applications for jute licenses, or the licensing for places coming under the definition of warehouses; and I think such a Committee would be better able to do the work than a Committee which may be appointed from time to time. I see that the Committee of 1891 recommended that this power should be left in the hands of the several municipalities concerned; and the proposal in the Bill provides that the granting or refusal of licenses will be in the hands of a certain number of the Commissioners specially appointed by their colleagues on that behalf."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lee said:—"At the first meeting of this Council this Session, Your Honour observed, in explaining why the Fire-brigade Bill should be proceeded with while other measures should be for the present dropped, that—

'The Fire-brigade Bill is one of purely local interest, and the interests concerned in it are interests which, I understand, will be represented in much the same way in the revised Council as they are now. I believe, for instance, that it is intended that the Calcutta Municipality shall be represented in the enlarged Council; and for that reason I obtained sanction to the appointment to the Council of the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation to represent the Municipality while the present Bill is under discussion, in order that the Municipality may not be worse of, but may be as fully represented now as hereafter.'

"Sir, an executive officer who, during the eighteen years that he has had the honour of serving Her Majesty, has steadily set his face against the manufacture of speeches, as calculated rather to hinder than to advance work, must be but an inefficient spokesman of the Municipal Commissioners. But the duty has been thrown upon me, and I must endeavour to meet it.

"The principles that have hitherto guided the Legislature in respect of the imposition of taxes and the granting of licenses under the Jute Warehouses and Fire-brigade acts are now being attacked in more ways than one. The sums concerned are comparatively small; but the principles involved are important. The first principle that has been attacked has been that the sanitary funds of the Municipal Commissioners should not be whittled away. That attack was repelled last Saturday. It will have to be met again to-day. The next principle that is attacked is, that the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta should continue to have the control of the location of the objectionable trades in the city—objectionable from whatever cause. At present the Municipal Commissioners have the power, and exercise it, of locating hide godowns, mills for the pressing of oil, for the crushing of bones, offensive and dangerous trades of all kinds; and it is suggested that they should not have that power as regards the location of jute warehouses. There is only this difference between their powers in respect of hide godowns and the like and jute warehouses that a special safeguard is added to the public as regards jute warehouses. That, I understand, was the cause of the introduction of the words 'at a Special Meeting' in the last law; that only at a special meeting can the Commissioners give sanction to the licensing of new jute warehouses. In respect of all other objectionable and offensive trades and dangerous trades, applications for licenses come to the Secretary to the Corporation. The responsible officers of the Corporation, the Health Officer and the Engineer, report, and the Chairman, as a rule, grants or refuses the licenses without any further ado. In doubtful cases, he refers the papers to the General Committee; and the proceedings of the General Committee are then confirmed or rejected in general meeting. Now, Sir, it is proposed to make jute warehouses an exception to this general rule; and not only to take away this special safeguard, that is supposed to be added to the public by means of which the fact becomes publicly known when it is proposed to open a jute warehouse in a particular spot, so that the owners of adjacent properties might protest if need be, but it is proposed to take away altogether the controlling voice of the Commissioners as a body in respect of licenses for jute warehouses.

"The general principle, as I have shown, is, that the Chairman acts in executive matters on his own responsibility, but subject to the control, in special cases, of the Commissioners. In matters of this kind, really small matters but matters of sentiment, no wise Council, and I am sure not this Council, will interfere, unless a strong case is made out to necessitate the interference. What case has been made out? I have taken the trouble to go through the instances in which the Chairman and the Commissioners have for a time differed as to whether licenses should be granted or should not be granted to jute warehouses. I find that since the 3rd of March, 1887, there have been but four such cases; and in the end, in each of those cases, a satisfactory solution has been come to and the Chairman and the Commissioners have come in accord, the Chairman's view always prevailing. I believe that the real cause for this suggested change has been the delay regarding one particular license. In that case, a license has been granted. It was a doubtful case. I myself thought that the license should have been granted from the first; Sir Henry Harrison thought the same; the voting was very close; but it was a doubtful case; there was no cart space, and frequently it has been required that there should be cart space. It was not the licensing of a new warehouse, but simply the licensing for a particular purpose, of a shed, which had already been used for the purposes of a warehouse. It was simply that a license should be granted for sorting jute in a shed where warehouse work was being conducted. So that really it was not an extremely important matter, though much has been made of it. In regard to the Report from the Municipal Commissioners, which has already been referred to twice, I must inform the learned Advocate-General that I did not sign that Report. I did not sit as a member of the Committee when it framed the report, and I have only made two marginal notes in the report. Unfortunately, the letter with which I forwarded this Report, in my capacity of Chairman, to the Secretary of the Legislative Department, has not been put before the Council, because of an accident. The letter went to the wrong Secretary; but I explained in that letter that I did not form a member of that Special Committee. However, the remarks of that Committee, on this particular point at all events, have my entire concurrence, where they say:—

'Even if it were admitted that the Commissioners made a mistake in this case, they submit that one isolated instance like this is not sufficient ground to justify the withdrawal from them of this power, which they claim they have on the whole satisfactorily exercised.'

"Since the year 1887, there have been refused altogether 13 applications for licenses; and four were pending when the statement, I hold in my hand, was prepared. In one case the reasons given for refusing a license were that the site was unsuitable, and no passage was left convenient for the fire-brigade. That was the one case which was refused in 1887. Five cases were refused in 1888-89; two cases because no plans were supplied; two for want of cart space, and one, because the site was both unsuitable and the cart space was insufficient. In 1889-90 one application was refused for want of cart space; in 1890-91, two were refused, one because no plan was submitted, and one for want of cart space; and last year four were refused, one for want of cart space, and three because no plans were submitted. On the other hand, the number of applications sanctioned was 24.

"Without pressing on the Council in this case the wisdom of Paschal's aphorism that 'much of the mischief of this world would be avoided if men would be but content to sit quiet in their parlours,' I trust that the Council will see that it would be discreet to let well alone. I have had to listen to a certain amount of raillery aimed at the Commissioners, of whom I am Chairman. The consideration whether it is possible or impossible to inflict physical hurt on a Corporation; whether it is possible or impossible that in the hereafter the seventy-five Commissioners can be found congregated around the throne of 'imperial Satan,' is no argument. As Chairman, I recognise the compliment offered in this proposal, but I would beg respectfully to decline it, when it involves a slur on the co-adjutors with whom I have worked daily, almost hourly, in harmony for the last three years. I support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder if, as I understand, he accepts the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"I am at a considerable disadvantage in dealing with the amendment before us, having very partially and indistinctly heard what has fallen from the hon'ble members who last addressed the Council, the Hon'ble Mr. Lee and the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton; and therefore I must ask to be excused if, in any way, I blunder over their explanations of the subject under discussion. The case seems to me a very simple one. The Bill, having been introduced into this Council, was referred to a chosen number of its members, in order that they might examine it closely and make their report to this Council. It is to be presumed that, in selecting the members of that Committee, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill selected those whom he thought most likely to be conversant with the matters which would come before them, and most competent to offer an opinion which this Council would be wise to accept. Well, Sir, this Bill was made over to those members, and after repeated meetings, discussions and consideration of the papers placed before them, and collecting all the information that could be obtained, they have submitted a Report to this Council, and they have recommended that the granting of licenses should rest with the Chairman of the Commissioners, subject to that modification which section 9 provides. The hon'ble member opposite has, however, brought forward an amendment which, as far as I can understand his reasons, has no other foundation than the fact that, in former times, the grant of licenses was not in the Chairman but in the Commissioners. That fact, no doubt, had considerable influence with the Select Committee, and was given full weight to before they recommended any departure from the previous practice; and I think it would be singularly unwise for this Council to revert to that old discredited practice, simply because it was the old practice. I do not very well understand what the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has been. Apparently, he is going half-way to meet the amendment, and I do not see how, if that is his intention, he can at this stage propose any change. The amendment before the Council is either to be accepted or to be negatived. When a decision has been passed upon that amendment, it will then be open to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to consider what modification he thinks proper. But, as far as I understand his amendment, it is, I believe, nothing more than what is already provided for in section 9. He proposes that the Commissioners shall elect a few of their number as a Special Committee to deal with the matter. That is exactly what is laid down in section 9. The section runs thus:—

'With the consent of the Chairman of the Commissioners, any Special Committee of the Commissioners, not less than three or more than five in number, whom the Commissioners in meeting shall in that behalf appoint, may exercise the powers and discretion under this Act vested in the Chairman of the Commissioners.'

"That is what I understand the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton proposes, with this exception that possibly he does not require the consent of the Chairman as a preliminary. In no way is that suggestion before the Council. The question is, whether we should accept or reject the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.

"Frequent reference has been made to the late Sir Henry Harrison; his sayings and opinions have been dragged into this discussion, and he has been appealed to as if he were a sort of veiled prophet whose opinions are to be accepted, simply because they were his. When the Municipal Consolidation Bill was passing through this Council, I had the opportunity of sitting day after day at that table with Sir Henry Harrison; when in Select Committee we were discussing the clauses one by one, it was his repeated remark, and a point he strongly insisted upon, that such cases as these, the making of appointments, the granting of license, executive matters of that kind, were exactly the business which Municipal Commissioners are totally unfit to be entrusted with. For whenever the case of individuals came before them, they were solicited out of doors by the parties interested.

"The learned Advocate-General has also alluded to the practice of 'lobbying,' as a possible danger. I certainly consider that the people of this country have nothing to learn from those across the Atlantic, and that the art of outdoor nobbling members is as well understood here as it ever will be in America. It is urged that, if this function be left with the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta, the trade of Calcutta will be exposed to certain inconveniences. A priori it would seem to anybody that an executive matter like this is not a proper thing to be discussed by some 70 or 80 men, and carried 'yea' or 'nay' simply by a majority; yet I have no doubt that those who are interested in procuring licenses, if they go about it in the right way, would never fail to obtain a majority or be refused a license. But I cannot understand how any person, who really values the principle of Local Self-Government, can desire that such temptations to divert the Commissioners from a straightforward mode of discharging public functions should be put before them. It is not wise to trust little children in sweet shops; and certainly those who value Local Self-Government should desire to keep the Commissioners to their proper functions of advising, discussing general measures, passing general resolutions and controlling their Chairman; but not of dealing in detail with matters of this nature, where private interests are so much involved.

"The hon'ble member who last sat down has spoken as if he had been singled out, and a personal compliment was paid to him by this provision in the Bill. Has the hon'ble member a life-estate in the Chairmanship of the Calcutta Corporation? But I was not aware, Sir, that when a clause of this kind is put into a law, declaring that certain duties shall be discharged by a Chairman or other public officer, that any compliment whatever is meant to the individual who for the moment happens to be Chairman or fills the office designated. I protest against such an idea. In passing Bills here, we are supposed to make provision for something more than one or two years ahead. I am aware that the Acts of this Council have a very limited life, and there is hardly one of them which has lasted above five years without amendment. But we must not assume that this will be the fate of this Bill; and even if it exists for only five years, what probability is there of the hon'ble member opposite being the Chairman of the Municipality for that period?

"But putting all those considerations aside, I will give one reason why, in my opinion, the Chairman of the Commissioners is the proper person to be trusted with this function, and not the Commissioners. When a function of this nature is thrown upon a large body of some 70 or 80 persons, it is impossible to attach the responsibility, when that function is dishonorably, or arbitrarily, or vexatiously, performed. But when we throw the duty upon the Chairman of the Commissioners, if he acts arbitrarily, the responsibility can easily be fixed; and the fact that he is acting under this sense of responsibility is no small guarantee and security for the public. I quite believe that the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation may be as weak, as arbitrary, and as oppressive in the discharge of his functions as the Commissioners themselves; but if he is, it is perfectly plain to see where the fault lies, and the indignation aroused by such behaviour will probably lead to a change.

"For this reason, therefore, that by throwing the responsibility upon the Chairman, we know to whom to attribute any misconduct: I say that this alone is a good ground why the Report, which has been made to this Council by the Select Committee, should be accepted and the Bill should not be altered in the sense of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. LAMBERT said:—"I must take leave to doubt whether the amendment put forward by the hon'ble mover represents the unanimous views of the Commissioners. The Council will notice that the question has never been brought before the members of the Corporation in meeting, nor has the Report of the Special Committee been presented to the general body of Commissioners. I believe that many Commissioners agree with me in thinking that the section of the Bill, as it now stands, is a wise one. In the first place it is of great importance that applications for licenses to store jute should be dealt with promptly, but there were many instances in which this had not been the case. It was this consideration which led to the framing of the clause which it was sought to amend. Then, again, it is desirable that licenses should be granted with due regard to the convenience of the general public, and this was what the framers of the Act had in view when cart space was required. Over and over again have applications been referred to me for my opinion by the Chairman of the Corporation, and over and over again have I urged that, in the interests of the general community, licenses should not be granted when there is no cart space and when obstruction to the ordinary traffic in the streets would ensue. These remonstrances on my part have almost invariably been disregarded.

"The jute industry is a very important interest, but in dealing with applications to store jute, other considerations come in, and persons not engaged in that trades strongly object to be shut out of the use of the streets which lead to their shops and houses for hours together by a string of jute carts. The case of Messrs. Finlay, Muir and Company has been referred to. In this case, application to assort jute in a warehouse in the native part of the town was brought forward on the 18th of April, 1890; and, strange as it might seem, it was nevertheless absolutely the case, that the license was not granted until the 23rd of February, 1893, exactly two days ago. This application was frequently before the Commissioners, and was every now and then referred backwards and forwards from the General Committee to the Special Committee, and from one Sub-Committee to another, without any result, until two days before the Council met. In July, 1890, Sir Henry Harrison, when he was the Chairman, used all his eloquence at a general meeting of the Commissioners to implore the Commissioners, in the general interests of the town, to lay aside all private feelings when dealing with matters of this kind; but a very large and influential section of the Corporation voted on that application, and it was refused It was notorious that, when such applications came up, there was much canvassing and much private influence was brought to bear; and I have reason to know that a considerable number of the Commissioners are now willing to rid themselves of all responsibility in this matter, because they find that the best interests of the town will be secured by leaving the matter in the hands of their Chairman and possibly a Special Committee."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said in reply:—"As I understand the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to be, that while the power, which I ask to be restored to the Commissioners, should not be restored to them but to a Special Committee to be appointed by them for the purpose. If that is the suggestion of the hon'ble member, then I have no hesitation in accepting that suggestion."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN rose to order:—"The hon'ble member, who has just spoken, has an amendment on the agenda paper which he should either leave or ask leave to withdraw."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I think we are in danger of getting somewhat out of order in the course of this discussion; but considering how far things have gone, I think it will be best in the hon'ble mover of the amendment to state the form of the amendment which he wishes to be put to the Council, and on his making his statement, I shall be prepared to decide whether that amendment should be put to the Council on the present occasion; whether the original amendment should be adhered to, or whether the discussion should be deferred to the next meeting of the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"My present proposal is this, that in section 5, after the words 'application in writing,' the words 'to a Special Committee of the Commissioners to be appointed by them' be substituted for the words 'Chairman of the Commissioners.'"

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I should like to make a brief suggestion to the Council. If we now involve ourselves in matters of detailed drafting, we shall get into difficulties. It would be a simpler plan to decide on the principle whether the Commissioners should be directed under the Act to appoint a Special Committee to grant or to refuse licenses, or whether the power should be left as drafted in the Bill to the Chairman. The exact drafting can be determined after due deliberation."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I wish to make one remark on a collateral subject, before proceeding to the particular amendment before the Council. I wish to refer to what I venture to call the weighty and statesmanlike remarks of the Advocate-General on the subject of delegation. We are now on the eve of an important reconstruction of this Council, the details of which are at present unknown. But we are aware that there will be a considerable extension and expansion of the principle of representation, and I think it very important that it should be understood to what extent and of what character the representation ought to be. I do not venture to forecast what orders we may receive from the Secretary of State or from the Government of India on this subject. But I wish most emphatically to record my agreement with what has fallen from the Advocate-General that, however much a member of this Council may be a representative of any Corporation, or of any interest, or of any body or association existing in these provinces, he will, on his appointment as a member of this Council, act according to his lights and according to his conscience. His position ought not to be that of a delegate, and he ought not to be called upon to record his vote in accordance with the views of his constituents whom he represents, unless he heartily and personally agrees with them. His position will then be that, if he disagrees with those who sent him, he will have the power either of resigning or of persisting in retaining his appointment in opposition to those whom he represents, in the belief that they will, in the course of time, come to change their minds; and their only control over him will be, unless they change their minds, that they will not re-elect him on the next occasion. I trust we shall never be in a position in this Council in which any member can be called upon to confess, or in which any insinuation can be made that he did or did not consult his constituency, or that he is or is not acting in accordance with the votes passed in the preliminary discussions in this Council.

"Now, turning to the immediate subject before us, I think what has fallen from the Legal Remembrancer is a matter well worthy of our consideration. A Council of this kind is in some danger of falling into habits of an irresponsible debating society. It is extremely important that honorary members should realize the onerous and public position in which they are placed, and that they should come to this Council thoroughly prepared to state the views they have formed, and to put them in a form in which they can be submitted for the opinion of their colleagues. The President has, under the Rules, power to receive amendments of which notice has not been previously given, and that power I have thought it right to exercise to-day in a matter which involved a very small point of detail; and even then, I felt some doubt whether it was right to have recourse to it. But I am quite sure that it is not right that any important amendment or change of any kind should be placed before the Council which may be the subject of debate and discussion and voting in this Council without having a full and sufficient opportunity of considering it beforehand. And I feel sure that what my hon'ble friend was driving at, but did not give full expression to in his speech, is worthy of our consideration; and that is the responsibility of the position occupied by a member of the Select Committee of this Council. The Select Committee sat to discuss the Bill which was drafted for submission to the Council, and to alter and amend it at their pleasure and with all the information before them. They have power to record their views in any form they liked, and any member of the minority may dissent separately or collectively from the opinion of the majority. But I do hold that, we shall find it very difficult to carry on the business of this Council if any members of the Select Committee feel themselves individually or in a body at liberty to depart from the views to which they put their signatures, unless some important new facts are brought to their notice of which they were not aware before, and which would justify them in altering their opinion, just as much as a judge may alter in review his decisions upon facts not brought to his notice at the time of trial.

"Upon this occasion, we have a definite proposal put before us by the Hon'ble Gonesh Chunder Chunder, which involves an important principle, and it is quite possible for us to vote upon it; but a subsequent amendment which was brought forward by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and which the hon'ble mover of the first amendment is willing to accept, is one which has not been formulated and which it will be difficult to formulate, and which it will be impossible for the Council to discuss or vote upon on the present occasion. I think, therefore, that the best plan to pursue is to put the amendments of the hon'ble member separately and not collectively; it will follow, if it is determined to retain the word 'Chairman' in the manner in which the Select Committee places it in the Bill, that the principle, which is under discussion, will have been settled, and there will remain no further opportunity for proposing that a Select Committee should be appointed on behalf of the Commissioners to exercise their powers. But if the Council decides to cut out the word 'Chairman,' not perhaps in section 5, where it naturally occurs independently of the principle before us, but in sections 6, 7 and 8, then it will be open to us to alter section 9, so as to provide that the power which the preceding sections have given to the Commissioners to grant or refuse licenses shall be exercised by a Special Committee to be appointed by the Commissioners either in each case or as a standing body for that purpose. But that amendment it will be impossible to put to the vote until it has been formally and properly drawn out."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER'S Motion that in section 5, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted, was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's Motions that—

(1) in section 6, the words "Chairman of the" and "of the Chairman" be omitted; also that in line 20 of the same section, the words "at a special meeting" be inserted after the word "Commissioners," and that in line 21, the words "from the Commissioners" be omitted:

(2) in line 4 of section 7, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted, and that the words "by an order in writing under the hand of the Chairman of the Commissioners setting forth the grounds for such refusal" be also omitted:

(3) in section 8, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted:

being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 4.	Noes 7.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Maharajah Rayaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.	The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

So the Motions were negatived.

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's Motion that section 9 be omit tedwas also put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe, by leave, withdrew the Motion of which he had given notice that, for the first paragraph and the first proviso of section 10, the following be substituted:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed one hundred rupees.'

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the words "five per cent. on" be inserted after the word "less."

He said:—"I thought that the wording of the section, as it now stood, was perhaps an oversight on the part of the Select Committee; for I cannot conceive that the Select Committee could have seriously meant to lay down that the whole cost of the appliances for extinguishing fires should be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. I could well understand their proposing to deduct the whole cost of these appliances against the whole value of the warehouse; but the result of the provision, as it stands in the Bill, will be, as I take it, to deduct the capital outlay on account of appliances from the income of the property, which appears to me to be absurd. Let us take a concrete case. If the annual value of a warehouse be Rs 3,000, the capital value would perhaps be sixteen times that amount, or Rs. 48,000; and if the owner laid out, say, Rs. 3,000 in fire-extinguishing appliances, that is to say, one year's income of the warehouse, he would be exempted entirely from paying any annual fee in respect of the warehouse, because the fee would have to be fixed on the annual value of the warehouse, minus the cost of the outlay for appliances for extinguishing fires; and there would be nothing upon which to fix the annual fee to be paid by the warehouse. I do not think that that could have been intended by the Select Committee. To allow 5 per cent. on the amount of the outlay for extinguishing fires from the annual value would, I submit, be reasonable, and therefore I propose to insert the words 'five per cent. on' after the word 'less.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe said:—"The principle, Sir, if I may take upon myself to be in some measure the spokesman of the Select Committee which prevailed in our minds when the Bill was going through Committee, found expression in section 10. Subject to the matter which was discussed and decided at the last meeting as to the advisability of defraying the cost of the fire-brigade by a general rate, we considered that it was above all things desirable, in the language of the letter of the Government, dated the 3rd of February, 1892, to which reference has already been made in the course of the debate on this Bill, that comparatively innocent storage godowns should not have to pay the same license fee as dangerously unprotected warehouses.

"There has already been placed before the Council very full details of the important preventive measures which have been taken by various jute warehouse owners for the protection of their premises and the prevention of the spread of fire from them to those of their neighbours. In cases of this kind, it is not possible to protect one's self without protecting one's immediate and even more remote neighbours. It was therefore thought just that, in determining the amount on which the annual license fee should be collected, there should be taken on the one hand the annual value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, and on the other the capitalised value of the outlay incurred in the rendering of those premises, as far as possible, free from risk of fire.

"It is obvious that, if in any warehouse there has been an outlay incurred which renders it wholely free from the risk of fire, there is no reason why it should be subject to special taxation. Such instances, however, are probably rare. But to the extent to which immunity has been secured, justice demands that the assessable value should be obtained by deducting from the rateable value of the warehouse the outlay incurred in respect of the means and appliances therein and appertaining thereto for preventing or extinguishing fires. That result will not be obtained by merely deducting 5 per cent. per annum on such outlay from the annual value. It may happen that one owner expends many thousand rupees in fire-proof floors, fire-proof divisions, increased lengths of hose, and appliances of all sorts and descriptions for preventing and extinguishing fires; while alongside there may be another jute warehouse equally large, without any fire-preventing appliances whatever. The owner of the latter has taken no means to protect himself, and in so doing, exposes his neighbour to great risk. His position is that he has protected his jute or cotton or anything else which comes within the scope of the Bill from the effects of the weather, and that he either takes the risk of fire upon himself or insures himself against it. But that leaves out of consideration the danger to which the neighbouring property is exposed by the continuance of such a state of things. And if I understand aright the views expressed by the Council, it is proposed to impose a special duty on hazardous trades even in respect of matters of general public convenience, because there is a certain special danger appertaining to them which renders them liable to be taxed for that purpose. The hon'ble mover of the amendment has, I venture to think, failed to appreciate the reasons which led the Committee to arrive at the conclusion they did, and erroneously supposes that it would be fair merely to take from the annual value 5 per cent. on the outlay for such appliances. The section deals with two matters; first, the annual value for municipal taxes, and secondly, the outlay incurred in respect of means and appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires: 10 per cent., and subject to certain limitations, makes an assessment on the differences of these two sums. That, I submit, is a fair and just mode of dealing with the annual fee payable for a license, on the supposition accepted by this Council that there shall be a special taxation on commercial industries to meet the cost of the fire-brigade. For those reasons, I am unable to assent to the proposition of the hon'ble mover of the amendment in this matter, and will record my vote against it."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton said:—"I am bound to say that, in my opinion, the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder has indicated a blot in this measure. I have understood the section as drafted to convey the meaning that the license fee up to 10 per cent. per annum might be levied on the annual value of a warehouse, less the annual value of the outlay incurred in respect of protecting it. But on closely examining the section, I see that that is not the meaning the words convey; and, as the learned Advocate-General has explained, the section as it stands undoubtedly means that the total outlay incurred in providing means and appliances for preventing or extinguishing fires has to be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse on which the license fee has to be calculated. If this provision is passed into law, it will, in my opinion, stultify itself. The annual value of a warehouse, as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, is 5 per cent. of the total capitalised value of the warehouse; that is to say, if a warehouse is constructed at a cost or an estimated cost of one lakh of rupees, the annual value to which it is assessed by the Municipality is Rs. 5,000. Now, Sir, it may well be that in such a warehouse the proprietors have incurred an expense of Rs. 5,000 for its protection from fire; it may be that they have incurred an expense of Rs. 10,000. In such a case the warehouse would, if this section were to become law, be entirely exempted from taxation. Now that certainly was not the meaning of the Select Committee.

"The suggestion that a deduction should be made from the annual value on account of costs incurred for the protection of warehouses from fire was made by my friend the learned Advocate-General, and it commended itself to the unanimous sense of the Committee on the ground that it was only fair and reasonable that a deduction should be made on account of expenditure so incurred; but I, for one, and I believe I speak on behalf of other hon'ble members of the Committee, never understood that the whole value should be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. If the section of the Bill, as it now stands, be passed, it will mean this, that wherever an expense of 5 or 10 per cent. on the total value of the warehouse is incurred for fire-preventing appliances, there the warehouse will be entirely exempted from the payment of any special license-fee. The hon'ble mover of the amendment has conveyed the meaning I had in my mind when I assented to the provision of the Bill by inserting the words 'less 5 per cent. of the outlay.' We might have more correctly said less the annual value of the outlay, which I thought the words meant. But I see that the words in the section do not convey that meaning, and therefore I accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I do not agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. I understood that the cost of private fire-engines and other appliances was to be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. If these amendments were carried, it would be a departure from the principle on which the Bill is drafted. I do not think a building would be entirely free from taxation. It will come in for taxation under clause (a) of section 26; so that it will not be entirely exempt."

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS said:—"As a member of the Select Committee, Sir, I understood that if the cost of a warehouse is shown to be a lakh of rupees, and the cost of appliances provided for extinguishing and preventing fire was put down at a cost of Rs. 5,000, the value of the property for the purposes of assessment would be Rs. 95,000, and upon that value the fees under the Act would be levied."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"My understanding of the intention of the Select Committee is the same as that of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"I also understood the intention of the Select Committee to be the same as explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"It appears to me that the mistake has arisen from the use of the words 'annual value' instead of 'capitalised value' by the members of the Select Committee. On the other hand, it is necessary to notice that some of the outlay for the prevention and extinguishing of fire may be of a recurring character, as, for instance, the expenditure on the employment of chaukidars and the establishment for working fire-engines, while the outlay on the engines and other appliances themselves will be incurred once for all. The principle of the amendment would be fair if 10 per cent. of the capitalised value of the appliances were taken, but the recurring items would form an annual charge."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said:—"The learned Advocate-General's amendment to my amendment amounts to this: that if all the warehouses in Calcutta and the Suburbs only spent a sum equivalent to the annual value of the warehouses, they would all be exempted from the payment of taxation on this account; and the provision of the Bill that 50 per cent. of the expenditure on the fire-brigade should be contributed by certain trades would be nullified. I do not think it was ever intended that a house in which a hazardous trade is to be carried on would be exempted from the payment of any license fee, if a certain amount of money were expended in providing certain appliances."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Allen's objection amounts to this: he says that, instead of the 5 per cent. being taken from the annual value, the same should be taken from the capitalised value of the warehouse. [The Hon'ble Mr. Allen said:—'I take no objection to the principle of your amendment.'] As the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton has told you, the principle upon which the warehouse is assessed is by taking 5 per cent. of the cost of the building. If that be so, it is only fair that, on the outlay for appliances, the same rate should be taken. When you have to deduct the outlay for the expenditure on account of certain appliances of a warehouse, it is only fair to deduct 5 per cent. upon the outlay for those appliances. If the assessment were to be fixed upon the whole value of the warehouse, then, no doubt, the whole expense of the outlay for appliances would be deducted. But when you are dealing with the income of the property, which the annual value represents, you can set against that only the annual value of the outlay for appliances. On no principle can you deduct the capital value of the outlay for appliances from the income of the property. Therefore, I submit that 5 per cent. on the annual value is a reasonable sum to allow for such outlay."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"It appears that the majority of the Select Committee meant to apply to the words a different meaning from what the Advocate-General understood them to mean; and as we are dealing with a matter which is a question of words, it behoves us to be extremely careful in drawing up an amendment. It is suggested by the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer that the sum to be deducted should be not only a proportion of the capital outlay, but also the recurring cost of the establishment kept up for working the appliances and for keeping watch; and in order that this may be properly considered and the necessary amendments be formulated, the consideration of the question will be postponed to the next meeting of the Council."

The further consideration of the Motion was postponed.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that, in the first proviso to section 10, the words "that the annual fee payable by any owner or occupier in respect of any license shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty rupees and" be omitted.

He said:—"Under this Act we have to raise a specified amount by imposing a percentage rate on the annual value of warehouses. That being so, the provision which I am seeking to amend is opposed to one of the fundamental principles of political economy, namely, equality of taxation. The effect would be to make warehouses of larger value bear a less share of the burden to the loss and detriment of less valuable property. I think I shall best express my meaning by putting certain figures before the Council. Let us say that there are 100 warehouses to be assessed of the total annual value of 5 lakhs, and that the sum required to be raised for the purposes of this Act is Rs. 30,000 a year; that five of these houses are of the annual value of Rs. 15,000. If we assess these 100 houses, which I have already stated to be of the total annual value of 5 lakhs at a uniform rate of 6 per cent., we will get Rs. 30,000, the amount required for the purposes of the fire-brigade. But if five of these houses are of the annual value of Rs. 15,000, the tax on each of these houses, taking it at 6 per cent., will be Rs. 900, and if a maximum limit of Rs. 750 is prescribed in the Bill, these five warehouses will pay Rs. 150 a year, less than what a rate of 6 per cent. will produce. Therefore, the less amount of Rs. 750, which these five warehouses will pay under that limit must be borne and paid by the other 95 houses. Because all the warehouses together will have to pay Rs. 30,000 towards the fund, and the amount which these five warehouses will not pay, calculating the rate at 6 per cent., will have to be levied from the other 95 warehouses; that is to say, they will have to pay 3 annas per cent more than 6 per cent.; so that these 95 warehouses will have to pay Rs. 6-3 per cent., whereas the other five warehouses of the assessments of Rs. 15,000 each will get off by paying merely at the rate of 5 per cent. Therefore, it will be unreasonable and inequitable to assess the more valuable warehouses at a less rate than the less valuable warehouses, and this will surely be the result if this maximum limit were allowed. I therefore move that the words indicated in my amendment be omitted from section 10."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I think it desirable that there should be no misunderstanding in this matter. When the Bill was in Committee, detailed statements were laid before us—statements showing the deficiency which would arise from making Rs. 500 the maximum, the limit which was first suggested. After consideration, we adopted the limit of Rs. 750. There must in some instances be some inequality in the incidence of this tax; but that is only one of the many difficulties which must be encountered in any attempt to impose differential taxation. From the figured statement in which the Rs. 750 limit was adopted and upon which this section was based, the sum required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade would be met if the rates therein mentioned were imposed to the extent therein allowed. We were assured by the Commissioner of Police, who from his intimate acquaintance of the matter could speak with authority, that the expenses of the fire-brigade are now ascertained, and that there is no room for any great alteration. The Select Committee was assured that, with a maximum limit of Rs. 750 on warehouses, and the levy of a quarter per cent. on bastis and one-and-a-half anna per cent. on pucca buildings, the expenses of the fire-brigade would be met. If the statements which had been submitted were correct, there will be a surplus over the expenses of the fire-brigade, and there will be no necessity of taxing these industries to the uttermost."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"As a member of the Select Committee, I was opposed to any limit, and if I had correctly understood the responsibility attaching to a member who signed the Report, I would have recorded a dissent on this and other matters. It was as representing the views of the majority, and because I did not wish to obtrude in a separate note of dissent my opinions in every point on which I disagreed with that majority that I refrained from writing a note of dissent. I thought that Rs. 750 was a very much better limit than Rs 500; but I could not but say, and say to the end, that, in my opinion, it is hardly fair to relieve the rich at the expense of the poor. The calculation which I have now heard from the hon'ble mover of the amendment seems to be quite clear that the owners of small warehouses, whether of jute, hide, wood or coal, would pay; under the present drafting of the Bill, over 6 per cent. on the annual value, whilst the owners of exceptionally valuable warehouses, would pay less than 5 per cent. on the annual value. The maximum that can be levied on warehouses is to be at the rate of 10 per cent. on the annual value, and it is not to exceed altogether one-half of the cost of the fire-brigade. As it is, we find that jute warehouses yielding 10 per cent. on the valuation are in themselves able to meet the whole cost of the fire-brigade. Here, as has been observed, they are not to pay more than half the cost, and it results that nobody could pay more than 5 per cent. unless you bring some other controlling influence, such as that which is brought in here. If the proposal of the learned Advocate-General, which was the first suggested, that no one should pay more than Rs. 100, then the poorer class of warehouses would have been, as the hon'ble member (Mr. Playfair) pointed out at the last meeting, most grossly and unfairly assessed in comparison with the rich. This limit of Rs. 750 would only lessen the unfairness, but will not remove it. I therefore hope I may be considered to have the liberty of voting with the hon'ble mover of the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I endorse the views expressed by the learned Advocate-General. I think the speech of the hon'ble member, the Chairman of the Corporation, is somewhat in accord with the views expressed by the minority at the meeting of this Council a week ago. We have already got a differential tax, and, as I said at the last meeting, we shall be taxing the owners of small warehouses more than the rich."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"The mover of this amendment has appealed to political economy and principles of taxation in support of his proposal; but the Chairman of the Corporation endorses this amendment on a new principle. It is this: that having got the jute industry, which hitherto has provided all the funds required for the fire-brigade, under their thumb, it should be kept there. But, Sir, the measure is in no sense one of taxation, and the only reason why I voted against the Advocate-General at the last meeting was that the principle underlying this Bill is that men who introduce a special danger into a community are bound to contribute towards neutralising that danger. The measure of contribution should be determined by the extent of the danger. So far from large jute warehouses and mills causing danger in proportion to their size and value, probably the exact opposite takes place, because the more valuable are better provided with means against the danger more or less incident to all jute warehouses. Therefore, it is not fair that the more valuable properties should pay an unlimited rate to the full extent of their value. The value of a property should not enter into consideration, except to a limited extent. It is perfectly fair that the more dangerous class of warehouses, from which there is greater probability of fires, should pay as much. What has taken place in some municipalities where jute mills and factories are located is possibly known to more than one member of the Council present. If the 10 per cent. rate be allowed to run up according to the value without any limit, the effect will be simply to throw the whole charge on a few valuable warehouses and to exempt small ones."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said: "It seems to me that the argument of the learned Advocate-General in opposing the present amendment would apply very well if the question were one between inflammable trades on the one hand and other trades on the other which would have to pay the tax. But these arguments cannot apply as between inflammable trades themselves. The question involved in this amendment is whether or not there should be equality of taxation between those persons. If all the most valuable warehouses were provided with appliances for the prevention of fires, it would no doubt be a good ground for asking that they should not be taxed more than a certain amount; but as the Council understood from the learned Advocate-General, when the last amendment was under consideration, that it so happens that one warehouse provides itself with all kinds of appliances against fire while the adjoining warehouse has nothing of the kind. It would therefore be inequitable not to tax small and large warehouses on the same scale, or to limit the tax on large warehouses to a certain amount only. The Hon'ble Mr. Allen seems to think that an unlimited rate of taxation would be imposed on the large warehouses, but it was not so because the rate would be uniform. What is wanted is that the same rate should be put upon all warehouses irrespective of its value or condition. But to impose a less rate of taxation on warehouses of large value and a higher rate on smaller warehouses would be wrong principle."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 5.	Noes 6.
The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.	The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.	The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the word "seventy-five" be substituted for "fifty."

He said:—"As this amendment of mine is based upon the figures furnished to me by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, I shall expect him to explain to the Council in detail those figures. I shall only content myself by pointing out to the Council that the Committee of 1891 recommended that the whole of the expense of the fire-brigade should be met in this way, namely, 40 per cent. by jute warehouses; 20 per cent. by other inflammable articles, except hay, straw, wood and coal; 10 per cent. by hay, straw, wood and coal, and 30 per cent by the Municipality. That was the recommendation of the Committee. The original Bill, which was based on those recommendations, provided that 60 per cent. should be paid by jute, cotton and other inflammable articles, not including hay, straw, wood and coal, and that the remaining 40 per cent. be paid by the Municipality; the Municipality being entitled to recoup itself to the extent of 10 per cent. from hay, straw, wood and coal. The Select Committee, by their amended Bill, have taken away hay, straw, wood and coal from the Municipality, and included them within the hazardous articles coming under the Act; and they have fixed the liability upon those articles at 50 per cent., leaving the other 50 per cent. to be recovered from the Municipality; so that, in lieu of 70 per cent., the trade in hazardous goods will have to pay only 50 per cent.

"According to the figures in the Hon'ble Mr. Lee's statement, if jute and other hazardous articles enumerated in the Bill were made to pay 70 per cent. instead of 50 per cent., jute alone would pay Rs. 30,000 instead of Rs. 68,900, which they are now paying. I submit, therefore, that it would not be unreasonable to raise the rate from 50 per cent. to 75 per cent. to the relief of persons who are owners of other properties."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"None of us who had the pleasure of listening to the lucid speech with which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill opened the proceedings last Saturday week but must have been struck by the great discrepancy between his speech and the figured statement that accompanied it. The speech represented the views of the Select Committee. The figures, as I shall presently show, are at variance with the prevailing note that runs through the speech. Mr. Cotton says:—

'It appeared to us that, in imposing a tax for the maintenance of a particular object, the fair and reasonable principle would be to apportion that tax on different members of the community in proportion to the advantages which it is estimated they will gain from that object.'

"And later on, after explaining that the fire-brigade at its present strength is entirely due to that industry, he observed:—

'In the Report which I now have the honour to lay on the table, we have stated that we think that it is unfair to levy the whole rate on any one industry. At the same time I must distinctly affirm that the fire-brigade was established in Calcutta in order to meet the requirements of the jute trade; and that the great majority of important fires occur, and always have occurred, in jute warehouses. If it were not for these jute warehouses, I do not hesitate to say that the maintenance of the fire-brigade on anything like its present scale would be unnecessary. I do not know whether I am justified in saying that this city would be in a position to go back to the state of things which existed twenty years ago; but certain it is that the brigade, in its present state of efficiency and completeness, would not be required. It is on account of the jute warehouses that the brigade is maintained in its present organisation. For these reasons, the majority of the Committee considered that the jute industry should still continue to pay a large proportion of the funds required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade.'

"And then, in dealing with the contributions from other persons assessed to the fund, he observed:—

'The individual risk which any individual house-owner may run in this city may be infinitesimal. Residential house-owners in Calcutta do not insure their houses, either in the north of the town, where the permanent residents of Calcutta mostly dwell, or in the south, where European residents live; and I believe I am well within the truth in saying that the insurance of houses and furniture in this city is practically unknown.'

"After a few more remarks, he observed:—

'The circumstances are amply sufficient to justify the Legislature in imposing a very low rate on the rate-payers at large to assist in meeting any deficit which the other means of taxation placed in the hands of the Municipality may fail to supply. The protection which ordinary householders derive from fires not being allowed to spread may be inappreciable in any particular case, but it is obvious that such a general risk exists, and that it is at all times within possibility that fires may break out in residential houses.'

"Now, with such a statement as this, why is it that the demand made from the general fund to the account of the brigade is so heavy? If a considerable proportion is to be borne by the jute industry, it is of the same value as the water in the Irishman's peg—a thimbleful of the Rs. 41,600 to be levied in Calcutta: the jute trade is to pay but Rs. 8,600! Taxes on other property are to pay Rs. 25,000, and Rs. 8,000 are to be drawn from warehouses of hay, straw, wood and coal.

"These latter now pay the Commissioners annually about Rs. 13,000, and we are to lose the odd Rs. 5,000—for what reason, I know not. Nobody asks for the reduction. Thus it will be seen that the Commissioners suffer a loss of Rs. 38,000, for the general ratepayer, whether basti-owner or the owner of other property, is to pay Rs. 25,000, and the Rs. 13,000 now realised from hay, wood, straw, &c., depôts is to be withdrawn from the Commissioners; Rs. 8,000 of it being paid to the fire-brigade fund, and the remainder dropped altogether. I say, therefore, that the speech of the hon'ble member is not in accord with his figures. Therefore, I feel myself entitled to oppose this provision of the Bill, though my name is to be found affixed to the Report which accompanied it.

"There is another reason why I am entitled to press the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. I was under the impression, which impression turns out to be wrong, that the sum levied now from jute warehouses was pressing so hardly on them that it had the effect of driving them from the city. That, I thought, would be an important fact. I should be extremely sorry to see any portion of the industry put out of an area which it otherwise would have chosen for itself. But I find that since the year 1872 there were in Calcutta 114 warehouses, and in the Suburbs 52. They did diminish up to a certain point, but since the year 1888-89, I find that the numbers have been these:—In Calcutta proper in 1888, there were 69 licensed warehouses; at the present moment there are 80 in the town proper. In the suburban area in 1888, there were 112 warehouses. There came 25 of them to Calcutta at the time of the amalgamation They have increased to 31. There were 73 of the 112 at Cossipur-Chitpur, and these have increased to 85; the balance (except one) are at Manicktollah; so that the pressure on the jute industry of the existing taxation has not been oppressive to any perceptible degree, and it has not repressed the natural expansion of trade in Calcutta.

"As regards the figures which have been quoted by the hon'ble mover of the amendment, I would say that the sum of Rs. 68,900, levied from jute under the existing law, is perhaps comparable with Rs. 30,000 which his amendment would produce from jute. But I would prefer to compare the Rs. 30,000 with Rs. 66,550, which is the amount of the direct license fees now levied. There are other extra assets of the jute fund, which go to make up the Rs. 68,900, which is leviable and is being paid by jute. This will show that if the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's amendment be carried, the relief to the jute trade will be over 50 per cent. of the tax they are now paying; and that, I think, will be sufficient.

"But there is a further fact to bear in mind in connection with other warehouses. The fees shown, as leviable from these warehouses are now over Rs. 14,000. The amount actually collected—and here I would draw the attention of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair to the fact that you must not confuse the amount leviable, whether by taxation on the general rate or from special industries, with the amount which actually comes into the coffers of the Corporation—is about Rs. 13,000; and if these rates now recommended be fixed, it will bring in from them about Rs. 12,000. The remainder will be a relief to those industries. But I know of no necessity for affording them any greater relief at the expense of the general rate-payer.

"I have claimed the support of the majority of the Select Committee to the present amendment on the ground of true consistency with their views. The mere fact that the Bill, as it has been amended, will result in certain figures which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has laid before the Council, does not compel them to sanction those figures. We have seen, in respect of the last motion but one, that the Bill did not express the views of the majority of the Select Committee; and, similarly—I can speak of only one member of the majority—I venture to urge that the Bill as now drafted does not really represent the views of the majority."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I am not surprised at the speech of my hon'ble friend the Chairman of the Corporation. I am not surprised that he should support the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. But I am somewhat surprised that he considers that the opinion of the majority of the Select Committee coincide with his view on this subject. There was no question more discussed, more disputed in Select Committee than the proportion, the maximum proportion of the expenses of the fire-brigade, which should be leviable on account of licenses for warehouses; and, as I thought, it was unanimously agreed that the amount should not exceed half, or as the Bill puts it, 50 per cent. of the total amount. The Hon'ble Mr. Lee and the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder represent, as in my humble judgment they are entitled if not bound to do, the opinions of the Calcutta Municipality. That Municipality is very largely interested in the discussions now going on in this Council, as well as the mercantile community so ably represented by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair and the learned Advocate-General.

"I was obliged, as it appeared to me in the interests of fairness, to oppose the hon'ble members who represent the mercantile community in the proposal which was brought forward last week that the whole burden of the fire-brigade should be borne by the general rate-payers; and to-day I feel myself equally bound to oppose the motion brought forward on behalf of the general rate-payers, that is to say, that an unduly large proportion of the cost of the fire-brigade should be borne by certain special industries. When I find myself as it were between two fires—when I find that the line I have endeavoured to take up is attacked by the mercantile community on the one hand and by the Corporation on the other—I am more and more confirmed in the belief that the middle course I have endeavoured to steer throughout these discussions is the safe and fair one. Certain it is that one of the main objects we have always had before us in our deliberations is to relieve the jute industry from the undue burden which has been cast upon it in the past. The more I reflect over it the more I feel that the jute trade has been unfairly taxed by the burden which it has borne for so many years, by not only maintaining the whole of the fire-brigade but the cost of the establishment maintained by the Municipality, of which a very considerable share has gone into the coffers of the Municipality; and also by the appropriation of considerable surplus funds paid by the the jute industry, which have been devoted to local improvements in the town. Something like Rs. 1,26,000 has, as you have been told, been diverted from the Fire-brigade Fund in this way; and I do think the mercantile community have some cause for complaint; and this being so, I understand that the unanimous opinion of the Select Committee, which considered very carefully how far we could readjust and alleviate the burden now borne by the jute industry, was that fees from warehouses should not exceed 50 per cent. of the funds required.

"We thought, and I hope you will by a decisive majority confirm our recommendation, that the license fees from warehouses, not only jute and cotton, but also all those specially inflammable materials mentioned in clause (g) of section 3 of the Bill taken together, should not contribute more than one-half the amount required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade. This is one of the most important principles in the Bill. If that is abrogated and set aside, and it is decided that such fees should be maintained at the larger proportion of 75 per cent., then I hope the community, which have been so long agitating in this matter, will justly renew the complaints so often made. They are not, I am aware, satisfied with the particular proposals made in this Bill. No one, as I said before, will ever be satisfied when he is called upon to pay a rate, or tax, or fee, or whatever it may be called. It devolves on the Legislature to impose these rates and fees with the greatest possible amount of fairness, and that is what we have endeavoured to do. The best proof of our success is that both sides object. I attach very great importance to that fact. It is not at this stage of the Bill that I deem it necessary to detain you to show how largely the fire-brigade is used in extinguishing other fires than those from jute warehouses. My remarks under this head may be postponed until we discuss the rates proposed to be levied on bastis and on the general community. I confine my remarks now to what I consider to be the injustice of raising the proposed fees to be levied on account of licenses from warehouses."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said: "Sir, it is with great pleasure I find myself at one with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on this occasion. The only point I take exception to is that I do not claim the honour of representing the mercantile community. I was hitherto under the impression that I occupied an entirely different position. But I would desire to add my voice to the observation which has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton as to the suggestion that the adoption of 75 per cent. would be in accordance with the principle which guided the Select Committee is without the slightest foundation. The matter was long and carefully discussed, and we arrived at the conclusion, which is enunciated in the Bill, subject to the principle which was raised by the dissentient minority of the Select Committee. But once that principle was negatived in the Select Committee as it was negatived here, we proceeded on the principle which the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton has affirmed that a contribution not exceeding 50 per cent. from warehouses would be fair. In this particular instance the mercantile community has adopted that middle course which so commends itself to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair has not, I observe, moved any amendment to reduce the rate from 50 per cent. The principle once being accepted, I think it would be well, in any case in which the Select Committee has come to a unanimous conclusion, that we should, as far as possible, avoid accepting any principle of a different character.

"The hon'ble mover of the amendment has referred to certain figures which he says were laid before us by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee. I can only say that I have not seen them. Those figures have not been, so far as I am aware, placed before the Council. I therefore support the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton in the view he has taken. The Hon'ble Mr. Lee spoke as if there had been a deprivation of the income the Corporation was entitled to in the shape of fees from hay, straw, wood and coal depôts. It has been conceded that these trades are not noxious trades. The only ground upon which fees upon them were levied was the inflammable nature of those materials; and yet these fees which were imposed year after year by the Corporation were not devoted to the fire-brigade. For these reasons I shall vote against the amendment."

The Motion was also put and negatived.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that section 20 be omitted.

He said:—"It seems to me that the provisions of this section will be very hard and oppressive on the owners and occupiers of warehouses. Before I put forward any argument of my own, I would lay before the Council the Memorial of the National Chamber of Commerce. They said:—

'Section 20.—This is altogether new. It will be a fearful instrument of oppression in the hands of subordinate police officers and constables, and lead to frivolous prosecutions. It is an admitted fact that the whole length of the Strand Road, from the Bonded Warehouse to Hatkholla, the whole of Burra Bazar, Jorabagan and Hatkholla, Komertolly, Chitpore and Belliaghatta, and other busy centres of trade and commerce, and all thoroughfares near godowns are more or less blocked up with carts, and the right of public traffic is thereby obstructed. This is a necessary evil incidental to a large place of business like Calcutta; but no one has ever complained of such obstruction or ever entertained the idea of prosecuting any member of the mercantile community for such an offence.'

"We all know that most of the existing jute warehouses have no separate places for loading and unloading carts, and that notwithstanding this licenses are given, and the result will be that they will be subject to daily prosecutions because they will not be able to help themselves; and furthermore

I say that the provisions of this law will clash against the provisions of the Calcutta Police Act IV of 1866, section 66, clause 7, which provides that 'whoever causes any cart or truck, with or without horses or cattle, to remain or stand longer than may be necessary for loading or unloading, except at places lawfully appointed for the purpose, shall be liable, on summary conviction, to punishment.' So that, under the provisions of this Act, people are allowed to keep their carts in public thoroughfares for the purpose of loading and unloading. It appears to me that the provisions of section 20 of this Bill clash with the provisions of the Police Act; for the Police Act allows carts to be on the streets for the purpose of loading and unloading, whereas the present Bill would prohibit it. I therefore submit that, having regard to the fact that the Merchants represented by the National Chamber of Commerce raise the objection, this section ought to be omitted."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert said:—"That the Council has heard from the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder that he brings this motion forward chiefly on behalf of the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, but I cannot ascertain that any other public body has objected to this section. The letter of the Honorary Secretary of that Association says that the section is altogether new. This is hardly a correct way of putting it. Clause 3, section 6, of Act IV of 1883, requires that space be reserved for carts, and by section 14 of the Act, whoever breaks any conditions of the license renders himself liable to prosecution and fine up to Rs. 50. In the present Bill also, obstruction of a thoroughfare is made punishable, but the penalty is reduced to Rs. 10.

"Next it is said that 'it will be a fearful instrument of oppression in the hands of subordinate police officers and lead to frivolous prosecutions.' But this is not so. All that the subordinate police will be able to do will be to report whether obstruction has been caused. Enquiry will follow, and no summons will be asked for unless, in the opinion of the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner, a case is established. The section confers no power of summary arrest. At present the unfortunate cartman, and not the man for whose benefit the obstruction is caused, is punishable.

"Further, the letter says that no one has complained of the want of any such provision. That is a mistake. Complaints are frequent, and have been so for many years past. They come in from various sources, generally from the residents of the locality and from tradesmen, and in some cases from the Municipality. I have in my hand a list of cases of obstruction during the last six months from the Koomartolee Section. It shews from August 1892 to January 1893 that 103 cartmen have been prosecuted, and six owners of jute warehouses were also successfully prosecuted for the same offence. Further, in his letter the Honorary Secretary says that in all the busy parts of the town, streets are congested by traffic. This is true, but it is only in the locality of jute warehouses that one or two owners appropriate a whole street for hours together by a long string of carts. The persons who are responsible for these obstructions ought to be easily reached, and that is the aim of section 20 of the Bill. If this section becomes law, rules will be provided for each locality, by which the owners or occupiers of jute warehouses will know how to conduct their business without interference from the police; and the convenience of the public will also be recognized.

"It has been suggested that this section of the Bill will clash with the Police Act; but it merely cannot be the intention of the Police Act that whole strings of carts shall be allowed to stand on a street for hours together while loading and unloading. I apprehend it refers to one or two carts and not to a long line of carts. I think that this section is wanted to show the owners of jute warehouses that they have a special liability, and that they should conform to such regulations as are required for each locality. As I said before, if this section becomes law, special regulations will be drawn up for each locality, and no punishment will be awarded so long as they comply with those regulations."

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe said:—"The question which is involved in this amendment commends itself to me. The words used in this section are

'whoever impairs or causes to be impaired the right of public traffic.' I do not read those words in the sense in which the hon'ble member the Commissioner of Police, does. I take it that roads are made for the public; nor am I aware that any person who has occasion to use carts on the roads in Calcutta is restricted to the use of one cart at a time. All members of the public have a right to use any public road, subject to the use thereof by all other members of the public.

"The Bill provides that space shall be reserved for the loading and unloading of carts on land appertaining to warehouses. That does not mean that the public roads shall not be used by more than one cart at a time. Section 66, sub-section 7, of Act IV of 1866, imposes a fine upon any person who causes any cart to remain or stand longer than is necessary for loading or unloading, except in a place lawfully appointed for the purpose so as to cause obstruction in a thoroughfare. From the difference in opinion between the hon'ble mover of the amendment and the hon'ble member, the Commissioner of Police, it is evident that this clause (section 20) is read in a different light from what I understood in Committee. But seeing that the section is capable of the construction which the Commissioner of Police puts upon it, I shall support the hon'ble mover of the amendment. It was never understood that the business of a warehouse should be stopped after each cart was unloaded and another cart fetched."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I think this question is by no means free from difficulty, and for my own part I am much influenced by the opinion expressed in the letter of the National Chamber of Commerce. It is true that the Municipal Commissioners were, in the early days of the Municipality, in the habit of granting licenses very freely for jute warehouses; and that in a very large number of cases no provision whatever was made for cart-space, that is to say, there was no space whatever within the premises where carts could enter and turn round. I conceive that the Municipal Commissioners erred in their discretion in the interests of jute and commerce, and granted licenses more freely than was prudent. I have inspected some of these warehouses, and have found the bulk of the carts loaded with jute waiting outside. That is a serious matter. I confess that the representation of the National Chamber of Commerce has influenced me very much on this point. I had not realised until I read their memorial and received a deputation of their members how keenly this question would be felt; and I do think that the power of prosecuting the owners or occupiers of warehouses, under such an exceptional provision as this, should not be conferred without further deliberation. I can understand that a carriage or cart which blocks the way, and will not move on when ordered by the police, may be run in; but I do not know whether it will be wise or whether it could be justifiable to prosecute the owner or occupier of a warehouse under a penal provision of this kind.

"The section found its place in the Bill in this way. Under the old law it was a condition of granting a license that there should be sufficient space for the loading and unloading of carts. We have struck that out, and this penalty clause was put in, under which the owner or occupier of a warehouse may be fined if his carts block the way. I doubt whether it was wise to omit the provision about cart space and provide this penalty clause instead. On a full consideration of the objections taken by the National Chamber of Commerce, I think this Council would do well to accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder and omit this provision, leaving all necessary action to clear away and maintain the thoroughfares to the police under the existing law."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE explained, in reference to what had fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, that in section 6 a sub-section (c) was inserted, which required to be set forth in the application license "the space, if any, which has been reserved for the loading and unloading of carts," in order to show what space was left in the premises for carts to be brought in.

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"I think that as this section has been inserted in the Bill, it will be much wiser to let it stand. The learned Advocate-General's principle seems to be that any one who has a large business is at liberty to monopolise the streets. But there are individuals who have no business, and they are just as well entitled to pass through the streets. It is not the fact that a continuous string of carts is allowed in a street, for there is a bye-law in Calcutta, which requires an open space to be left after a certain number of carts. The only persons who disregard this bye-law are the Government carts, and they apparently pay no respect to it. I understand, however, this section has rather reference to carts leaving the line and blocking the traffic while unloading. It will be for the Magistrate to construe its true meaning, and it may be as well to let it remain in the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"This is a section in regard to which there was considerable discussion in the Select Committee. The traffic which is referred to is principally jute, and I think it will operate with hardship to the native jute merchants whose warehouses abut on the streets, and therefore I would support the amendment."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"So far as the main principles of the Bill are concerned, that is, as regards the incidence and distribution of the taxation which is to supply the funds for keeping up the fire-brigade, I have declared my intention of not intervening in the debate or attempting to influence the decisions of the Council, and I adhere to that view. This, however, is a different question relating to the administration of the Police regulations of the town; and although I desire fully to recognise what the Hon'ble Mr. Allen has said that, as a rule, the views of the Select Committee ought to be supported, yet as the matter had not been fully considered in the light put forward by the National Chamber of Commerce, the members of which would be chiefly affected by this provision, it comes under the category of a case upon which new light has been thrown since the redrafting of the Bill by the Select Committee; and as it is now pointed out that police power already exists to maintain the proper regulation of the traffic in streets, it seems to me unnecessary that any special clause should be included in this Bill, with the view of giving special powers for the regulation of any particular class of traffic. Therefore, I should advise the Council to support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 4th March, 1893.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON moved that the clauses of the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade be further considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"As section 3 of the Bill was passed at the last meeting of the Council, I ask for special leave to move the following amendment:—

'That in clause (5) of section 3, the words or mustard be inserted after the word linseed.'

The Hon'ble the President said:—"As this is an amendment to remedy an oversight in a section already passed, sanction is given."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER continued:—"At the last meeting it was unanimously agreed that linseed-oil should be taken out of the operation of this Act. I move that mustard-oil be also taken out of it on the ground that mustard-oil is less inflammable than linseed-oil. The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar will, I am confident, support the ground I have ventured to urge, and I do not think there are many places in this City in which mustard-oil is stored in large quantities. There is not much of an export trade in it, and the quantity of oil imported and made here is substantially less than the quantity of other oils brought here for the purposes of the export trade. Furthermore, mustard oil is very largely used, especially by the poorer classes in these Provinces, in the preparation of their food, and an additional tax upon it will enhance its value and will ultimately have to be borne by its consumers."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"I have no hesitation in stating that mustard-oil is no more inflammable than linseed-oil, and I go further and say that neither is castor-oil nor cocoanut-oil more inflammable than linseed-oil. They are, if at all, less inflammable than linseed-oil. It will require a very little amount of consideration to say that their character is not inflammable.

For these reasons I do not see why the word 'oil' should be retained in the Bill, and I ask the permission of the President to move that clause (5) of section 3 be omitted, and that in clause (9) of the same section, the word 'oil' be also omitted."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:— "I concur in the proposal to add the word 'mustard-oil' to linseed-oil, as being an article exempted from the operation of this Bill. But when cocoanut-oil and castor-oil are mentioned as being non-inflammable materials, I can only express my surprise. I was always under the impression that cocoanut-oil was largely used in the whole of this country in lighting cherags and buttees, which form the universal means of illumination in houses over the greater part of this country. It was certainly universal until petroleum was, in a great measure, substituted for cocoanut-oil. I should say that cocoanut-oil is, strictly speaking, inflammable and should be included among the substances to be kept in warehouses under the Bill, but I do not desire to oppose the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's motion that 'mustard-oil' should be excluded."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"I know of no large godown in the city which is used exclusively for the storage of mustard-oil, nor in my recollection has there been any fire in which the storing of mustard-oil in small quantities has caused any serious difficulty. No doubt, whenever fire breaks out in premises where oil of any kind is stored, the fire burns more fiercely and is much more difficult to extinguish. But as regards mustard-oil, I see no special reason why it should not be excluded from the operation of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Maulvi SYED FAZL IMAM, KHAN BAHADUR, said:—"In my capacity of Vice-Chairman of the Patna Municipality, I have had long personal experience of places in which the oils which have been referred to are manufactured and stored in large quantities. There is no doubt, as has been observed by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, that oils when once ignited prove a source of great danger, and that the flames do not admit of prompt extinguishing. Yet oils cannot possibly be compared to jute, cotton, straw, wood, &c., in the matter of inflammability; and when the Council has agreed to exempt linseed-oil from the operation of the Bill, I think there can be no objection to place mustard-oil on the same footing. For these reasons I will support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar has asked permission to move as an amendment that the whole of clause (5) of section 3, the definition of 'oil,' be omitted, and that the word 'oil' be omitted from clause (9). As we have already admitted a cognate amendment which was not strictly in order, I see no objection to this further amendment being put."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"My reason for proposing this amendment is, that in simple fairness we cannot retain castor-oil and cocoanut-oil among the articles which are to be subject to the operation of this Bill, if we exclude mustard-oil and linseed-oil. They are on the same footing as far as the risk of fire is concerned, and if we exclude the latter, why should not we exclude the former also?"

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"I believe, Sir, that the Commissioner of Police will be able to support me in saying that it makes very little difference what the oil stored be once the building catches fire. I think that if linseed-oil and mustard-oil are left out of the Bill, all oils should be left out—not only on the general principle which has been suggested, but also because it would be very inconvenient in working to have exceptions. It would be most inconvenient to have the different classes of oil divided, some as taxable and some as not taxable under this Act. An oil vendor has all kinds of oil. We are to exclude small quantities of assessable articles, and it would therefore be necessary for the officer appointed by the Commissioner of Police to inspect these warehouses, and see what is taxable and what is not taxable; that he should make out a list showing so many canisters of linseed-oil, so much of mustard-oil, and so much of cocoanut-oil, and unless he counts up the number of canisters of each kind of oil he would be unable to say whether it was taxable or not. The quantities of each kind of oil would vary from day to day, and it would be very difficult to say in each case whether it was a warehouse under the Act or it was not. I think it should be laid down in a manner clear and understandable. I therefore agree with the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar that oil should be altogether omitted from clauses 5 and 9 of section 3."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"It is very difficult to make out a stronger case against castor-oil and cocoanut-oil than as regards mustard-oil and linseed-oil; and, as far as I am aware, there are no large warehouses in this City used exclusively for the storage of any of these oils. Therefore, I agree to the proposed amendment."

The Motions were put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"Before the business next on the list is proceeded with I wish, with the permission of the President, to ask whether the amendment left undecided in the first part of section 10, which was moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder at the last meeting of the Council, has been withdrawn."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The Council has not yet reached the amendment to which the hon'ble member has referred. The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe has asked leave to introduce an amendment to section 9, by the addition of the words 'the proceedings of such Committee shall not be submitted to the Commissioners in meeting, or be subject to revision by them.' This is an amendment of which notice has not been given. But considering that it appears that, by an oversight, the section as it stands may have an effect which the Select Committee had not foreseen, and possibly the Council may not have foreseen, I will allow the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe to be brought on now."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"When section 9 was before them, the majority of the Council was in favour of vesting in a Special Committee, to be appointed by the Commissioners in meeting with the consent of the Chairman the powers and discretion vested in the Chairman in regard to granting or withholding licenses for warehouses under this Act; that is to say, the Council considered it desirable that this matter should be placed in the hands of a small body of persons and should not be brought up for debate before a large unwieldy tribunal, such as the whole body of the Commissioners. Since that discussion, my attention has been called to the wording of section 66 of Act II of 1888, the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, and it has been suggested that the proceedings of this Special Committee might thereunder be subject to revision by the Commissioners in meeting. For my own part, I do not think so, nor do I consider that the Committee appointed under this Act would be bound by any Resolution passed by the Commissioners in the matter. But however the decisions of the Special Committee appointed under section 9 of this Act, with the consent of the Chairman, be thought to be subject to revision, and to be brought up for discussion and debate, prolonged it may be for a very considerable period of time, it is desirable so to amend this section that there shall be no room for a contention which, if successful, would, in some cases at least, render the investigations which might be made and the decision which might be arrived at by the Special Committee, simply labour lost. I therefore move that section 9 be amended by the addition of the words 'the proceedings of such Committee shall not be submitted to the Commissioners in meeting, or be subject to revision by them.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. COTTON said:—"I think this is emphatically a proposal of which notice should have been given. It appears to me to be a matter of very great importance that a proposal should be sprung upon us at the eleventh hour, setting aside a principle which has been definitely established by an Act of the Legislature. By section 56 of Act II of 1888, it is laid down that the action of Committees is subject to confirmation by a general meeting of the Commissioners. This is emphatically one of those principles which establishes the principle of Local Self-Government, dealing with local affairs in this Metropolis. The proposal of the learned Advocate-General entirely sets aside this important principle, and if it is to be adequately discussed at a meeting of this Council, I think we should have received notice of it beforehand. The Bill, as it is before the Council, places the grant of licenses in the hands of the Chairman of the Commissioners. It removes this power from the Commissioners in whose hands the power was formerly vested; but it authorises the Commissioners with the consent of the Chairman to appoint a small Committee to consider applications for licenses. The law, as it now stands in the Bill before you, whittles away the power of the Commissioners to the very smallest possible extent—to a far larger extent than I think is wise or proper. The learned Advocate-General informs you that by a large majority this revision in the law was carried. I think myself that it was a comparatively small majority. But be that as it may, there is no doubt that the Bill, as drafted, deprives the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta of a very valuable privilege. The proposal led to a very unmerited and unjust attack upon the Commissioners by a member of this Council. [The President said:—"I must ask the hon'ble member to withdraw the word 'unjust.' It appears to me to be a term which should not be applied by one member of this Council to another."] In deference to the President, I withdraw the word "unjust," although it expresses no more than my own personal feelings on the subject. The Hon'ble Mr. Allen is a Master of flouts and gibes, and loses no opportunity of girding at one time at the High Court; at another time at the Calcutta Commissioners, and at another time at this Hon'ble Council itself. [The President said:—"I must ask the hon'ble member to confine himself to what is before the Council. I think it very undesirable and a very unfortunate thing if occasion is taken in proceedings like these to bring forward occurrences which took place two years ago, and which we all wish to forget. We are not here for personal debate; we are deciding the question whether an amendment should be agreed to or not, and I must again ask the hon'ble member to confine himself to the question before us."] The Hon'ble Mr. Allen indulged in a long diatribe upon the conduct of the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta. [The President said:—"I must again point out to the hon'ble member that we are not discussing what the Hon'ble Mr. Allen said, but we are discussing a particular question, whether a particular amendment should be made in a particular section of the Bill before the House."] If this provision is added to the Bill, it will materially impair the powers of the Commissioners. I think that time should be allowed to the Council to consider the effect of the proposal."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The President has, under the Rules, the power of admitting amendments of which notice has not been given, and I have admitted this amendment under the impression that it corrects a mistake which had occurred, and will set things practically in the position in which they were supposed to be placed when the Select Committee passed the draft of the Bill which we are now considering. If it is a fact that the Select Committee had, before them, when this section was considered and agreed to by them, the possibility that the decision of the Special Committee under section 9 might be subject to the general consideration of the Commissioners in meeting and to revision by them, and if it was their intention that it should be so subject, then it is obvious that what has fallen from my hon'ble friend, Mr. Cotton, is a matter of very considerable importance, and therefore time should be allowed for the consideration of an amendment which would alter the intention of the Select Committee. But if the Select Committee did not anticipate or intend such a result, then the amendment merely carries out their objects and involves no change in principle. I think, therefore, under such circumstances, that it will be better to put the question to the House. The Council knows how far they understood that the Special Committee were to be authorised under section 9 to give a final decision, and how far they were under the impression that the decision of the Special Committee would be subject to revision under section 66 of the Municipal Act by the Commissioners at large. Those who understood the ninth section to imply a final decision on the part of the Special Committee would perhaps consider that we might proceed at once to the consideration of the amendment, which only clears away any doubt as to that intention. Those who consider that a new principle has been introduced will probably desire that it should be deferred for the next meeting of the Council. I therefore ask the Council whether they will consider this amendment to-day or postpone it to the next meeting of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"I had two reasons for voting that the consideration of this matter had better stand over till next Saturday. One was that there seems to be some heat in the atmosphere, and the other that I had a proposal which I hoped would have met the wishes of all, and that therefore this particular amendment might have been withdrawn in favour of another. The Bill if passed now would have an effect that was not wanted by those who advocated the passing of section 9 in its present form. It is more or less by an accident, I consider, that it was passed. It was rather, I think, in opposition to the amendment which was moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, and in disapproval of my remarks thereon, than by way of expression of their own views, that the votes were recorded by a small majority last Saturday. I am sure it was not the wish of that majority that licenses for hay, wood, straw, and coal should form the subjects of debate before a Standing Committee, that in all these cases opinions should be recorded in shorthand and the proceedings reported to the Commissioners as they would have to be and published. There are no less than 343 woodyards in Calcutta, and every one of these has to take out a license. The power of licensing wood godowns is vested in the Commissioners; and as I tried to explain last Saturday, but failed to convey to hon'ble members, the result is that the licensing of these warehouses for wood, hay, straw, coal, rags, bamboos, tallow, and wax is dealt with as routine work by the Chairman. There is a section of the Act, which I thought would have been present in the minds of hon'ble members, that vests in the Chairman the powers of the Commissioners subject to control in meeting; therefore the business is done with expedition when routine matters are left to the "Commissioners." But if such routine matters are to be made over to the Standing Committee, I say surely that you will waste a great deal of time. The fact was remarked upon by Your Honour in the Resolution on last year's Administration Report of the Calcutta Municipality that there are no less than 280 meetings of the Commissioners either in Committee or in general or special meeting last year—more meetings than there are working days or as many. It is now proposed to add another Committee, which would have to deal with the licenses of 343 wood warehouses, 86 straw warehouses, 20 bamboo warehouses, 26 coal warehouses and 10 tallow and wax warehouses, and 111 jute warehouses. Therefore, I regret, Sir, that this motion, which has been somewhat suddenly brought forward, could not have been postponed until next Saturday. I venture to hope that, if this motion be lost now, it will not be a bar to a proposal being brought forward next Saturday which will restore the work to a reasonable groove. For these reasons I must record my opinion against the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"It appears to me that there is some misapprehension about the learned Advocate-General's amendment, and that it is absolutely unnecessary. It is perfectly true that the Commissioners, acting under the powers conferred upon them by Act II of 1888, have the right of controlling in meeting all special Committees, and also their Chairman, when they deal with matters provided for in that Act; but surely this Bill is quite outside anything covered by Act II of 1888. It provides for a special service for a special purpose, and it throws the responsibility of granting certain licenses on the Chairman of the Commissioners of Calcutta. I cannot conceive that under those general powers of Act II of 1888, the Commissioners would have any power to interfere with their Chairman when he acts under the authority of this Bill on a business totally outside anything dealt with in Act II of 1888. Then we have a section, No. 9, allowing the Commissioners, with the consent of the Chairman, to appoint a Special Committee to exercise the powers which by this Bill are given to the Chairman. Suppose that an Act for the prevention of contagious diseases throws on the Chairman the functions of visitor to a lock hospital, could it be pretended that the Commissioners in meeting were entitled to control their Chairman in the discharge of his duty as visitor? Just as little right have they to control him in the discharge of his functions under this Act. Such being the case, the proceedings of the Special Committee appointed with the consent of the Chairman, and called into existence to discharge the functions thrown upon him, are just as much beyond the control of the Commissioners as the Chairman himself would be in the exercise of those powers. The Special Committee merely takes the place of the Chairman. Therefore, it appears to me, and I understand that the learned Advocate-General is disposed to hold the same opinion, that the amendment which he has now brought forward in no way alters the law, and that it is merely brought forward for the sake of obviating a baseless claim which might otherwise be made."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE in reply said:—"Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen has correctly appreciated the motives which led me to propose this amendment, and I regret to find myself in this matter not in accord with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. I think he has not correctly appreciated the position. As far as I understand the Bill now before the Council, there are special duties imposed on the Chairman of the Commissioners under sections 5, 6, 7, and 8. These are, as it appears to me, outside the powers which the Chairman of the Commissioners exercises under the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act. But coming to know that there is a contention, which has now been emphasized in this Council, that these powers are to be taken to be subject to the general provisions of the Municipal Act, it occurred to me that it is desirable to place before the Council such an amendment as should prevent such a question being raised. In my opinion there will not be taken away by my amendment any of the powers which the Municipal Commissioners now possess. It does not appear to me that they could contend, regard being had to the language of the Municipal Act, that by exercising the powers vested in him by this Bill for the granting or refusal of licenses, the Chairman would be exercising the powers of the Commissioners as defined in the Municipal Act; or that the Special Committee appointed under section 9, with the consent of the Chairman, to exercise the powers and the discretion of the Chairman under this Act, would be a Committee within the meaning of the Municipal Act. But I think it is desirable, when one finds that such questions may arise and may cause debate, to set the matter at rest by positive enactment. The proposed amendment in this view makes no reference to Act II of 1888 or to the Mufassal Municipal Act. I move it simply to give effect to what I for one understand to be the view taken by this Council that, when a Special Committee exercises the powers of the Chairman under this Act, their action is not a matter which can or ought to be brought before the Commissioners in meeting. Had I thought that the matter stood as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has suggested, namely, the removal of powers possessed by the Commissioners in meeting, I should myself have postponed this amendment until the matter had been placed before hon'ble members of Council. It is because I understood, and still understand, that there is not that question involved in this amendment, that I now bring forward this amendment."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 6.

The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
The Hon'ble Mr Risley.
The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

Noes 6.

The Hon'ble Maharajah Raveneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The votes of the Council, excluding myself, are equal. It is therefore incumbent on me to vote. The reason why I give my vote with the ayes is that it seems quite clear from what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General that the effect of the amendment is merely to set at rest a possible interpretation of the law which is not the right interpretation; and we thereby save the public and the municipality from unnecessary legal proceedings and contentions."

The Hon'ble President having recorded his vote with the Ayes, the Motion was carried.

The HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—The question I wish to ask is, has the notice of amendment moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder with reference to section 10, concerning which the Hon'ble Advocate-General and the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer have notices of motion on the paper, been withdrawn? I ask this, because I do not find it in the list of business, and without that amendment being before us, the Council is in a position in which it cannot, if so minded, express an opinion that the intentions of the Select Committee should be carried out. If both the Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe and the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendments are lost, what would be the result? Can we then vote on the proposal of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, which is not in the list of business, and which was not voted upon at the last meeting, and of the withdrawal of which we have not received notice?

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I understand from the Secretary that the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's motion, which was postponed at the last meeting for consideration of an amendment which the Hon'ble Mr. Allen adumbrated, and which he had not formulated, has not been withdrawn. Therefore, if the amendments of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General are lost, I shall be prepared to put the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motion of which he had given notice that for the first paragraph of section 10, the following be substituted:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed ten per centum per annum on the value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of the municipal taxes, less five per centum on the original outlay incurred in respect of the means and appliances therein or appertaining thereto for preventing or extinguishing fire, and less the annual expenditure incurred in or about the repairing, adding to, maintaining and working the same. Such annual expenditure to be taken to be the expenditure incurred in or about such repairing, adding to, maintaining and working during the preceding years.'

He said:—"I was induced by some observations which fell from hon'ble members opposite on the last occasion to bring forward this amendment, but I have since discovered from figures laid before me that there would be no relief whatever given to those proprietors of warehouses who have expended money on fire-extinguishing appliances, if only 5 per cent. were allowed on such expenditure."

The Hon'ble MR ALLEN said:—"From what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, and from what I learn from the gentleman who represents the commercial interests of Calcutta, I understand that the practical effect of this amendment will be almost nothing, and it is therefore only on the ground of theoretical propriety that I bring forward the proposal which stands in my name. The hon'ble member opposite, on the last occasion, proposed to make 5 per cent. the allowance to be deducted from the outlay on appliances for extinguishing fires with which jute presses and warehouses are furnished. But as some expense may be incurred of a recurring nature in keeping the original block in repair, and also in providing the means of working those appliances, I then draw a distinction between fixed outlay and recurring expenses, and in accordance with your suggestion, Sir, this amendment has been formulated, and I now leave it to the Council. The following is the amendment I propose:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed ten per centum per annum on the annual value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of the municipal taxes, less the annual outlay (including five per centum on the first cost of all fire-engines, pumps and other appliances) incurred in respect of the means for preventing and extinguishing fires.'

The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair said:—"I think some misconception exists regarding the cost of private fire extinguishing appliances in relation to the municipal assessment of properties; and that, if the providing of such appliances is to be encouraged, section 10 must stand as it had been drafted by the Select Committee.

"I find that 14 of the more important press-houses, representing a capital valuation of about 62½ lakhs of rupees, and with a municipal assessment of Rs. 3,12,050, are equipped with fire-extinguishing appliances costing Rs. 99,006. If this latter sum of Rs. 99,006 is to be deducted from the municipal assessment, it is probable that three of the smaller press-houses might be reduced in taxation to the extent of Rs. 480 per annum. The remainder and larger press-houses would receive no benefit. But if the value of the fire-extinguishing appliances is to be deducted from the capital valuation of 62½ lakhs of rupees, as we suggested at the last meeting of the Council, not one of the 14 press-houses will obtain any relief in taxation on account of having fire-extinguishing appliances of its own, and each may be taxed Rs. 750, making a total of Rs. 10,020. Likewise, as 5 per cent. of the value of these appliances would represent a very small sum, the deduction of this amount from the municipal assessment before ascertaining the tax to be levied for the fire-brigade, would be of no advantage. The amendments before the Council would therefore do away with the benefit intended to be obtainable by those who protect themselves and their neighbours in having appliances of their own for the purpose of controlling fires. On the other hand, if the cost of the fire-extinguishing appliances were to be deducted from the municipal assessment, some of the smaller press companies might reap some benefit; for, in instances, such cost represents a larger percentage on the municipal assessment of these smaller works than is the cost of appliances at the larger works in relation to the municipal assessment of the larger works.

It is probable that some of the smaller press-house companies having appliances of their own may be relieved of taxation to the extent of 1 to 1½ per cent. of the municipal assessment by the provisions of section 10 as it stands. These are the persons to whom I referred on a previous occasion as likely to be taxed to the extent of 6 per cent. of the municipal assessment; while their more influential neighbours in the trade may be called upon to pay only one and a half per cent. under the proposed system of differential taxation. The claims of the smaller trader may, in this respect, merit the consideration of the Council. I understand it to be the intention of the Legislature that all traders in hazardous goods should be encouraged to minimise the risk of fire within their premises, by adopting methods for the prevention and the control of fires, and that section 10 was drafted by the Select Committee with this object. The amendments now before the Council would stultify this intention. The hon'ble member, who proposed a similar amendment at the last sitting of the Council, feared lest an owner of a hazardous article might become exempt from taxation in having fire-extinguishing appliances of greater capital value than the municipal assessment of his premises, and I ask why should he not be exempt? Why should the owner of a large work having a small godown holding, for instance, tar, or tallow, or resin, or any other article specified in clause (9) of section 3, be troubled and further burdened with the fire-brigade tax, when he keeps on his premises fire-brigade appliances capable of protecting the whole of his works, and fit to douse this single godown at a moment's notice?

"It is evident to my mind, Sir, that if the provision of private fire-extinguishing appliances is to merit reduction in taxation, section 10 must stand as it has been presented by the Select Committee."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"I cannot support the amendment which has been proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, for if it is carried, it will add a great deal to the complications which already exist in the working of the Bill. In addressing the Council on the last occasion, I stated that it would be reasonable to allow such warehouses deductions from the annual assessment of their premises of 5 per cent. on the cost of the outlay for appliances for extinguishing fires. It is now sought to add to that 5 per cent. the outlay incurred in respect of the means of preventing and extinguishing fires. If this amendment is allowed to be introduced in the Bill, the result will certainly be this: somebody would have to decide what is reasonable and what is not reasonable outlay for the particular warehouse. There is nothing in the Bill to indicate who would decide that. Suppose a particular house chooses to expend Rs. 100 a month, or Rs. 1,200 a year, for the expenses of keeping up the appliances, who will decide whether such expenses are reasonable or not reasonable for the purpose? Then, again, there would be nothing in the Act to give the Commissioners power to enquire into the subject of the outlay by each warehouse. The result would be that the Commissioners would be placed in a position which would compel them to accept whatever statement of outlay may be furnished to them by the owners of warehouses, and to deduct whatever amount they may choose to pay from the annual assessment. I venture to think, Sir, that it will be complicating the Act to a very great extent if a general provision like this be introduced, namely, that in addition to 5 per cent. on the cost of all fittings, &c., the owners of warehouses shall be allowed to deduct the annual outlay which they will incur in keeping up the appliances. I cannot therefore support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen; and when the proper time comes I will bring in my original motion, the further consideration of which was postponed at the last meeting."

The Hon'ble Mr. LEE said:—I should have much pleasure in supporting the amendment of the hon'ble Mr. Allen's motion were it not that a better one is coming forward in that of the hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. I understand that the only difference between the two is that the hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment will allow a deduction for what are called recurring expenses of an uncertain nature and amount. The result of passing this amendment would be the reverse of what was intended when the idea was adumbrated. It will have the effect of throwing more taxation on jute warehouses than they have now. That is my opinion as to how it would actually work out. That, as the Council is aware, I do not think would be in itself inequitable, but it would be at the cost of a greater inequity. Difficulties would occur in respect of straw depôts, hay depôts, and wood depôts, when the calculation came to be made regarding the license fee payable, as to what deduction should be allowed for recurring expenses for the prevention of fires. In jute warehouses it would doubtless be decided that a portion of their establishment engaged in the general work of the warehouse should be charged to the maintenance and supervision of the fire-appliances. A certain percentage of the establishment would be so charged. The same principle would have to be applied when we come to timber yards and straw depôts. It is the practice in almost all straw depôts and timber yards to keep a certain number of ghurrahs of water. Somebody has to keep them filled with water, and it will be urged before the Standing Committee with considerable force that a share of the establishment of each timber yard and straw depôt should be debited to recurring expenses for the prevention of fire. Now under the Bill a sum of Rs. 5,679 will be collected from 343 depôts, and that comes to about Rs. 17 a year from each on the average. One chaukidar or other servant will get from Rs. 6 to Rs. 10 a month, the least amount, and it will be a very small proportion of his pay that will have to be debited to the prevention of fire to wipe out the whole of those fees now recovered or recoverable under the Bill from wood depôts. The same would be the result as to straw depôts, and the same result as regards other warehouses; and what could not be recovered from them would have to be recovered from jute warehouses up to 50 per cent. of the cost of the fire-brigade. The hon'ble the Advocate-General shakes his head, and I am at a loss to see why. The Bill says distinctly that the Municipal Commissioners can recover from warehouses of all kinds 50 per cent. of the cost of the fire-brigade. If, then, hay, wood, straw and other warehouses contribute nothing, it seems to follow as a matter of course that the 50 per cent. will all be subscribed by jute warehouses. I think that would not in itself be inequitable, but I see no reason why other warehouses, which were before paying Rs 13,000 a year, should only pay Rs. 8,000 under this Bill, while it would be more inequitable still that they should be exempted altogether. So that for practical reasons I would much prefer the amendment which is about to be moved by the hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, and for that reason I shall vote against the amendment of the hon'ble Mr Allen.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"As already indicated from what I said when I asked for leave to withdraw the amendment which stood in my name, I find myself unable to support the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment; and I wish to explain a little more in detail why I do so. I believe it will be found that when this section came before the Council on the last occasion, the proceedings which then took place, and which led to the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's formulating this amendment, showed that there was some considerable misunderstanding as to what the meaning of the section is. I gathered that some of the hon'ble members opposite supposed that from the amount of the annual license-fee it was intended to take the whole of the value incurred in respect of the appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires; whereas the section does not do so. Section 10, as I read it, provides that, from the annual value, as it is assessed to municipal rates, there shall be taken the outlay incurred on such appliances, and that upon the difference there shall be assessed a rate not exceeding 10 per cent.

"I have in my hand the details of the largest press-houses which were referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, and from a perusal of these it will be seen that if, as suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Allen in this amendment, there be only taken from the amount of the license-fee 5 per cent. on the first cost of all the fire-engines, &c., incurred in respect of preventing or extinguishing fires, not one large press-house or warehouse in this City will derive any advantage from the cost incurred in providing such appliances for protecting his premises from fire, and in so doing, protecting his neighbours; whereas if the Bill stands as it does at present, and as it left the hands of the Select Committee, there will be an advantage given to the smaller warehouses. I will illustrate my meaning by the figures to which I referred. Messrs. Ralli Brothers are one of the largest press-owners in this City, and the municipal assessment on their premises is Rs. 45,000. That is the annual value, and on that the rate is struck; and but for the fact that this Council has fixed the limit of Rs. 750 than which there shall not be a larger license-fee paid, they would have to pay a fee of Rs. 4,500 a year. Those Merchants have, however, laid out on fire-extinguishing appliances no less a sum than Rs. 36,640. Deducting that sum of Rs. 36,640 from Rs. 45,000, there remains Rs. 8,360; and if the Rs. 750 limit had not been passed, they would have had to pay a fee of Rs. 830. The consequence is that this firm does not gain one single anna by the great service which they have rendered to the community at large in protecting themselves from the risk of fire. Practically, they have expended a sum equal to the annual value of the premises, and yet they gain no advantage. The next on the list is the Union Press Company, whose municipal assessment is Rs. 34,100. They have laid out Rs. 9,000 in fire-extinguishing appliances, the balance is Rs. 25,100, and they also are only to be protected by the Rs. 750 limit. The Strand Bank Press Company has laid out in fire-extinguishing appliances Rs. 7,500 upon an annual assessment of Rs. 33,500, leaving a balance of Rs. 26,000; they therefore also gain nothing. The Golabarry Press, which is in the hands of Messrs. Finlay, Muir and Company, have expended Rs. 3,500 as against a valuation of Rs. 24,000; they, therefore, also would gain nothing. It is not until you come to the smaller presses that any advantage is gained by leaving the Bill as it is; and consequently no advantage will be secured if the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment were carried.

"Take, for instance, Watson's Press, the assessment upon which is Rs. 12,800, and the fire-extinguishing appliances cost Rs. 7,000. That reduces the assessable value to Rs. 5,800, and they would therefore gain an advantag of Rs. 170 per annum. The Canal Press has a municipal assessment of Rs. 12,400, with an outlay of Rs. 7,500, thus reducing the assessable value to Rs. 4,900, and they would therefore only pay Rs. 490 for the fire-brigade, and gain Rs. 260. Nasmith's Press, with an assessment of Rs. 12,000, has laid out Rs. 5,000, thereby reducing the assessable value to Rs. 7,000; they, therefore, obtain relief to the extent of Rs. 50. Similarly, as I understand, when you go down lower in the grade, the advantage of the Bill as it left the Select Committee will be felt by those to whom I understand hon'ble members generally are in favour of granting relief, namely the smaller men.

"There is not a man out of the fourteen largest press owners who gains the sum of one rupee even by the deduction from the total assessable value of the total amount laid out on appliances. It is only when you come down to the smaller men that any advantage is obtained. If you demolish the provision of section 10 as it stands in the Bill, and deduct instead 5 per cent. on the annual outlay and recurring expenses, there will be no relief gained at all; and it will come to this that, in the opinion of this Council, there is a premium held out to those who lay out nothing in self-protection, and by self-protection protect also their neighbours; whereas every encouragement should be given to persons in this City who, by protection of their own property from fire, afford protection to their neighbours. I would therefore ask the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to consider the figures which have been submitted to me.

"It is for these reasons that I find myself unable to support the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment. It is conceived with the best intentions, and I doubt not that to a certain extent it is due to the imperfect information laid before the Council, which gave it the idea that under the Bill, as it stands, the larger presses would get off scot-free. Whereas, I find that such will by no means be the case, and if 5 per cent. upon the outlay only be allowed, even the smaller presses will gain nothing from any expenditure which they may have made upon fire-extinguishing appliances.

"With reference to what has fallen from the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, it does not seem a reasonable construction of the Bill that the Chairman of the Commissioners or the Special Committee are bound to admit the claim made in regard to the cost of appliances."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I have considered the statement which has been placed in my hands by the learned Advocate-General, but I regret to say it does not impress me so strongly as it has done my hon'ble friend. The reason why this proposed amendment in the Bill would practically have no effect, in the case of these large warehouses, is that they have already gained so enormously by the decision to which the Council arrived at the last meeting of limiting the maximum to be paid by any warehouse to Rs. 750. A warehouse which is now paying Rs. 4,500 a year will, under this Bill, not be liable to pay more than Rs. 750. It is difficult to conceive a greater gain than that short of remitting them from the payment of all license fees altogether. Hon'ble Members will remember that an amendment to strike out of the Bill the limit of Rs. 750 was rejected. If it had been carried, there might have been more cogency in the learned Advocate-General's arguments; but as the Bill stands, they have no effect whatever, because the larger warehouses on behalf of which they were urged are already amply protected by limiting the maximum to Rs. 750. But when we are dealing with the somewhat smaller warehouses, it is then that the provision now proposed would act so unfairly. Assuming a small warehouse to be worth the annual value of Rs. 500, that is to say, that its capitalised value is Rs. 10,000 and the annual value Rs. 500, the assessment upon it would be one-tenth, or Rs. 50 a year. The owner of that warehouse would, if the provision now put forward be passed into law, merely have to spend Rs. 50 towards protection from fire to be exempted from all taxation under the Act. As I read the meaning of the provision, that would be the effect of such an outlay. It is to prevent anomalies of this kind that the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder moved his amendment that 5 per cent. upon the outlay incurred in respect of fire-extinguishing appliances should be deducted, and not that the capital outlay incurred should be deducted. It seems to me that that amendment is a very fair and reasonable one, and I hope the Council will accept it."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN in reply said:—"I think it unnecessary for me to take up any time with a reply. The whole discussion is entirely academical; it has travelled so utterly into cloud land that one would think it was in the island of Laputa it was being held. Practically, the charge on the larger warehouses is a flea-bite. They are so amply protected by the Rs. 750 limit that even if a much larger percentage were deducted, it would have no effect. In the Hon'ble Advocate-General's speech there was a constant confusion between the value which is subject to assessment and the capitalised value. The annual value of Messrs. Ralli Brothers' Press-house, for instance, is Rs. 45,000; the cost of appliances Rs. 35,000, which should be deducted not from the annual value, but from the capitalised value. So that even if ten, twenty or a much larger percentage is allowed, there will be no result to any of the fifteen large European Press-houses."

The Motion was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT called upon the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder to move the amendment, the further consideration of which was postponed at the last meeting of the Council, and at the same time mentioned that the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, with His Honour's permission, proposed to bring forward an alternative amendment by substituting the words '10 per cent.' for the words '5 per cent.' in the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's amendment.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the words "five per cent on" be inserted after the word "loss."

He said:—"The reasons for this amendment I laid before the Council on the last occasion, and I do not think there is any necessity for repeating them. I shall only make one remark, namely, that from the discussions which have taken place to day on the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, it appears quite clear that by reason of the maximum limit of Rs. 750, the provisions of this section, if it is amended as suggested by me, would have no application to those warehouses which would, but for that limit, have to pay a license fee of more than Rs. 750 on a 10 per cent. rate on the annual value; because in their case, whatever deductions might be made on account of the provision of fire-extinguishing appliances, the result would make no difference to them; as in the case put by the learned Advocate-General, of Messrs. Ralli Brothers, where their press-house is assessed at the annual value of Rs. 45,000, and the entire cost of the outlay for appliances is Rs. 36,640. There, whether you deduct 5 per cent., or 20 per cent., or 30 per cent., it would make no difference, because, under the maximum limit, they would not have to pay more than Rs. 750. According to my amendment, if a limit of Rs. 750 was not fixed, the result in their case would be this: five per cent. on Rs. 36,640 would be in round numbers Rs. 1,830, the amount to be deducted from Rs. 45,000, and on the balance of Rs. 43,170, a tax at 10 per cent. would have to be paid, amounting to Rs. 4,317; but under the maximum rule they would not be taxed more than Rs. 750. Therefore, whether you take a percentage upon the value of the fire-appliances, or allow a deduction of the whole of that value, it would make no difference to them. But in other cases, where the amount of the tax to be paid would be under the limit of Rs. 750, there, whether you deduct a percentage on the cost of fire-extinguishing appliances, or the whole of such cost, it would make every difference.

"For, as in the case put by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, suppose the annual value of a warehouse were Rs. 500, its capitalised value being Rs. 10,000, it would not be too much to spend Rs. 500 on the appliances, and if the whole of such sum were deducted from the annual value, there would be no tax to pay. It would be against all principle to deduct the whole sum from the annual value, because you would have to do it year after year, and so, by spending the sum of Rs. 500 once, the warehouse would be exempted from all payment of tax whatever; not that he would be allowed to deduct it once, but you would have to do it year after year. I do not think it was ever the intention that a person who spent in providing fire-extinguishing appliances a sum equal to the value of the annual assessment should be exempted from the payment of all tax for ever. It would make no difference on the larger warehouses whose license fee exceeds Rs. 750, but it would certainly make a great deal of difference to those whose fees were less than that maximum sum. Therefore, a percentage only can be taken, and I do not think 5 per cent. is a very unreasonable percentage to allow. In the case of the small warehouse put by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, a reasonable reduction, which the proprietor can expect, is 5 per cent. on Rs. 500, that is Rs. 25; and the tax would have to be assessed on Rs. 500 minus Rs. 25, which would be Rs. 475."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"There is no doubt that, as the matter stands, it has been made clear, from what has fallen in the preceding debate, that large jute presses will gain no advantage whatever from large sums of money spent in providing fire-extinguishing appliances, and for that reason I shall be obliged to record my vote against the amendment before the Council. I do not know whether I shall be in order, in reference to what has fallen from the President, in bringing forward an alternative amendment that, instead of 5 per cent., a deduction be made of 10 per cent. on the cost of fire-extinguishing appliances."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I will ask the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to bring forward the amendment which he proposes, and I would ask the House to vote on both the amendments simultaneously, unless hon'ble members consider that course inconvenient."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE then moved by way of amendment that "ten per cent." be substituted for "five per cent."

He said:—"I hold in my hands a statement which was furnished to the Select Committee either by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, or the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, showing what would be the reduction on account of fire-appliances if the reduction were taken at 5 per cent. upon the cost, and what does the Council suppose this extraordinary concession amounts to? In the whole of Calcutta it will amount to Rs. 620, and if baled jute were further excluded, there would be an additional Rs. 758-8-9. Therefore, if the amendment of the hon'ble member is carried, then it comes to the question whether the deduction should be 5 per cent. or 10 per cent. Ten per cent. would give a certain measure of relief—and, as I understand, a material measure of relief—to the smaller warehouses, but nothing whatever to the larger warehouses and presses; still, in the interests of those smaller warehouses, I venture to put it to the Council that it will be proper to make an allowance of 10 per cent. on the outlay for appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires and not 5 per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—I will vote with the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, as I think his amendment will have the effect of relieving the smaller rather than the larger warehouses.

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"In my opinion every encouragement should be given to warehouses for making provision for extinguishing fires, and as I myself intended to bring forward the amendment which has been moved by the learned Advocate-General, I will support his motion."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER withdrew his Motion.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE'S Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"Sir, with your permission obtained at the last meeting of the Council, I have the honour to move the amendment which stands against my name in respect of section 12 of the Bill. It is necessary for me briefly to explain the history of this section. As the law now stands, and as the Council are aware, licenses are granted by the Municipal Commissioners, and the same law which we are now repealing empowers the Municipal Commissioners to cancel or suspend the licenses of any warehouses. The complete power of cancelling and suspending licenses as well as of granting them, rests under the existing law with the Municipal Commissioners. The power of granting licenses has been modified in accordance with the provisions of this Bill. The Bill proposes a further modification in respect of the procedure to be followed in suspending or cancelling such licenses—a very much less important matter, I may say. As a fact, I do not believe that during the many years the Municipal Commissioners have administered this provision of the law, there has been any case in which they have cancelled a license. If there have been any such cases, they have been very few and far between, and this I know cannot be one of the matters in which the members of the Council would allege that the Commissioners have abused their powers. But as the power of granting licenses has been taken from them, it follows that the procedure for cancelling and suspending licenses must also be modified.

'Under the existing law' the Commissioners have the power of cancelling or suspending licenses in respect of which one or more of the conditions under which the license is held appear to have been broken, and also if the owner of a warehouse neglects to give notice of a change of occupation. And so it came to pass that, when the present Bill was being drafted and modifications in the procedure were agreed on, it was enacted that, whenever the Chairman of the Commissioners receives credible information that any of the conditions to which the license of a warehouse may be subject has been broken, he may apply in writing to the Magistrate, and, after proving his case and satisfying the Magistrate that such cancelment or suspension is necessary to prevent danger or injury, the Magistrate will then try the case judicially and decide whether the license shall be suspended or cancelled or not. But, Sir, I apprehend that in the Select Committee the fact was lost sight of that the conditions of the license are materially changed. Under the existing law a number of conditions are imposed which find no place in the present Bill, with the exception of two only: one is that a warehouse shall be liable to inspection; the other is that the annual fee shall be payable in respect of it. The other conditions have found their place as substantive offences to which penalties are attached under Chapter III of the Act; while one or two of the conditions have been relegated to the category of details to be specified in the application for a license, and if they are furnished in a way considered unsatisfactory by the Chairman, the application may be refused. There is no doubt that the first of the two conditions which remain in the Bill, namely, that the warehouses should be open to inspection, is a very important one; and that, if broken, it should render the license liable to be suspended or cancelled, as the case may be. But there are also other offences which may be committed by the owners of warehouses, such, for instance, as the offence specified in section 19 of the Bill, which imposes a penalty for preparing inflammable substances and exposing them on the roof of a building—one of the principal causes of fires in jute warehouses. If an offence of that character is committed, then it is eminently desirable that the license should be cancelled. This was one of the conditions under the old Act. It is no longer a condition, but is provided for as an offence with a penalty; and it seems to me that, in respect of this and other offences which may be committed by the owner of a warehouse, the Chairman of the Commissioners should be competent to move the Magistrate to adopt the procedure laid down in the Bill under this Act for offences committed under Chapter III.

"I may take this opportunity of drawing the attention of the Council to the fact that the duty of instituting prosecutions under the law is one which no longer rests with the Chairman of the Commissioners, or with the Commissioners in meeting. At present, under the existing law, the Inspector of Jute Warehouses is a servant of the Corporation. He is the executive officer responsible for seeing that the conditions of the license are complied with, and for bringing to notice offences committed under this Act, and for instituting prosecutions before the Magistrate. At present, therefore, prosecutions are instituted by a subordinate of the Commissioners and with their authority. Under the Bill, as it is drafted by the Select Committee, the Inspecting Officer will be an officer to be appointed by the Commissioner of Police. He shall be a member of the Fire-brigade, but shall not be a member of any Police Force. He will, however, be under the orders and at the disposal of the Commissioner of Police. The executive control of warehouses passes from the Chairman of the Corporation to the Commissioner of Police. And therefore it is that this section 12, as proposed to be amended by me, is so drafted that, whenever the Chairman of the Commissioners receives credible information that a condition of the license has been broken, or that an offence is committed, he is authorised to lay this information before a Magistrate with a view to applying for the cancelment or suspension of the license. This information would, in the first instance, be communicated to the Chairman by the Commissioner of Police through the Jute Inspector, and the Chairman will then be in a position to move the Magistrate to take the judicial procedure contemplated by section 12 for suspending or cancelling a license.

"With this explanation, Sir, I have the honour to move that in sub-section (l) of section 12, after the words 'has been broken by the holder thereof' the words 'or that any offence for which a penalty is prescribed under Chapter III of this Act has been committed by any holder of a license' be inserted."

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe said:—"I rise to support the Bill as it left the hands of the Select Committee. The conclusion at which they arrived was not obtained without considerable discussion and as much consideration as the members of the Select Committee could bring to bear upon it; and the conclusion to which they arrived was that the matters and things dealt with in the clauses relating to procedure are not matters which justified the suspension or cancellation of licenses, but are properly and sufficiently dealt with by imposing pecuniary penalties. The penalties, if hon'ble members will take the trouble to look at the Bill, are by no means light In truth, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill desires to impose a double punishment; so that persons who commit any of the offences for which penalties are prescribed would be liable, in addition to those very serious pecuniary results, to cancellation or suspension of their licenses. The hon'ble member's proposed amendment is, I take it, intended to include offences under section 17, neglecting to notify change in occupation of warehouse; under section 18, giving false information respecting a license; under section 19, to which the hon'ble member referred, where the owner or occupier of a warehouse preparing or causing to be prepared or dried any inflammable substance on the roof of a warehouse is liable to Rs. 50; under section 21, using warehouse as a residence; under section 22, for bringing or using matches or artificial lights, and under section 23, smoking in a warehouse—offences which were liable to a penalty of Rs. 10. Persons committing any of the above offences would not only be liable to the very serious penalties provided in the Bill, but under the hon'ble member's amendment, be liable to have their licenses cancelled or suspended.

"I venture to submit to the Council that the conclusion arrived at by the Select Committee should not be so materially altered as the hon'ble member proposes to do by his motion. I ask therefore that the Council should uphold the clause as it left the Select Committee. That clause deals with matters in respect of which licenses may be cancelled or suspended. The conditions on which they are held are set out in the license. They are (1) the non-payment of the license fee, and (2) that which goes to the root of the whole matter, namely, the slightest attempt to prevent due and proper inspection by the officer appointed for the purpose. For the breach of these conditions, the Select Committee thought more severe measures should be resorted to, namely, the suspension or cancellation of the license."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lee said:—While I think, sir, that there ought to be some such power as exists now under the Fire-Brigade Act for the revocations of the licenses of habitual offenders, I cannot agree with the hon'ble members in charge of the Bill that the duty of conducting prosecutions should be thrown on the Chairman of the Commissioners. There is no provision in this Bill to enable him to meet the expenses of criminal proceedings, and I don't know why they should be met from the general sanitary funds of this city."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, rose to order, and asked the Hon'ble the President whether it was relevant to the motion whether the expenses of criminal proceedings should fall on the Corporation.

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said that was the reason why he was unable to support the hon'ble mover of the amendment, that it threw upon the Chairman of the Corporation the duty of prosecuting offenders with the view of cancelling their licenses. It has been explained by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill that the inspection of warehouses has been removed from the hands of the Commissioner to those of the Commissioner of Police. If, then, any prosecutions are to be undertaken, let the Commissioner of Police pay for them.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"With regard to the call to order by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, the objection which the Hon'ble Mr. Lee has taken, seems to me to be an objection which he has a right to take, though I hardly see that it applies. If in his opinion the amendment would throw extra expenditure on the Chairman of the Corporation, it seems to me that he is not out of order in taking that objection."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE, continuing, said:—"Yes, Sir, this amendment if passed would throw extra expenses upon the Chairman of the Corporation, the expenses of the law Courts. It would be necessary for him to proceed when offences are committed under Chapter 3 of the Bill. It would occasionally be incumbent upon him to take proceedings under section 12 which he would not have to take as the Bill now reads. I think there is some slight misapprehension, for I am not sure whether I understand the learned Advocate-General right in saying that any person who commits the offences mentioned in sections 17, 18, 19, 21, 22 or 23 will be liable to have his license revoked or suspended. I do not find it so provided anywhere. [The Advocate-General:—"I did not suggest that. I said that if the hon'ble member's amendment be carried it might have that effect."] For this pecuniary reason, then, I record my vote against the motion."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"It seems to me, as regards the matter which has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Lee regarding the cost of prosecutions, that no such cost will fall on the Commissioners. Section 12 merely applies to occasions in which the Chairman of the Commissioners may receive credible information, and that credible information will, I apprehend, be given to him generally by the Inspector of Warehouses. All that would be required of the Chairman of the Commissioners would be to determine, on receipt of information from the Inspector, whether he found it necessary to apply to the Magistrate for an order to suspend or cancel a license. If the information seemed to him to be sufficient, he would instruct the Inspector to apply to the Magistrate, and then the case would be proceeded with. If he considered the information insufficient, no further action would take place.

"As regards the motion now before the Council, it seems to me that section 12 as it now stands limits the class of offences for which a license may be cancelled, to a refusal to admit the Inspecting officer or for declining to pay the annual fee. The probability of the institution of prosecutions on either of these grounds is hardly worth considering. Regarding offences under the penalty clauses, by clause (2) of section 12 it is provided that the Magistrate shall not make an order suspending such license unless he is satisfied that it is necessary to prevent or obviate immediate danger or injury of a serious character. Even the discretion of the Magistrate is fettered by this clause. And it certainly seems to me that the offence for which a penalty is provided in section 19, which has been referred to, may possibly be of so dangerous a character that on a proper representation to the Chairman he might think it necessary that the license be suspended, and the Magistrate in exercising his discretion under clause (2) of section 12 might think it necessary to pass an order to prevent immediate danger. On these grounds I shall support the amendment of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"This is a section which was very carefully considered by the Select Committee; and I support the section as amended by the Select Committee, and the views set forth by the learned Advocate-General."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON in reply said:—"I have only a word or two to say in reply. I can sympathise with the feelings of the learnd Advocate-General and of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, in desiring to give every protection to the owners of warehouses against having their licenses arbitrarily cancelled. I think, however, that there is very little risk of that in any case, because, as I observed to you just now, I doubt whether there is a record of any license having been cancelled by the Commissioners, but it is possible that the Chairman of the Corporation might desire to cancel a license. In such a case it will obviously be impossible for him to act in an improper way, owing to the extremely elaborate procedure which this Bill lays down. He must make a written statement which is laid before a Magistrate; the Magistrate would then issue a summons to the owner of a warehouse and would then try the case judicially, and even then he would not grant the order applied for by the Chairman unless he is satisfied that it is necessary to do so to prevent immediate danger or injury. I can hardly conceive of a procedure which is more elaborate and more calculated to prevent the arbitrary cancellation or suspension of a license.

"With regard to the financial difficulty to which the Hon'ble Mr. Lee referred, I must say it seems to me to be visionary. Under section 27 of the Bill, which is so drafted as to cover any legitimate charge against the funds of the fire-brigade, if any expense is incurred by the Chairman of the Commissioners in instituting cases under section 12 of the Act, it would legitimately fall on such funds. But I agree with the hon'ble the Commissioner of Police that such charges would be infinitesimal.

"At the suggestion of the President, I will propose a verbal amendment in the Motion I am laying before the Council, by specifying the sections of Chapter III referred to. I would add the words 'or to any offence for which a penalty is prescribed under sections 17, 19, 21, 22 and 23 of this Act has been committed by any holder of a license.'"

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"This is a motion which affects a question belonging to the police or the judicial side of the business, and therefore the restriction I imposed upon myself of not expressing my views as regards any question of imposition or distribution of taxation, does not apply, and I think it well that I should make one or two remarks on the subject. The proposal is, that the penalty which the Select Committee imposed on certain offences, should be considerably enhanced by the addition of the possible suspension or cancellation of the license. In one of these cases (section 17) I observe that the penalty which is provided by the existing law has been reduced from Rs. 100 to Rs. 10, and therefore it would seem as if an enhancement of the penalty would be contrary to the intention of the Select Committee. If, in its discretion, the Select Committee, in addition to the provision that the Magistrate may impose a penalty of so many rupees a day as long as the offence continues, had added a clause that, in the event of the offence being continued or repeated on (say) three occasions, the license may be suspended or cancelled, I should have seen no objection to that legislation. But as the Select Committee have not done that, and as no new or strong reason has been given in favour of the amendment, I fall back on the canon that the general rule we should follow is, that where no new light or no new considerations have been brought forward, it is well to support the Bill as it has been amended by the Select Committee; and therefore I am opposed to the Motion."

The original Motion being put, the Council divided :—

Ayes 2.

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.

Noes 10.

The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.
The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motions of which he had given notice, that in subsection (1) of section 12 after the words "upon the holder of the license," the words "and in the case of an alleged breach of any of the conditions of the license" be inserted; also that after the words "be cancelled or suspended" the words "and in the case of the alleged commission by such holder of any such offence to show cause why the penalty prescribed for such offence should not be imposed upon him" be inserted, and that after the words "and may also" the words "in the first of the cases above mentioned" be also inserted.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER moved that in sections 22 and 23, after the word "warehouse" the words "used for the pressing or screwing of jute or cotton" be inserted.

He said:—"If you read sections 22 and 23 with section 21, it would appear that there is a prohibition against using as a residence a warehouse for jute or cotton only. The question is, whether it is possible to use a warehouse as a human residence without taking therein matches or artificial lights, unless duly and thoroughly protected, or without smoking therein. I submit that, if it is intended that a warehouse other than a jute or cotton warehouse should be allowed to be used as a human residence, then those restrictions should not be put upon them. But if that is not the intention, then the words which I propose should be inserted in this section."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"As a matter of fact I believe the words to which the hon'ble member has referred were omitted by mistake, and it appears to me that there is full reason for the suggestion he has made. But the question arises whether the omission is covered by the definition of 'warehouse' in section 3, clause 9, which is as follows:—'Warehouse means any building or place used for the storing or pressing or keeping of jute, cotton, oil, resin, varnish, pitch, tar, coir, hay, straw, rags, tallow, ship-chandlery, wood, or other inflammable substance or thing for the time being subject to the operation of this Act.' And there may be a question whether a warehouse which is used for nine months of a year only as a warehouse should be subject to any penalties. I would suggest that the words of section 21 be used in sections 22 and 23, by which a penalty can only be levied if at the time of the commission of the act jute or cotton be stored therein."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"If this Bill is passed, then hay and straw depôts will become warehouses. I know for certain, that the abominable hookah has been the cause of many dangerous fires, and I think that hookahs should not be allowed to be introduced into warehouses."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said:—"There is no law to prevent artificial lights and matches from being used in hay and straw godowns, and it will be very hard to introduce such a provision into the Bill. Probably the owners do not live in them; but other people live there. The number of warehouses under the Act has been increased to a great extent, and it will be hard not to allow their being used as residences."

The Hon'ble MR LEE asked if he would be out of order if he proposed to add "straw and hay" to the motion. It would be in accordance with the precedent followed in the case of 'oil.'

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I wish to point out to the Council the extreme inconvenience of springing upon the Council motions of this kind. I think I shall not be going beyond my proper position if I ask the Council seriously to consider, before coming to this Chamber, what they are going to move, so that it should be possible for them to hand in in writing the motion which they intend to propose before the discussion begins. In this case, two of the speakers have generally declared their unwillingness to include hay and straw depôts in these punitive provisions, and now one member desires that they should be included. I think it very inconvenient that such amendments should be brought forward in the middle of the discussion, when it was in the power of hon'ble members to bring them forward earlier, so that they might be placed on the List. I think it right to decline to allow this motion to be put before the House."

The Motions were put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motions of which he had given notice, that in section 25 the words "shall rateably impose the annual fees payable for licenses under section 10 of this Act upon all warehouses, and" be omitted; also that in line 7, for the word "such" the word "the" be substituted, and that after the word "fees" the words "payable for a license under section 10 of this Act" be inserted.

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS moved that in line 1 of section 26, for the word "may" the word "shall" be substituted.

He said:—"Although Rule 42 provides that 'amendments shall ordinarily be considered in the order of the clauses to which they respectively relate', I would beg, in moving the first amendment which stands in my name, to be allowed to refer to the other two amendments which I am to move, and which appear in the same section of the Bill. The object which it is desired to attain, is identical in each case; and the amendments will of course only be put to the Council in the order in which they appear on the List of Business.

"The first amendment, which I have the honour to move, is in line 1 of section 26, that for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted.

"The objects which is desired to attain by the amendments, which I have the honour to move, are that the half per cent. rate on bastis and the one-eighth per cent. rate on the annual value of all houses and lands assessed under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884 and the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act II of 1888, as provided in the Bill, shall be levied in full, and shall form the basis of taxation for the up-keep of the fire-brigade.

"In support of this view I would like to refer to the Report of the Select Committee, in which the following remarks occur:—

'In view of the primary responsibility imposed upon the Commissioners, we have, by section 26 of the amended Bill, while exempting the owners or occupiers of a warehouse licensed under the Bill from further liability, empowered the Commissioners to levy the three following rates:—

(a) a two and-a-half per cent. rate assessed on buildings or places used for the storage of inflammable substances, which the Government may declare liable to the payment of this rate; the amount, however, to be levied in any one case not to exceed Rs. 100:

(b) a half per cent. rate assessed on basti lands:

(c) a general one-eighth per cent. rate on all houses and lands assessed under the Municipal Acts affecting the Municipalities concerned.'

"It will be remembered by the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill, and also by the other members of the Select Committee, that at the several meetings when this question of apportioning the mode of differential taxation was considered, on each occasion I pressed that the proper way to proceed was to first decide what portion of the cost of the brigade should be met by the general tax-payer; this, I urged, would give a known quantity, as it would be levied on the rates and taxes, and any balance required should be rateably imposed on the industries coming under the definition of warehouses and other buildings, for the storage of goods of a less inflammable class.

"I hold in my hand, Sir, a paper in original, which I took to several of the meetings of the Select Committee, and which I handed to the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton and to the learned Advocate-General. This paper shows, Sir, that I assumed the cost of the brigade to be a maximum of Rs. 75,000. It suggests:—

	Rs.
'1st.—That a rate of ¼ or 2 annas per cent. should be levied on all houses and lands as they are assessed for municipal taxation, and I took roughly the value of such houses and lands as Rs. 1,80,00,000 which would realize about	22,500
'2nd.—That a rate of ½ or 8 annas per cent. should be levied on all basti lands, which, taken at Rs. 31,16,563, the valuation given by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee on the 19th of December, would realize about	15,000
Total ...	37,500'

"I think, Sir, I may venture to say that it was very much on the lines suggested that the Committee came to a decision as to the form of taxation which should be adopted, and in agreeing to the section of the Bill, which is numbered 26, and to the clauses (b) and (c) of that section, I certainly thought that they could not possibly be construed in any other way; but I find from the statement which was handed to hon'ble members at the meeting of the 4th of February that at the foot of that statement the rate on bastis is taken at 4 annas per cent., and that on pucca buildings at one-and-a-half annas per cent. According to my views, and I think some of my colleagues are of the same opinion, this is wholly contrary to what we anticipated, as we were under the impression that the basis of taxation was to be the charging of a rate of 8 annas per cent. on bastis and a two-anna per cent. rate on the general tax-payer.

"As shown in my original paper, the sum which would be realised from this form of taxation amounted to Rs. 37,500, and this works out very closely if the valuation of bastis and houses given us by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton are taken. I find the statement shows that bastis are—as against Rs. 37,500, estimated by me some time ago when the question of taxation was being considered in Select Committee.

	Rs.
Valued at Rs. 31,14,616, which at 8 annas per cent. would realize	15,572
That the valuation of pucca buildings is given at Rs. 1,51,39,953, which at 2 annas per cent. would realize	18,924

"I have taken all the figures given in the statement as correct, and I think the closeness of my estimate and that of the figures just stated shows clearly what was the intention of the Committee; but the statement referred to reverses the order of things, and proposes that only a certain portion of the rate leviable under the Bill on bastis and on the general tax-payer shall be taken, and still leaves the larger share to be borne by the industries coming under the definition of warehouses.

"One of the main objects for which legislation has been resorted to in this instance was the reduction of existing taxation on the jute industry, and for the more equitable distribution of taxation for the upkeep of the brigade. I do not anticipate that the rate of 2 annas per cent. to be levied on the general tax-payer will be objected to by any of the members of this Council, as it has been admitted on all sides that the general public do undoubtedly derive considerable benefit from the brigade. The tax of 8 annas per cent. on bastis is not excessive, considering the danger these places offer, and the difficulty which is experienced in preventing fires occurring in these places from spreading.

"It is perfectly true that the residents of such places belong to the poorest classes, but the proposed taxation is small; and it is better that they should pay a small sum annually for the upkeep of an institution which may some day be the means of saving all the property they possess in the world.

"I was glad to learn from the speech made by my colleague the Hon'ble Babu Gonosh Chunder Chunder, at the meeting of the Council held on 18th February last, that he, too, read the clauses (b) and (c), as I take them, for, if I understand him rightly, he gave us his reason for voting for an all-round rate that the inhabitants of bastis would only, under that proposal, be called upon to pay a tax equal to a quarter per cent., instead of half per cent., as provided in the Bill. For the reasons stated, I beg to move that in line 1 of section 26, for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted."

The Hon'ble Mr. COTTON said:—"It appears to me that this amendment is open to objection on the principle which you yourself, Sir, prominently brought to the notice of the Council a few minutes ago, namely, that it introduces a radical change in the Bill as approved by the Select Committee, and has been introduced into this Council without any new considerations having been urged on behalf of it. If there were no other reason than this, I would ask you to use your influence in rejecting this amendment; for I think, as it is now put by the hon'ble member, this amendment deals very hardly and unfairly by the rate-payers of this city. There is a very wide difference between 'may' and 'shall.'

"The intention of the Select Committee (I speak for myself only, but I understood it to be their general opinion) was that the rates introduced into this Bill should be the maximum rates which might be worked up to on an emergency. I never understood that it was to be compulsory on the Municipal Commissioners to impose these rates either on basti owners or on the general community; and I think it is desirable that the votes of the Council on a matter vitally affecting the interests of the rate-payers of this Metropolis and materially affecting the Municipal Commissioners of the city should not be taken until the Commissioners themselves have had an opportunity of expressing their views on this compulsory taxation or proposed compulsory taxation. They have had every opportunity of commenting on the form of taxation which is proposed by the Bill as drafted by the Select Committee, that is to say, levying a sum up to this rate as a maximum; and it is well known that they are not in favour of it. On that point, I have no sympathy with their objections; but I think that the Commissioners and the rate-payers of this City may strongly object that at a meeting of this Council, without their being aware of the fact, a provision should be passed into law imposing compulsory taxation according to certain limits, which, as I shall show, would effect a very material increase in the burden thrown upon the town. If a half per cent rate is levied on bastis, and one-eighth per cent. on the general community at a maximum, the total will be about Rs. 35,500 in Calcutta alone. I have no data before me to say what the amount will be in Howrah or the Suburbs, but it may reasonably be assumed that it would amount to about Rs. 5,000 more. In other words, the hon'ble member's amendment would impose a compulsory rate of Rs. 40,000 for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, leaving jute and cotton and other warehouses and all miscellaneous receipts to make up the remaining Rs. 20,000 or less required for maintaining the brigade.

"The proposal, in fact, entirely reverses the policy on which this Council has hitherto proceeded. It has hitherto been assumed that the nucleus of the fire-brigade fund should be the fees levied from warehouses as defined in the Bill, which, under the law at present in force, pay a total taxation of more than Rs. 80,000; Rs. 68,900 being levied from jute and cotton warehouses only, and the sum of Rs. 13,000 or Rs. 14,000 from wood, hay, straw, &c., which are now brought under the Act. The Bill, as it at present stands, will greatly relieve both jute warehouses as well as hay and straw depôts which are highly assessed under the present law. The new law, so far as we have approved of this Bill, declares that the fees on such warehouses should not exceed one-half of the total cost of the fire-brigade, that is to say, it would not exceed more than Rs. 30,000 as a maximum. If the change you are now asked to accept is accepted by the Council, it would arbitrarily reduce the amount so levied to about Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 16,000, and there is no reason whatever that I can see why this large reduction should be made.

"This is, by far, the most important amendment which has been proposed in the Bill during the course of this discussion. It radically affects the principle upon which we have hitherto gone. That principle is that the nucleus of the fire-brigade fund is made up by the fees on and licenses on warehouses, and that what more is wanted to meet the cost of the fire-brigade is to be supplied by taxation on the general public; whereas what is proposed by the hon'ble member is that the nucleus should be made up from general taxation, and what remains over should be supplied by fees on warehouses. That entirely reverses the principle of the Bill. It illustrates no doubt the great difficulty there is in passing a Bill of this nature through a Council where interests are so conflicting. It indicates also the wide difference of opinion which existed while the Bill was under discussion in the Select Committee. No one who was present at the meetings of the Select Committee can be surprised at the wide differences of opinion expressed by hon'ble members when they afterwards met in Council to discuss the clauses of the Bill. That Bill, as it left the hands of the Select Committee was, however, I understood, except in details, generally accepted by the majority of that Committee. It was at least accepted in its main point—the main principle of the Bill which relates to the incidence of taxation. If the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis's amendment is carried, it will revolutionize the Bill as it at present stands; and I hope the members of this Council will think twice and three times before they commit themselves by accepting this amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE said:—"If the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis was in opposition to the views of the Select Committee, guiding myself by the observations that have fallen from the President during the course of these debates, I should have felt great hesitation in supporting it. But the amendment is not, as I understand it, in opposition to that view. Before the report of the Select Committee was made, we were furnished with details showing what the annual cost of the fire-brigade was. We further received the assurance of the hon'ble member, the Commissioner of Police, that the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade was practically of a stationary character, and that there was no ground for anticipating that it was likely materially to vary in the time to come. Proceeding on the principle which commended itself to the majority of the Select Committee, namely, that there should not be a general rate, and the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair and myself accepted as securing the largest measure of relief thus obtainable, the principle which the majority of the Select Committee arrived at that it would not be fair or just, in view of the reasons which led to the adoption of this and other matters which were before the Committee, to subject jute and other industries to a tax exceeding 50 per cent. I was at one with the hon'ble mover in this matter. Speaking for myself, I in accord with the hon'ble mover understood that it was as an accepted thing that the taxes leviable under section 26, clauses (b) and (c), were to be imposed, and figures were laid before us which showed that if they were so imposed, then that which the Bill aimed at would be effected, namely, that there would not be imposed on the jute industry a liability exceeding 50 per cent. We were given to understand that, as expressed in section 24, the Commissioners were, in the first instance, to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade, and that they were, for the purpose of providing the cost of the fire-brigade, over and above the amount recoverable as license fees, and with the view of keeping down those fees to the limit proposed to impose certain rates. But to my utter surprise, at the first meeting in this Council, there was handed a statement by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, showing that the principle adopted by the Select Committee was to be departed from, namely, that the main portion of the expenditure incidental to the fire-brigade was to be taken from the jute and other industries, and that there was to be a much smaller amount taken from those other sources provided in the Bill. Now, Sir, the Select Committee presented their Report, and the views of the Select Committee are embodied, I presume, in that Report; and they deal with this matter in this way. In paragraph 3 they say—

'We were unanimous in the opinion that the Commissioners should be made primarily responsible for the cost of the fire-brigade, and by a majority have decided that the owners or occupiers of warehouses should be liable to contribute, in the shape of license fees, an amount which shall not exceed one-half of the charges.'

"I remember well the discussion which took place on that part and of the Report and which led to the alteration of the draft by the insertion of the words 'shall be liable to contribute half the charges' to the shape in which it now is, namely, 'shall not exceed one-half of the charges.' Then the Report went on to say in paragraph 4:—

'In view of the primary responsibility imposed upon the Commissioners, we have by section 26 of the amended Bill, while exempting the owners or occupiers of a warehouse licensed under the Bill from further liability, empowered the Commissioners to levy the three following rates:—

(a) a two and-a half per cent. rate assessed on buildings or places used for the storage of inflammable substances, which the Government may declare liable to the payment of this rate; the amount, however, to be levied in any one case not to exceed Rs. 100;

(b) a half per cent. rate assessed on basti lands;

(c) a general one-eighth per cent. rate on all houses and lands assessed under the Municipal Acts affecting the municipalities concerned.'

"That that was the plain and obvious meaning of the section of the Bill now under consideration is manifest from the observations of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, who was not a member of the Select Committee, to which the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis has referred. [The Hon'ble Mr Cotton said:—"Does the learned Advocate-General interpret the word 'empowered' to mean 'bound?'"] I do not. The words are of an enabling character. 'May' is, however, not frequently read as 'shall.' But when to my astonishment I found from the statement put into my hands that, instead of a rate of 8 annas per cent., only 4 annas per cent. was taken as the rate on bastis valued at Rs. 31,14,616, and one and-a-half anna per cent. rate was taken on pucca buildings, valued at Rs. 1,51,39,953, and by so doing to shew that the amounts obtainable from these rates was, when taken with the receipts from license fees, insufficient to meet the sum of Rs. 60,000 put down as the estimated cost of the fire-brigade. The consequence was that by reducing the percentage on basti rates by one-half, and by taking the general rate at 1½ annas per cent. instead of 2 annas per cent. on pucca buildings, there is a most serious difference shown. The proceeds of the two totals come to only Rs. 24,250, and the argument was then put forward in Council that there was only Rs. 24,250 available, and that the license fees on warehouses, &c., in Calcutta, Cossipur-Chitpur, &c., would only amount to Rs. 29,000, and so there would not be sufficient to provide for the cost of the fire-brigade. When, as a matter of fact, if the principle of the Bill be taken, and it were made obligatory on the Commissioners to impose the taxes specified in the Bill, then there would certainly not be imposed on the jute and other industries a sum exceeding 50 per cent. of the cost of the fire-brigade. I am in accord with the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis in considering that the basis on which we proceeded was that there was to be this taxation on bastis and pucca buildings, and I for one was not prepared for this mode of dealing with it. It seems therefore to be advisable that the Bill should be amended in the way proposed by the hon'ble mover of the amendment. I accordingly support the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis."

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder said:—"I think that both my hon'ble friend Mr. Wallis and the learned Advocate-General are under a misapprehension in supposing that I said that in construing section 26 the word 'may' should be read 'shall' in the speech which I made the other day regarding basti owners; what I meant to say was that, under the provisions of this Bill, hut-owners were liable to pay to the extent of 8 annas per cent., and the learned Advocate-General's motion if carried would limit their liability to the extent of 4 annas only: it was better that we should support a measure which would reduce the liability of hut-owners. But I never, by what I said on that occasion, intended to convey the idea that I read the word 'may' in this section as 'shall.'

"As regards the principle of raising this tax, although I was not a member of the Select Committee, I understood the principle to be this: that the jute trade should not be made to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade as it had hitherto done, but that the Commissioners, who had hitherto had charge of the payment of the expenses of the fire-brigade, should retain that power in their hands; that is to say, they should be primarily responsible to pay the cost to the Commissioner of Police, and they should recoup the expense which they had incurred not in the first instance by raising the taxation provided for in the Bill, but by raising funds according to the directions in the Act from jute-owners, and then by supplementing it by a tax on the general community. That I take to be the principle of the Bill. What the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis now proposes seems to be a new principle, and I therefore cannot support his amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—As a Member of the Select Committee I wish to say that my remembrance of the views expressed at the meeting of the Select Committee are in strict accord with the memory of the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill, that is to say, I thought it was clearly understood that the maximum rate which we fixed as leviable upon warehouses would be in practice levied up to one-half of the cost of the fire-brigade. The majority said let it be not more than one-half. Let jute, which has now been paying 120 per cent. of the cost, have hay, straw, wood, &c. to assist it, and then let them contribute up to one-half the cost, and let the rest be distributed among the general rates. If this motion were carried it would be worse than if the original motion of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General had received the approval of the Council. The figures quoted by the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis are quite correct. They show as liabilities and charges at maximum rates on buildings and lands in Calcutta alone the sum of Rs. 34,500, and adding what would be received from the other municipalities, it would make a total of Rs. 37,300, leaving out of Rs. 60,000 (which is the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade) the sum of Rs. 22,700 to be collected from all warehouses, and of that sum nearly one-half would be paid by other warehouses than jute; so that we have about Rs. 11,000 to be paid by jute warehouses which last year paid over Rs. 68,000.

As regards Calcutta, I have said that it would have been better if the original proposal of the learned Advocate-General had been carried than if this amendment is carried, because we should then not have lost the whole or even up to Rs. 8,000 which we will now lose from hay, straw, wood, &c. We should have collected from them Rs. 13,000 as before, and we should have been able to apportion the rates in a way that would have been least oppressive. If the proposal had been that Cossipore and Chitpur should pay for the cost of its branch of the fire-brigade which is for yearly maintenance alone about Rs. 7,000, and that Howrah should similarly pay its branch, which also amounts to about Rs. 7,000 (and these figures in each case omit the cost of the capital outlay and charges at head-quarters), and that Calcutta should pay the rest, then the incidence of taxation on Calcutta would not have been so heavy as it would be if the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis's motion were carried.

But there is one point which has been omitted from view, and that is that the assessable value of Calcutta is an increasing value, and therefore in a few years the contribution from warehouses would decrease. The warehouses undoubtedly would be increasing in number, and we should have the absurdity of their contributions being in inverse ratio to the expense and trouble thrown upon the fire-brigade by such warehouses. I have not the least doubt that we should stand by the report of the Select Committee in this case."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I endorse the views expressed by the hon'ble member who moved this amendment. I understood the sense of the Select Committee to be that the municipalities should levy a rate of one-eighth per cent. on the annual value of houses and lands, and half per cent. on bastis. The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton has remarked that there is a wide difference between the words 'may' and 'shall,' but I was informed when serving on the Select Committee that the legal value of the two words, as applied to section 26 of the Bill, is the same; otherwise I should have made an energetic protest at the time against the use of the word 'may.' It was not until the issue of statement A to members of the Council by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that his personal ideas of the permissive character of section 26 became known to me. I beg leave to confirm what was said by the learned Advocate-General that that statement formed no part of the papers considered by the Select Committee. I therefore support the amendment, as it correctly embodies what I understood to be the decision of the Select Committee. I feel bound, however, again to express my regret that the Bill does not level up taxation upon the richer for the benefit of the poorer classes of the communities protected by the imposition of an infinitesimal all-round rate, which would not be more than a quarter per cent. on buildings and bastis alike."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"As a member of the Select Committee I desire to say that it was not present to my mind that there should be afforded to the owners of warehouses, and especially to the jute trade, the measure of relief which is now contemplated by the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis. Under the existing law the jute trade paid 120 or 125 per cent. of the expenses of the fire-brigade, amounting to Rs. 68,000 or Rs. 70,000. The cost of the fire-brigade is now about Rs. 58,000, and I informed the Select Committee that it was not likely largely to increase. I stated that it would in all probablity be about Rs. 60,000, and certainly it was present to my mind that the jute industry, aided by the other industries which are called dangerous, should bear one-half the cost of the brigade. By the words "primarily responsible" which appear in the Report of the Select Committee, all that I understood was that the Commissioners would be bound to pay to the Commissioner of Police when he presented his budget the means to meet the cost of the fire-brigade. I did not understand that the Commissioners would first levy maximum rates, and then that whatever deficit existed would be made up by fees from warehouses. On these grounds I will certainly vote as I understood the intention of the Bill to be."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"That not having been on the Select Committee, I cannot say what was the policy which guided their deliberations, nor is it at all necessary to ascertain whether the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis is in accordance with, or in opposition to, that policy, whatever that might have been. The simple question before the Council is, do lands, other than basti lands and houses, other than warehouses, require the protection of the fire-brigade? I think it has been admitted by every one in this Council that they do not; and therefore the owners of these lands and houses should not be taxed at all, if possible, or, if taxed, they should be taxed in the smallest degree. The Bill places the tax on these at one-eighth per cent.; but even if you make it one-and-a-half annas per cent., it will not be fair, and, therefore, so far oppressive. For these reasons I am entirely opposed to the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis, and I cannot see why the Council should go beyond what the Select Committee has provided."

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS said:—"With reference to what has fallen from the last speaker, I think he is mistaken when he states that it is admitted by every member of this Council that bastis and houses other than warehouses in no way require the protection of the fire-brigade; the history of the case is very different, for it is admitted that the general public do derive considerable benefit from the brigade, and especially so the residents in bastis. I hold in my hand a letter from the Commissioner of Police to the Government of Bengal, dated the 26th of December 1890, in which he clearly shows the danger bastis offer to the town and the difficulty which is experienced in preventing fires in such places from spreading. It is not necessary for me to read this letter as it was referred to by one of the hon'ble members in a previous debate on this question, but I only put it forward to show how necessary a fire-brigade is for affording security to the town from conflagrations in bastis."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 4.	Noes 8.
The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.	The Hon'ble Maharaja Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.	The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.	The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.	The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR moved that clause (a) [with its proviso] of section 26 be omitted.

He said:—"I have deemed it my duty to move the omission of clause (a) of section 26, as not only unnecessary, but also as undesirable. The clause had no place in the Draft Bill, and the Select Committee have given no justification for its insertion in the amended Bill. The ostensible object of the clause is to create a source of raising funds. Now, Sir, we have provision for funds in specifically defined sources of revenue, and these are license fees from warehouses and rates from bastis and dwelling-houses. And particular care has been taken to see that these sources are competent to meet the requirements of the fire-brigade. Hence, Sir, I maintain that an additional source of revenue is unnecessary, especially when that source is undefined and uncertain. We must remember that when we are legislating for the taxation of special trades, it should be our duty to define the limits of taxation with the utmost clearness and precision; and it has been well said that that duty becomes imperative when the taxation is for a single particular purpose.

"It may be urged that the clause is intended not so much for the purpose of raising funds as for the purpose of enabling Government to discover inflammable substances not defined in section 3. But, Sir, there is a section, viz., section 41, under which 'the Local Government may, on the recommendation of the Commissioners in meeting, declare any building or place used for the storing, pressing or keeping of any substance or thing other than those specified in section 3, clause (9), of this Act, shall be a warehouse within the meaning of, and be subject to the operation of, this Act.' In this section we have provision for the detection of substances other than those specified in section 3. Where, then, is the necessity of making another provision for the same purpose?

"It may be contended that, if discretionary power is given to the Commissioners for discovering inflammable substances other than those already specified, why should not the same power be given to the Local Government in addition? What harm is there in doing so? To this my reply is, why then legislate at all? Why encumber the Act with definitions of inflammable substances? Why not leave these things to the discretion of the Commissioners, or, best of all, to that of the Local Government?

"For my part, I must confess that I am not for giving discretionary power even to the Commissioners. But if that cannot be avoided, I must beg leave to point out that the power given to the Commissioners has been very wisely restricted to one of recommendation only, the final decision resting with the Local Government. Besides, even this power of recommendation is given to the Commissioners in meeting, which makes a world of difference between absolute power and power so modified. In meeting, the Commissioners will have to discuss any recommendations they may think of making. The representatives of the citizens of Calcutta and the public of Calcutta will have ample opportunity of judging for themselves, before any recommendation can be sent in. Hence the chances of abusing this discretionary power will be infinitesimal.

"But of quite a different character, is the power which the Bill proposes to give to the Local Government. Here the power is absolute; and speaking with the utmost deference before the head of the Government, I may ask what guarantee is there that that power may not develop or rather degenerate into arbitrary power? And when such is the case, then, in addition to the Act which this Bill will become when passed, we may have no end of Acts of a different nature altogether. In fact, in my humble judgment, the clause in question, if retained, would virtually give to the Local Government power to make law without the legislature, which the instinct of modern times feels to be far from desirable.

"Lastly, Sir, I beg to point out that while we have in the clause under consideration provision of an undefined, uncertain, and therefore arbitrary character, for widening the area of taxation, there is no provision whatever for reducing the amounts of the taxes actually defined; and this, it must be admitted, is far from equitable.

"For these reasons, Sir, I look upon clause (a) of section 26 as not only unnecessary, but undesirable and objectionable. I would, therefore, move for its omission."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"This clause finds its way in the Bill owing to my instrumentality. Under the law as it at present stands, 'jute' and 'cotton' are defined to mean jute and cotton which have not been pressed or screwed as if for shipment. Under the Bill, 'jute' means raw jute, and 'cotton' means raw cotton. Absolutely all forms of pressed jute are excluded from the operation of the present Bill. Now it seems to me very fair and reasonable that pressed jute should be excluded from the category of jute kept in warehouses. But I was not satisfied and I am not satisfied that pressed jute as it comes to Calcutta is not in many cases an inflammable material, of such nature that the buildings in which it is stored should not be specially assessed to a tax for the maintenance of a fire-brigade. There are also many other commodities of a very doubtful character which are not of the eminently inflammable character specified in clause (g) of section 3, or which could properly be included by the Lieutenant-Governor in that clause according to the powers vested in him, on the recommendation of the Commissioners in meeting, by a subsequent section of the Bill. It seems to me very possible that oil, of which we have heard so much to-day and which I am far from satisfied is of a non-inflammable character, would appropriately come under clause (a) of section 26; and there are many other materials which, although not so inflammable as jute or cotton, or hay, straw, &c., are sufficiently inflammable to make them liable to the payment of a special tax. That is why this provision found its way in the Bill. The rate leviable in such cases would be two and-a-half per cent. only on the assessable annual value, and the limit of taxation in any case is fixed at Rs. 100 in order to prevent an excessive rate being levied. It was intended to draw a distinction between commodities of an eminently inflammable character and those which are less inflammable, and therefore power is reserved, in the hands of the Government, to meet special cases."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"This matter of baled jute, to which the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill has referred, was considered by the Select Committee, who reported to the Council that they had considered the advisability of bringing baled jute within the provisions of section 26 of the amended Bill, but had determined not to do so."

The Motion was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. WALLIS, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motion of which he had given notice, that in clauses (b) and (c) of section 26, for the words "not exceeding" the word "of" be substituted.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motion of which he had given notice, that clause (c) and sub-section (2) of section 26 be omitted.

The following notices of amendment were by leave withdrawn:—

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis to move that in clause (b) of section 26, for the words "not exceeding" the word "of" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder to move that clause (c) and sub-section (2) of section 26 be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis to move that in clause (c) of section 26, for the words "not exceeding" the words "of" be substituted.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 11th instant.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE EDEN SANITARIUM FOR THE YEAR 1892.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

No. 947Med.

Calcutta, the 14th March 1893.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The report on the working of the Eden Sanitarium for the year 1892.

Read also—

Report for the year 1891 and the Resolution recorded upon it.

	1885.	1886.	1887.	1888.	1889.	1890.	1891.	1892.
Patients ...	192	273	344	336	370	316	356	370

The number of patients admitted in 1892 was the same as in 1889, which had been the highest on record, but there was a considerable falling off in the number of relatives and attendants. The number of these latter is said to vary according to the nature of the cases admitted, and it is further explained that the unattractiveness of the past season operated to reduce the number of visitors other than invalids. The increase in the number of the sick testifies that the benefits which the Institution is capable of conferring on invalids are becoming more fully appreciated. Orders have recently been issued sanctioning a grant of Rs. 2,000 to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals to meet the cost of sending convalescent European sailors from the Calcutta and Howrah Hospitals to the Sanitarium, and if this amount is properly utilized, the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that it will add materially to the usefulness of the Institution.

2. Of the four classes into which patients are divided in the Sanitarium, the second is the most popular, judging from the results of the past four years which are exhibited in the following table:—

Intermediate class	103	79	123	90
Second class	171	164	169	146

3. The Sanitarium, as usual, was open from the 1st March to 30th November. Of the 370 persons treated, 298 were adults—172 males and 126 females. The number of children treated has steadily increased from 46 in 1890 and 58 in 1891 to 72 in 1892. The daily average number of persons residing in the Institution, including 12 patients from the Calcutta hospitals, who occupy free beds, was 35·8, against 44·18 in 1891 and 36·03 in 1890. The average number of days spent in the institution by each patient was 34·24, against 39·08 in 1891 and 27·3 in 1890. By far the largest number of persons admitted into the Sanitarium were suffering from malarial fever or its effects, more than 50 per cent. of the total admissions being due either directly or indirectly to this cause. Forty surgical operations were performed during the year, against 35 in the preceding year, all of which were successful. There were 8 deaths during the year—2 due to dysentery, 1 to cancer, 1 to disease of the liver, 3 to diseases of the nervous system, and 1 to bronchitis. Most of these cases were in an advanced stage of disease when admitted.

4. The total income of the year amounted to Rs. 31,524 (against Rs. 38,665 in 1891), but this amount apparently includes a sum of Rs. 150 due from patients still outstanding. The details of receipts are Rs. 30,047 received from patients, Rs. 1,060 subscriptions, Rs. 207 interest, and Rs. 59 miscellaneous receipts. The falling off in receipts was due to the smaller number of friends and attendants admitted during the year. The total expenditure amounted to Rs. 31,307 (against Rs. 34,249 in the previous year), and the year closed with a credit balance of Rs. 7,918.

5. A fund was started during the year with the object of providing a free cot for children needing a change to the hills, but the amount raised was not sufficient to form a permanent endowment. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that the effort will not be abandoned, as the known suitablity of the Darjeeling climate for sick children would render such an institution most useful. The cot was occupied from 23rd June to 4th November.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor has noticed with satisfaction that the superior establishment attached to the Sanitarium worked well during the year. His thanks are due to the Superintendent and to the Committee of Management for the very efficient administration of the Institution.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. A. BOURDILLON,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 14th March 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 11TH OF MARCH 1893.

DURING the second half of the previous week fine settled weather had prevailed over the whole province, but conditions were decidedly unusual for the season on account of the very low temperature and decidedly high pressure which obtained. On March the 5th, or the first day of the present week, pressure was falling slowly in the west of the province, while it was rising slowly to moderately at the central and eastern stations. Winds also became southerly at some of the Bihar stations, and temperature remained rather largely in defect of the normal. On this day a well defined barometric depression entered North-Western India, moving in an easterly direction, and its centre was near Deesa, while a small subsidiary depression appeared near Peshawar. On the 6th an area of barometric depression existed between Sutna and Nowgong, while relatively low pressure existed over a large part of Western India. In Bengal pressure was rising at the western and south-western stations, and falling at the eastern and northern stations, but an area of disturbed conditions had reached the south-western districts, and rain was reported on the 6th from almost all stations in Orissa and at a considerable number of stations in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. On the 7th the areas of low pressure had either filled up or had passed away in an easterly direction; a moderate fall of pressure had taken place over Bengal, but pressure was still above the normal by amounts usually exceeding a tenth of an inch, and weather generally again became fair and settled, and only a few local showers occurred in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. On the 8th the barometric changes in Bengal were small, and at most stations pressure was rising, and again conditions appeared fairly settled, but from some cause not easily explainable, the sky began to cloud over rapidly, and notwithstanding the fact that a further rapid increase of pressure took place from the 8th to the 9th, by which the general pressure over the province became in excess of the normal by about a sixth of an inch, very disturbed conditions set in. Thus moderate rain was reported in almost all districts of the province on the 9th, and light irregular winds prevailed in all districts, and at the southern stations in particular north-easterly winds were commonly reported. With the general rainfall accompanying the heavily clouded skies, temperature was still unusually low, the defects being largest at the western stations, where they ranged up to 14°. A slight reaction then set in, and pressure began to fall slowly to moderately on the 10th, but notwithstanding the falling pressure, weather conditions began to improve, and on this day practically no rainfall was reported, and the sky began to clear rather rapidly. On the 11th instant the fall of pressure continued, the fall exceeding a twentieth of an inch in the north-eastern districts of Bengal, but still pressure remained in excess of the normal by more that a tenth of an inch. Winds were northerly at the eastern and southern stations, and generally southerly in Bihar and Chota Nagpur, probably in connection with a small barometric depression in North-Western India, while weather remained fine in all districts except parts of Bihar and Chota Nagpur, where again showers had fallen. Thus again the week has been one of somewhat disturbed conditions with moderate rain in all districts.

Pressure—Has been unusually high throughout the week, and the mean for the period has been in excess of the normal by about 0·12″ or 0·13″. The distribution of this excess, however, has been irregular, and thus at such stations as Rangpur, Jalpaiguri, Bhagalpur, Darbhanga, Motihari, and Chapra, the excess has equalled 0·16″ and upwards. On the other hand, the excess has been less than a tenth of an inch at Chittagong, and at Darjeeling it has only equalled 0·06.″

Temperature—Has again been unusually low throughout the week, and for the whole province the defect in the mean temperature for the period has been 4·8°, while defects exceeding five-and-a-half degrees have been recorded in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum, and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. The defect again, it will be seen, has been most largely marked in the maximum or day temperatures, which at such stations as Cuttack, Burdwan, Gaya, and Hazaribagh have been about 10° below the normal, while at Calcutta the average maximum or day temperatures have been only 81·8,° or 7·4° below the normal for the week:—

Rainfall.—The heaviest falls during the week have occurred in Orissa, which has received an average amount of 0·82 inch, and in Chota Nagpur with a fall of 0·52 inch. The falls in South-West Bengal and North Bengal have averaged from a third to a quarter of an inch, and Bihar has received a tenth of an inch, but the falls in East Bengal have been very small. The actual falls during the week have been largely in excess of the normal in Orissa, moderately in excess in Chota Nagpur and South-West Bengal, and slightly in excess in all other districts except East Bengal, where the fall has been rather largely in defect of the normal, the actual fall not equalling a tenth of the usual amount.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 11th of March 1893 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; d, drizzling rain; t, thunder; p, passing temporary showers; ≏, dew.

INCREASES.

	Tons.		Tons.
Coal	6,282
Railway and Flotilla consumption principally.
Jute, screwed	1,629	Tea	470
Silliguri, Haldibari and Saidpur contributed about two-thirds of the increase.		The increase was in despatches from Jalpaiguri. Much of the crop could not be brought earlier into the market owing to the cart roads having been washed away by heavy rains.
Kerosine oil	3,665
Due to the prohibition of carriage by boat within certain limits of the port of Calcutta.

DECREASES.

	Tons.		Tons.
Rice	503	Jute, unscrewed	3,587
Charkai and Goalundo show the principal decreases said to be due to short crop.		The principal decreases are in despatches from Serajgunge, Kushtea, Siliguri, Julpaiguri and Hilli. The market was uncertain in December.

DRAFT REVISED WATER-RATE RULES FOR THE MIDNAPORE CANAL.

The 20th March 1893.

No. 75.—Notification.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by sections 99 and 78 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to make the following rules and to fix the undermentioned rates to be charged for water supplied from the Midnapore Canal. These rules and rates will supersede those now in force.

C. W. ODLING,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

1. The Divisional Canal Officer is responsible for maintaining the canal in an efficient state of repair, for providing drainage channels where necessary, and generally for all engineering work involved in its management, as well as for the distribution of water to lessees. The word "canal" is here used as defined in section 3 of the Act.

2. The Deputy Collector is responsible for the assessment and collection of water-rates accruing to Government from the canal.

3. Water shall not be distributed otherwise than on the application of a lessee, or to a person in whose favour a provisional license under rule 15 has been issued. Such application may be made verbally or in writing to any subordinate in charge of that part of the canal from which water is required.

4. If any lessee apply for water to the Deputy Collector or one of his subordinates verbally, he shall be directed to address himself to an irrigation officer or subordinate. If he makes such an application in writing, his petition shall be forwarded direct by the zilladar, to whom it is addressed, to the Sub-divisional Canal Officer in charge of that part of the canal from which the petitioner's village is supplied.

5. The Divisional Canal Officer shall map out the irrigable area into blocks in accordance with the natural features of the ground, and so determine that the whole block shall be irrigable from one outlet, or from one set of outlets So far as may be practicable, the blocks shall be separated by drainage lines.

6. Each block determined as above shall be numbered and recorded with its irrigable area in registers to be maintained by the Divisional Canal Officers and Deputy Collector. The blocks shall also be marked on maps to be maintained by the same officers.

7. Leases for not more than five years may be granted for the whole irrigable area of a block, or, subject to the provisions of Rule 13, for definite parts of a block, under the following conditions:—

I.—Ordinarily the whole irrigable area of any village, so far as situated within the block, must be included in the lease.

II—All leases within one block shall be granted, so that they shall expire on the same date.

III.—In order to equalise the areas to be dealt with in each year, the date of expiry of the leases in each block shall be determined by the Divisional Canal Officer in consultation with the Deputy Collector, so that, as far as practicable, one-fifth of the total area usually irrigated may fall out of lease in each year.

IV.—No permit shall be granted, when the supply of water must of necessity be delivered across an unleased area, unless a village channel exists, which, in the opinion of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer, will deliver water without waste across the unleased area.

8. The rates to be charged for water supplied between June and November, whether by flow or lift, to lessees on application shall be—

For a term of five years—Re. 1 8 per acre for each season.

For one year or for water supplied on a provisional license for which a permit for a term of years is not subsequently issued, Rs. 3 per acre.

Provided that the leases, whether new or renewals, required for shorter terms than five years in order to develope the system of blocks as explained above, shall be charged Re. 1-8 per acre only. Otherwise, in addition to the rate of Re. 1-8 mentioned above, an extra rate of 12 annas per acre shall in the first year only be charged on leases for less than five and more than one year.

9. For the supply of water, when available, for winter crops, a rate of Rs. 2-8 per acre per season shall be charged.

10. For the unauthorized use of canal water a rate of Rs. 5 per acre, or such less rate as may be sanctioned by the Deputy Collector, shall be charged.

11. Application for water-leases under section 74 of the Act shall be presented to the zilladar of the division in which the applicant's land lies.

12. Every application for a water-lease shall contain the following particulars:—

1.—Name and residence of applicant.

2.—Name of pargana, mahal and village in which the land to be irrigated is situated.

3.—Total area for the irrigation of which the application is made and its boundaries, and if the lands to be irrigated lie in separate chaks, the name of each chak.

4.—Names of the raiyats whose lands are to be irrigated, and the quantity of land held by each.

5.—Name of the canal and number of distributary from which water is required.

6.—Signatures of the applicants.

13. A separate application must be presented for lands in each village, but tehsildaida or other lands lying within the village boundary at the time of survey may be included.

14. Before a permit for a term of years is granted, the written consent of the Divisional Canal Officer shall be obtained, but permits for one year only and provisional licenses may be issued with the written assent of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer. The Deputy Collector shall on the day of issue forward a copy of all permits granted to the Divisional Canal Officer.

15. When a water-lease is granted, a kabuliyat shall be taken in a form approved by Government, and a "permit" shall be given to the lessee or lessees in a form similar to that prescribed in Schedule C of the Act. Pending the completion of a lease, the zilladar may issue a provisional license for the supply of water to an area covered by an application.

16. On the issue of a permit or provisional license, the zilladar shall forward to the Sub-divisional Canal Officer direct a requisition requesting him to supply water to the lessee on application. This requisition shall be kept by the Canal Officer till January 1st next following, and shall then be returned to the Deputy Collector. On the back should be noted the several dates on which the village was supplied with water. A fresh requisition shall be issued on or before June 1st, and returned on or before January 1st, each year, till the lease expires.

17. When it comes to the knowledge of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer that canal water has been taken without authority, he shall hold a local investigation and transmit the record thereof to the Deputy Collector. Separate proceedings shall be taken in the case of each village irrigated without authority.

18. On receipt of the record mentioned in Rule 17, and after hearing any objection which may be raised, the Deputy Collector shall determine whether water-rates can be legally charged, and if so, he shall proceed to assess, at the rate provided in rule 10, the land irrigated without authority.

19. The statements of the amounts demandable for water-rates leviable under the rules in force shall be prepared under the supervision and signature of the Deputy Collector in such form as shall from time to time be sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor. Persons charged under rule 10 or 18 shall be served, by post or otherwise, with a statement showing the amounts charged to enable them to lodge an appeal to the Collector under section 91 of the Act if they desire to do so.

20. Should it be proved, after due enquiry, that the supply of water given to any leased area is habitually wasted, or used for the irrigation of lands not under lease, it shall be competent for the Superintending Canal Officer, with the concurrence of the Collector, to direct that the lease shall be cancelled with effect from the 1st of June next following.

21. The rates for water supplied from June to November shall in each season fall due on the 1st January following, but the Deputy Collector may require one-half of the rates due on applications filed after the 1st of September to be paid in advance, and may refuse to issue a permit for more than one year. The rates for water supplied for winter crops shall fall due on the 1st April following.

22. Water-rates imposed under rule 10 or 18 shall fall due as soon as the assessment is made, and shall be realized at once.

23. The Superintending Canal Officer may, with the concurrence of the Collector, direct the Deputy Collector to –

I.—Cease to issue permits for the irrigation of lands in villages where there have been constant difficulties in realizing water-rates until all the arrears of water-rates due are paid up, and also, if specially so ordered, unless half the amount due under new applications is paid in advance. An order under this rule shall be in force for the time stated therein, which shall not exceed three years.

II.—Cancel any five years lease if on the 1st of June of any year water-rates to the extent of half the demand for one year are in arrears.

24. Remission of water-rates, either in whole or part, as the case may require, shall be granted by the Deputy Collector for—

I.—Errors in the assessment of rates.

II.—Injury to the crop on a leased area caused by deficient supply of water.

Provided a written application for remission has been made 15 days at least before the crop is cut.

In regard to applications under II, the written opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer shall be obtained and form part of the record of the case.

25. The Deputy Collector, with the written consent of the Divisional Canal Officer, may grant remissions of water-rates, either in whole or part, for injury to the crops on leased areas caused by excess of water due to deficient drainage.

26. The Deputy Collector may, with the written assent of the Divisional Canal Officer, commute rates charged under rules 10 and 18 to those chargeable for water supplied on application, provided that a lease either for a term of years or for the season has been subsequently executed for the lands in question.

27. Remissions on other grounds than the above require the sanction of Government.

28. In cases where sums due on account of water-rates cannot be collected owing to the death, bankruptcy, or absconding of the defaulter, the amount which is non-realizable may be written off as irrecoverable on the authority of the Collector.

29. Before awarding compensation under section 16 of the Act, or making a reference under section 17 of the Act, the Collector shall obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Canal Officer, and his written opinion shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

30. The Deputy Collector may distribute amongst village mookhyas, who give efficient assistance in collecting water-rates, and generally in his operations under Act III (B C.) of 1876, a commission calculated in such manner as he may think fit, provided the total amount paid shall not exceed 6 pies in the rupee on the total water-rates collected during the year.

IRRIGATION.

The 14th February 1893.

No. 35.—Notification.—The following rules, having reference to all the lines of navigation included in the following canal systems, viz., the Orissa Canals, the Midnapore Canal with branch to Narainghar, the Hijili Tidal Canal, the Orissa Coast Canal, and the Sone Canals, are proposed to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of section XI of the "Canals Act, 1864," No. V (B.C.), in supersession of those now in force.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 65.

Dated Calcutta, the 17th March 1893.

THE subjoined annual accounts and abstracts from the reports of the District Road Committees of the districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga, Manbhum, and Singhbhum for the year 1891-92, together with the remarks of the Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division thereon, are published for general information.

F. J. JOHNSTONE,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. Dept.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Committee, Hazáribágh, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

Four meetings of the District Committee were held during the year under review, in all of which quorums were obtained, the average attendance being 10·7. With a few exceptions, the members do not take much interest in the working of the Act.

The following is a summary of the business transacted by the Committee during the year under report:—

(1) Preparation of the budget estimates of receipts and expenditure for the year 1892-93.
(2) Passing of estimates of different works to be executed in 1892-93.
(3) Passing of annual accounts and report for 1891-92.
(4) Preparation of rules for pensions of the Committee's employés.
(5) Consideration of the draft model rules for Provident Fund.

The accounts were, as usual, audited by a Sub-Committee appointed under section 174 of the Act.

There is only one Branch Committee in the district, viz., at Giridih. There were six meetings of the Branch Committee during the year and the average attendance was 4·1. The Sub-divisional Officer reports that most of the members did not take much interest in the working of the Act, and that some of the gentlemen took no part in any of the meetings held during the year.

The road cess in the district was, as in the previous year, levied at the maximum rates prescribed by law.

The demand on account of cess on lands and mines during the year was Rs. 47,195 against Rs. 46,173 in the previous year. The increase of Rs. 1,022 was the result of the annual valuation of mines under section 79 of the Act.

The total amount for realisation during the year, including the arrears (Rs. 9,456) outstanding at close of the previous year, was Rs. 56,651. Of this amount, Rs. 55,470 (including Rs. 1,635 paid in advance in previous years) were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,181. A further sum of Rs. 1,837 was collected as advance for future years. The percentage of collections on current demand is Rs. 117·5.

Most of the arrears due at close of the year were due from revenue-paying estates in which the last kist fell due on the 28th March, or three days before the close of the year.

Original Works.—The only original works taken up during the year under review were the construction of a third class inspection bungalow at Jori on the Balumat and Sherghati road, and the gravelling of 6 miles of the road from Gola to Dakagurrah viâ Dimra. Owing to the very limited funds at the disposal of the Committee, no other work could be undertaker.

Repairs.—Thirty-four miles of metalled and 64 miles of gravelled roads have been maintained at a cost respectively of Rs. 6,133-2-9 and Rs. 3,718-11-3, and are in good condition. Fair-weather roads, aggregating about 403 miles, have been kept up in fair condition and fit for cart traffic at a cost of Rs. 16,179-0-1.

Village Roads.—Village roads, aggregating about 350 miles, have been maintained in passable order at a cost of Rs. 9,370-15-6. One hundred and eight miles of these roads are under the District Committee and the remainder under the Branch Committee. Rs. 5,500 were made over to the Branch Committee for repairs to village communications during the year. Out of this amount Rs. 5,152-14-11 were expended, viz., Rs. 754-5-2 departmentally by the Vice-Chairman, Rs. 554-14-5 by one native and two European members, and Rs. 3,843-11-4 by contract. A further sum of Rs. 70-2 was contributed by the East Indian Railway Company towards the cost of the Level-crossing road at Giridhi. The repairs of the village road from Gawan to Dorunda were entrusted to Tekait Todul Narain Singh, zamindar of Gadi Gawan, and that from Kurharbari to Sookri to Doctor Saise, Manager, East Indian Railway Company, Giridhi. Both these gentlemen are reported to have taken much interest in the work.

Arboriculture.—No new trees were planted during the year. The existing trees, about 14,000 in number, have been maintained at a cost of Rs. 1,132, and are reported to be generally in a flourishing condition.

Nursery.—There is only one nursery garden in the Road Cess Office compound containing about 1,465 plants.

Staging bungalows and sarais.—There is only one staging bungalow, viz., at Ramghur The income from it was Rs. 52-12 during the year, and its maintenance cost Rs. 261-10-5. There is only one cart sarai in the district, viz, at Bagodar, on the Grand Trunk Road. The income from it was Rs. 92, and its maintenance cost Rs. 179-5-5.

BASANTA KUMAR BOSE,
Vice-Chairman.

Explanatory memorandum attached to the District Road Fund Account for the year 1891-92.

THE works provided for in the estimates for 1891-92 were not fully done for want of rains, and also certain works not being properly done, payments were withheld; hence the closing balance exceeded the limit prescribed in paragraph 9 of the Government Resolution No. 4228R.C., of the 18th December 1885. Provisions have, however, been made for disposal of the excess balance in the budget for the current year.

The transfer of allotments noted in antique type in column 2 of Part II of the Account has been sanctioned by the Commissioner (vide his letter No. 362R.C., dated the 28th March 1892).

BASANTA K. SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

Abstract of a report by the Deputy Commissioner and Chairman of the District Road Committee, Lohardaga, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

THE attendance of the non-official members of the District Road Cess Committee and of the Palamau Branch Road Cess Committee during the year under report was unsatisfactory.

The following is the summary of business transacted at the meetings of the District Road Cess Committee held during the year under report:—

(b) Passing the annual account for 1890-91.
(c) Fixing the rate of road cess to be levied during the year.
(d) Passing estimates submitted by the District Engineer for the repairs of different roads during 1891-92.
(e) Appointing contractors for the construction and repairs of roads for 1891-92.
(f) Electing Vice-Chairman under section 129.
(g) Determining the details of establishment and the salaries to be attached to each office under section 133.
(h) Passing the general statement under section 141.
(i) Disposing of other miscellaneous business.

The demand on account of cess on lands and mines during the year, including arrears of last year, amounted to Rs. 55,177. Of this Rs. 504 was collected in advance during the previous year, and Rs. 51,356 has been collected within the year under report, thus leaving a balance of Rs. 3,317 outstanding on the 31st March 1892. In addition to the above a sum of Rs. 605 was collected in advance on account of the ensuing year 1892-93. Out of Rs. 51,961 collected during the year on account of current and future years, Rs. 46,312 only credited in the Lohardaga Treasury within the year, and Rs. 5,649 collected and credited into the Palamau Treasury, but not included in the accounts of the Lohardaga Treasury.

The cess was levied at the maximum rate: there was little or no difficulty in collecting it at head-quarters. In Palamau, however, the same difficulty still exists as was noticed last year.

The accounts of the year were duly examined and audited by a Sub-Committee consisting of the Chairman and two other English-knowing members.

Original Works—Ranchi-Gola road.—In a bridge of 4 spans of 20 feet each, the waterway has increased by raising the abutments and piers 4 feet, and the sâl timber platform which had been in a dilapidated state was thoroughly renewed.

Repairs.—The roads of the district were maintained passable by petty or patch repairs, renewal of gravelling and reconstruction or repairs of temporary bridges. Besides seven miles of Ranchi-Lohardaga road, the last six miles of Lohardaga-Chattra road, half a mile of Ranchi-Pithoria road, four miles of Ranchi-Palkote road, one-and-a-half miles of Palma-Lohardaga road, and a small portion of Orenga stream-Daltongunge road, were newly gravelled, and a diversion about 500 feet long in the 4th and 5th miles of the Daltongunge-Maharajgunge road constructed during the year.

Village roads.—The following roads were constructed:—

(1) A road from Chutia to Subernorekha bridge, one mile.
(2) A diversion in Bundu-Poadari road, together with masonry work of a bridge of 20 feet span with rubble masonry abutment and timber roadway.
(3) Road from Ghatdoor to Silli, four miles.
(4) Road from Chapka towards Kotam, six miles.

Repairs executed to about 200 miles of village roads, in the Sadar sub-division about 170 miles, and in Palamau sub-division some 30 miles.

Arboriculture.—About 400 seedlings from nurseries at Ranchi, Lohardaga, and Daltongunge were planted along various roads to fill up vacancies of last year. Plants along 72 miles of roads maintained and new Dellas supplied in many cases.

Staging bungalows and huts.—Chandwa and Lohardaga bungalows were thoroughly repaired, and considerably improved. Repairs were also executed in three other bungalows and 13 huts.

Tools and plant.—One stone road roller for consolidation of gravels was constructed and several other tools, mathematical instruments and office furniture purchased and repaired.

Generally it may be said that more attention has been paid to good and lasting work than to quantity of work.

Accounts.—The monthly accounts of the Road Fund and of the District Engineer's office were examined by the Vice-Chairman and two other English-knowing members of the Committee who were appointed for the purpose.

The Local Auditor inspected the Chairman's and the District Engineer's offices in March 1892, and the result was very satisfactory.

The work has all been done under the contract system, and advances to contractors, except a few cases, have been adjusted.

A. EVANS GORDON, Colonel,

Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Lohardaga.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Committee, Manbhum, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

Working of the Cess Act IX B.C.) of 1880.—The demands, collections, and balances of Road and Public Works cesses, for the year 1891-92 are shown in the following statements—

NAME OF DISTRICT.	Arrears out-standing from last year.	Demand for the year.	Total (columns 2 and 3).	Previously paid in advance for the present year.	Net demand.	Collected on account of arrears during the year.	Collection on account of current year made within the year.	Collected in advance on account of future years.	Total collection.	Gross balance.	Remission.	Net balance.	REMARKS.

The outstanding balance for the year 1890-91 was Rs. 19,093, and the demand for the year was Rs. 84,805 (excluding Rs. 649 shown in class D of the return for Laikdi coal mines assessed in Burdwan district) against Rs. 7,424 and Rs. 84,775 respectively for the two preceding years. There was an increase of Rs. 30 in the demand owing to the new assessment of certain quarries and jungles. The collection of the year was Rs. 74,009 against Rs. 73,252 in the previous year, showing an increase of Rs. 757. The percentage of collection on the total demand was Rs. 71·232 against Rs. 78·365 of the previous year 1890-91. Out of the gross balance Rs. 29,889, Rs. 34 had been remitted by order of the Commissioner. The net balance to be realised was Rs. 29,855, of which Rs. 13,956 has been realised in the current year (1892-93), and the remainder being chiefly due to the non-realisation of Rs. 14,054 from the Pachete estate for the kist ending 26th March 1892. Steps are being taken to realise the amount due. The cesses were not paid regularly during the year under report in all cases. There is a general tendency to put off payment until the certificate procedure is put in force. The practice of intimating to owners of mines, quarries, and jungles the amount of their indebtedness by means of post-cards was continued, and was found to work satisfactorily. The revenue-paying estates, Pachete and Jaipur, invariably fall into arrears, and their owners seldom pay the cesses until steps are taken under the Certificate Act. As regards the Digwari estates, the cess levied on them is generally realised through the ghatwali Inspector of Police, no certificates being issued in these cases.

C. A. S. BEDFORD,
Chairman.

Explanatory Note.

1. The excess expenditure of Rs. 1,287-1-9 under head "Establishment and Contingencies of office of collection" is on account of arrears of monthly contribution towards pension from July 1872 up to March 1890, viz., Rs. 1,261-5-8, and the balance, Rs. 25-12-1, is on account of cost of service of notices, &c., not recoverable under sections 72, 78, and 81 of the Cess Act IX (B.C.) of 1880.

2. The excess expenditure of Rs. 360-0-11 under head "Percentage cost of establishment, &c.," is owing to payment made during the year for the year previous.

3. The excess expenditure in some of the items of "Repair Works" is apparent, but not actual, as the budget provision is for the year under report, whereas the expenditure includes payment for works provided for in the previous year.

C. A. S. BEDFORD,
Chairman, District Road Committee.

Audit Certificate.

WE hereby certify that the books and accounts specified below,* prescribed for the Road Cess Office and for the office of the District Engineer, are duly kept up, and that they have been posted for the year 1891-92, and they have been duly scrutinised by the Sub-Committee.

Also that the Treasury Officer's Abstract of the Account of the Committee for the year has been duly received and checked with the Cash and Pass-books, and found to agree therewith, except in respect of the amount of imprest in the hands of the accountant, which has been duly noted in the Cash-book.

That the vouchers for the payments of the year have been cancelled, that none but duly sanctioned expenditure have been incurred, and that in the case of original works the register of monthly expenditure shows clearly the amount of sanctioned estimates, the grant for the year; and generally that the work of the office has been performed with a due observance of the rules prescribed by Government.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Committee, Singhbhum, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

THE accounts were examined by the Sub-Committee of Audit and passed by the District Road Committee at a special meeting held on the 10th May 1892.

The opening balance at the credit of the District Road Fund on the 1st April 1891 was Rs. 3,880-15-8, and the receipts under the several heads during the year under report, including deposits and advances, amounted to Rs. 16,910-10-7, making up a total of Rs. 20,791-10-3. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 17,856-10-10, leaving a balance of Rs. 2,935-15-5 available for expenditure in the current year.

There were six meetings of the Committee held during the year under report, with an average attendance of 5·16 members. In each of the meetings a sufficient number of members were present to form a quorum.

(a) Preparation and passing of the budget estimates for 1892-93.
(b) Revising the budget estimates for 1891-92 in view to meeting the cost of executing some additional works on some of the roads and the additional cost of the revaluation establishment.
(c) Passing the District Road Fund annual accounts and reports for 1890-91.
(d) Sanctioning contracts both for original and repair works.
(e) Consideration of the District Engineer's application for granting him mileage rate when travelling.
(f) Disposing of miscellaneous business.

Dr. S. J. Manook held the office of the Vice-Chairman throughout the year. There has been no change in the executive establishment during the year of report.

The monthly accounts of the Committee's office as well as that of the District Engineer's were audited by a Sub-Committee consisting of the Vice-Chairman and two other members under section 174 of the Act. The accounts were also audited by the Examiner of Local Accounts during the year.

During the year under report the whole of the current demand of Rs. 3,745 on account of road cess on lands and mines, &c., was realised. There was no arrear to recover in the year under report.

The road cess was levied as in the previous years at the maximum rate of half-an-anna in the rupee both on the annual value of lands and on the net profits of quarries and jungles as prescribed in section 148 of the Act.

The Committee spent Rs. 204-15 in maintaining and improving some village roads in Dhalbhum in the year under report.

Abstract of a report by the District Engineer, Singhbum, on the works carried out by him during the year 1891-92.

Chaibassa Bend road.—Besides the maintenance of the road, an aggregate length of over 3 miles of it has been gravelled. Raising of a few low places beyond Ghatsilla has been also done. It was some six years ago that the gravelling of those places that had become miry, and in consequence impassable for cart traffic during the rains, was first taken up, and it is during the year under report that the gravelling of such places was finished up to Bend. Ramps to the approaches of unbridged nalas have been maintained and cased.

Nursingar-Bhararagora road.—Maintenance of the road, including jungle and drain clearing and repairs to wooden culverts, has been done.

Chaibassa-Subornorekha river road.—The road surface has been maintained and an aggregate length of about a mile of road has been gravelled. Ramps to the approaches of nalas five in number have been kept in good order.

Subornorekha ghat.—The rock cutting earthwork portion of the work has been done, and the little finishing off which remains to be done will be completed in the current year.

Chaibassa-Kharsowan road.—A diversion has been made from the 8th mile of the road to the Amda station on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway at the expense of the District Road Fund, and from Amda to Kharsowan at the expense of the Kharsowan Chief, so that the road may be useful as a feeder to the Railway. Small wooden culverts for local drainage have been constructed in the diversion, and ramps with gradient of 1 in 20 have been cut in the approaches to the Sanjoy and Sankua nalas.

Chakradharpur-Koksinga road.—Nearly the whole length has been looked after. There had been numerous timber culverts on this road, but a great many of these as they were in a dilapidated condition have been dismantled, and ramps have been cut for passage of traffic. The whole of the repairs executed was, however, of a petty nature.

Chaibassa-Jyntgur road—The surface of the road and the numerous timber culverts thereon have been maintained. Portions of the road that owing to their being in clayey soil become heavy and almost impassable for carts during the rains have been gravelled, the aggregate length of such gravelling being over a mile.

V Class roads.—The most important of these is the Chaibassa-Katbari road which extends from Chaibassa to Katbari, a distance of 20 miles. Besides maintenance of the surface of the road and the culverts thereon, some of the heavy portions of an aggregate length of about 2 miles have been gravelled. All the other V class roads have been maintained, though, owing to their being little cart traffic on these, the necessary repairs were of a petty nature.

Village roads.—One village road from Kalkapur to Kapargadi ghat (on the 36th mile of the Chaibassa Bend road), a length of about 3 miles, was repaired. The improvement of another village road in Dhalbhum, that from Assonboni to Durkhu, has been taken up. Jungle cutting and uprooting of trees have been finished. Side drains have been cut on only a portion of the road.

Test relief works.—In the middle of August of the year under report, information of distress was received and arrangements were made to commence test relief works in Awla, Lalgur and Bharbharia Pirs which were chiefly reported to be affected. Repairs to neglected village roads were undertaken in Majgown, Kharbund and Bharbharia on the piecework system, paying the labourers at the rate of anna 1-9 for a 100 cubic feet of earthwork, which amount was found to be the cost of a full ration at bazar rates then prevailing. But the rates offered failing to attract labourers, the test relief works were stopped within a month. The very little work that was done cost Rs. 135-8-9, which was debited to the Gamaria-Kharbund (No. 14) and Kharbund-Majgown (No. 15) village roads

Repairs executed to about 200 miles of village roads, in the Sadar sub-division about 170 miles, and in Palamau sub-division some 30 miles.

Arboriculture.—About 400 seedlings from nurseries at Ranchi, Lohardaga, and Daltongunge were planted along various roads to fill up vacancies of last year. Plants along 72 miles of roads maintained and new Dellas supplied in many cases.

Staging bungalows and huts.—Chandwa and Lohardaga bungalows were thoroughly repaired, and considerably improved. Repairs were also executed in three other bungalows and 13 huts.

Tools and plant.—One stone road roller for consolidation of gravels was constructed and several other tools, mathematical instruments and office furniture purchased and repaired.

Generally it may be said that more attention has been paid to good and lasting work than to quantity of work.

Accounts.—The monthly accounts of the Road Fund and of the District Engineer's office were examined by the Vice-Chairman and two other English-knowing members of the Committee who were appointed for the purpose.

The Local Auditor inspected the Chairman's and the District Engineer's offices in March 1892, and the result was very satisfactory.

The work has all been done under the contract system, and advances to contractors, except a few cases, have been adjusted.

A. EVANS GORDON, Colonel,

Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Lohardaga.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Committee, Manbhum, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

Working of the Cess Act IX B.C.) of 1880.—The demands, collections, and balances of Road and Public Works cesses, for the year 1891-92 are shown in the following statements—

NAME OF DISTRICT.	Arrears outstanding from last year.	Demand for the year.	Total (columns 2 and 3).	Previously paid in advance for the present year.	Net demand.	Collected on account of arrears during the year.	Collection on account of current year made within the year.	Collected in advance on account of future year.	Total collection.	Gross balance.	Remission.	Net balance.	REMARKS.

The outstanding balance for the year 1890-91 was Rs. 19,093, and the demand for the year was Rs. 81,805 (excluding Rs. 649 shown in class D of the return for Laikdi coal mines assessed in Burdwan district) against Rs. 7,424 and Rs. 84,775 respectively for the two preceding years. There was an increase of Rs. 30 in the demand owing to the new assessment of certain quarries and jungles. The collection of the year was Rs. 74,009 against Rs. 73,252 in the previous year, showing an increase of Rs. 757. The percentage of collection on the total demand was Rs. 71·232 against Rs. 78·365 of the previous year 1890-91. Out of the gross balance Rs. 29,889, Rs. 34 had been remitted by order of the Commissioner. The net balance to be realised was Rs. 29,855, of which Rs. 13,956 has been realised in the current year (1892-93), and the remainder being chiefly due to the non-realisation of Rs. 14,054 from the Pachete estate for the kist ending 28th March 1892. Steps are being taken to realise the amount due. The cesses were not paid regularly during the year under report in all cases. There is a general tendency to put off payment until the certificate procedure is put in force. The practice of intimating to owners of mines, quarries, and jungles the amount of their indebtedness by means of post-cards was continued, and was found to work satisfactorily. The revenue-paying estates, Pachete and Jaipur, invariably fall into arrears, and their owners seldom pay the cesses until steps are taken under the Certificate Act. As regards the Digwari estates, the cess levied on them is generally realised through the ghatwali Inspector of Police, no certificates being issued in these cases.

C. A. S. BEDFORD,
Chairman.

Explanatory Note.

1. The excess expenditure of Rs. 1,287-1-9 under head "Establishment and Contingencies of office of collection" is on account of arrears of monthly contribution towards pension from July 1872 up to March 1890, viz., Rs. 1,261-5-8, and the balance, Rs. 25-12-1, is on account of cost of service of notices, &c., not recoverable under sections 72, 78, and 81 of the Cess Act IX (B.C.) of 1880.

2. The excess expenditure of Rs. 360-0-11 under head "Percentage cost of establishment, &c.," is owing to payment made during the year for the year previous.

3. The excess expenditure in some of the items of "Repair Works" is apparent, but not actual, as the budget provision is for the year under report, whereas the expenditure includes payment for works provided for in the previous year.

C. A. S. BEDFORD,
Chairman, District Road Committee.

Audit Certificate.

WE hereby certify that the books and accounts specified below,* prescribed for the Road Cess Office and for the office of the District Engineer, are duly kept up, and that they have been posted for the year 1891-92, and they have been duly scrutinised by the Sub-Committee.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Committee, Singhbhum, on the operations of the Committee for the year 1891-92.

THE accounts were examined by the Sub-Committee of Audit and passed by the District Road Committee at a special meeting held on the 10th May 1892.

The opening balance at the credit of the District Road Fund on the 1st April 1891 was Rs. 3,880-15-8, and the receipts under the several heads during the year under report, including deposits and advances, amounted to Rs. 16,910-10-7, making up a total of Rs. 20,791-10-3. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 17,856-10-10, leaving a balance of Rs. 2,935-15-5 available for expenditure in the current year.

There were six meetings of the Committee held during the year under report, with an average attendance of 5·16 members. In each of the meetings a sufficient number of members were present to form a quorum.

(a) Preparation and passing of the budget estimates for 1892-93.
(b) Revising the budget estimates for 1891-92 in view to meeting the cost of executing some additional works on some of the roads and the additional cost of the revaluation establishment.
(c) Passing the District Road Fund annual accounts and reports for 1890-91.
(d) Sanctioning contracts both for original and repair works.
(e) Consideration of the District Engineer's application for granting him mileage rate when travelling.
(f) Disposing of miscellaneous business.

Dr. S. J. Manook held the office of the Vice-Chairman throughout the year. There has been no change in the executive establishment during the year of report.

The monthly accounts of the Committee's office as well as that of the District Engineer's were audited by a Sub-Committee consisting of the Vice-Chairman and two other members under section 174 of the Act. The accounts were also audited by the Examiner of Local Accounts during the year.

During the year under report the whole of the current demand of Rs. 8,745 on account of road cess on lands and mines, &c., was realised. There was no arrear to recover in the year under report.

The road cess was levied as in the previous years at the maximum rate of half-an-anna in the rupee both on the annual value of lands and on the net profits of quarries and jungles as prescribed in section 148 of the Act.

The Committee spent Rs. 204-15 in maintaining and improving some village roads in Dhalbhum in the year under report.

Abstract of a report by the District Engineer, Singhbum, on the works carried out by him during the year 1891-92.

Chaibassa Bend road.—Besides the maintenance of the road, an aggregate length of over 3 miles of it has been gravelled. Raising of a few low places beyond Chatsilla has been also done. It was some six years ago that the gravelling of those places that had become miry, and in consequence impassable for cart traffic during the rains, was first taken up, and it is during the year under report that the gravelling of such places was finished up to Bend. Ramps to the approaches of unbridged nalas have been maintained and cased.

Nursingar-Bhuragora road.—Maintenance of the road, including jungle and drain clearing and repairs to wooden culverts, has been done.

Chaibassa-Subornorekha river road.—The road surface has been maintained and an aggregate length of about a mile of road has been gravelled. Ramps to the approaches of nalas five in number have been kept in good order.

Subornorekha ghat.—The rock cutting earthwork portion of the work has been done, and the little finishing off which remains to be done will be completed in the current year.

Chaibassa-Kharsowan road.—A diversion has been made from the 8th mile of the road to the Amda station on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway at the expense of the District Road Fund, and from Amda to Kharsowan at the expense of the Kharsowan Chief, so that the road may be useful as a feeder to the Railway. Small wooden culverts for local drainage have been constructed in the diversion, and ramps with gradient of 1 in 20 have been cut in the approaches to the Sanjoy and Sankua nalas.

Chakradharpur-Koksinga road.—Nearly the whole length has been looked after. There had been numerous timber culverts on this road, but a great many of these as they were in a dilapidated condition have been dismantled, and ramps have been cut for passage of traffic. The whole of the repairs executed was, however, of a petty nature.

Chaibassa-Jyulgur road—The surface of the road and the numerous timber culverts thereon have been maintained. Portions of the road that owing to their being in clayey soil become heavy and almost impassable for carts during the rains have been gravelled, the aggregate length of such gravelling being over a mile.

V Class roads.—The most important of these is the Chaibassa-Katbari road which extends from Chaibassa to Katbari, a distance of 20 miles. Besides maintenance of the surface of the road and the culverts thereon, some of the heavy portions of an aggregate length of about 2 miles have been gravelled. All the other V class roads have been maintained, though, owing to their being little cart traffic on these, the necessary repairs were of a petty nature.

Village roads.—One village road from Kalkapur to Kapargadi ghat (on the 36th mile of the Chaibassa Bend road), a length of about 3 miles, was repaired. The improvement of another village road in Dhalbhum, that from Assonboni to Durkhu, has been taken up. Jungle cutting and uprooting of trees have been finished. Side drains have been cut on only a portion of the road.

Test relief works.—In the middle of August of the year under report, information of distress was received and arrangements were made to commence test relief works in Awla, Lalgur and Bharbharia Pirs which were chiefly reported to be affected. Repairs to neglected village roads were undertaken in Majgown, Kharbund and Bharbharia on the piecework system, paying the labourers at the rate of anna 1-9 for a 100 cubic feet of earthwork, which amount was found to be the cost of a full ration at bazar rates then prevailing. But the rates offered failing to attract labourers, the test relief works were stopped within a month. The very little work that was done cost Rs. 135-8-9, which was debited to the Gamaria-Kharbund (No. 14) and Kharbund-Majgown (No. 15) village roads

Working of the Branch Road Committee at Gobindpur.—Babu Mohendro Nath Mookerjee, Sub-divisional Officer of Gobindpur, was Chairman of the Branch Road Committee. Only one meeting was held for accepting tenders and selecting contractors for the different roads in the sub-division, the repairs to the station roads in the sub-division having been resolved to be undertaken departmentally.

Working establishment.—There has been no material change in the executive establishment of the Committee during the year under report.

Works done during the year.—The budget grant and outlay under each head are shown below :—

* Though most of the works were completed within the year, final payments for some of them could not be made for want of funds owing to arrears in collection.

Original works.—The expenditure under this head during the year was Rs. 2,734. The works executed were as follows :—

(1) Metalling approach road to the Adra Railway station.
(2) Metalling a portion of the 34th mile of the Raghunathpur-Bankura road.
(3) Metalling approach road to the Anara station.
(4) Metalling Renny road.

Repair works.—The total expenditure under this head during the year was Rs. 24,467 distributed amongst different classes of roads. The works chiefly consisted of the annual maintenance of the several roads in this district, including repairs to the bridges and culverts on them, and were generally much the same as in previous years. In addition to keeping them up in fair condition generally, the following improvements were effected:—

(a) The level crossings of roads Nos. 3, 5, 7, and 11 left in an unfinished condition by the Railway Company were properly adjusted and restored at the expense of the Railway Company.

(b) The Purulia-Manbazar road, the Bolorampur-Barrabazar road, the first and second sections of the Jhapra-Gobindpur road, and the Roghunathpur-Hazaribagh road in the Sadar sub-division, and the third and fourth sections of the Jhapra-Gobindpur road, and the Gobindpur-Giridhi road in the Gobindpur sub-division were much improved by gravelling in places which used to be very heavy during the rains.

(c) The Chirkunda-Laikdi section of the Chirkunda-Patlabari road in the Gobindpur sub-division (a length of about a mile) was thoroughly overhauled and remetalled to meet the requirements of heavy coal traffic.

In village roads, besides their usual annual maintenance, the following additions and improvements were effected:—

(1) A new road about one mile in length was constructed to connect the Ramkanali station of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway with the Purulia-Barakar road near village Gobag (beginning of the 13th mile).

(2) A large quantity of earthwork was done on the road from the Adra Railway station to Kashipur (a distance of about six miles) taken up for construction last year, and the whole length is now generally good enough for country carts.

(3) Barrabazar-Manbazar road has been extended another mile or so, i.e., about 14 out of the 20 miles from Barrabazar are now fit for cart traffic.

(4) The Jeypore-Begoonkodur road and the Jhalda-Torang road in the Sadar subdivision were improved by gravelling the low lying portions, and the Nowagar-Rajgunj road in the Gobindpur sub-division, by easing down steep ghats in several places.

Besides the above, the bridges and culverts and the inspection bungalows on all the roads were repaired and kept up in good condition.

Petty construction and repairs.—The works executed under this head consisted only of the annual petty repairs to the several cart serais both in the Sadar and the Gobindpur sub-divisions. These serai sheds were thoroughly repaired and the compounds of some of them were materially improved.

Arboriculture.—Under this head nothing has been done during the past year beyond planting and maintaining some trees in and close to Purulia. Our attempts to induce village headmen to plant and rear trees along roadsides under promises of reward when the trees attain six feet in height have met with partial success. There is still, however, considerable room for improvement in this respect.

No. 286R.C., dated Ranchi, the 5th November 1892.

From—W. H. GRIMLEY, ESQ., Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honor to submit the accounts and reports of the District Road Committees of this division for the year ending March 1892 with the following brief review.

2. The following table shows the number of members in each Committee, the number of meetings held during the year, and the percentage of average attendance at each meeting :—

	No. of members.	No. of meetings held.	Percentage of average attendance.
Hazáribágh	24	4	44·5
Lohardaga	13	10	33·5
Singhbhum	10	6	51·6
Manbhum	13	10	38·4

The percentage of attendance was the highest in Singhbhum and the lowest in Lohardaga. In the latter district the attendance of non-official members was unsatisfactory. There were three Branch Committees, viz., one at Giridih, one at Daltonganj, and one at Gobindpur. The Giridih Branch Committee held three meetings during the year. It is reported that most of the members of this Committee did not take much interest in the working of the Act, and that some of the members took no part in any of the meetings held during the year. The Daltonganj Branch Committee held two meetings during the year. Here, as in the District Road Committee of Lohardaga, the attendance of non-official members was unsatisfactory. The Gobindpur Branch Committee held only one meeting during the year.

3. During the past year the cess was levied in all the districts at the maximum rate allowed by the law. The following table shows the opening balances, receipts, charges, and closing balances of the several District Road Committees during the year:—

	Hazaribagh.	Lohardaga.	Singhbhum.	Manbhum.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Opening balance ...	19,703	24,124	3,881	10,803	58,811
Receipts ...	64,726	55,256	16,911	39,414	1,76,307
Total ...	84,429	79,680	20,792	50,217	2,35,118
Charges ...	65,410	65,910	17,856	43,604	1,92,780
Closing balances ...	19 019	13,770	2,936	6,613	42,338

It is satisfactory to observe that the closing balances in Lohardaga, Singhbhum and Manbhum have been considerably reduced. In Hazaribagh some of the works provided for in the budget estimate for the year could not be fully done for want of rain, and some were not properly done. Hence the closing balance here exceeded the limit of one quarter's revenue prescribed in paragraph 9 of the Government Resolution No. 4228R.C., dated the 18th December 1885. Provisions have, however, been made for the disposal of the excess balance in the budget estimate for the current year.

4. The following table shows the revenue of each Committee, excluding advances and deposits, the expenditure on original and repair works and on the establishment employed on works, the percentage of cost of this establishment on the amount spent on works, as also the percentage of total expenditure on works, including establishment calculated on the revenue:—

District.	Revenue.	Amount spent on original works.	Amount spent on repair works.	Total expenditure on original and repair works.	Expenditure on account of establishment employed on works.	Total expenditure on works including establishment employed on them.	Percentage of cost of the establishment on work calculated on the amount actually spent on works.	Percentage of total expenditure on works, including establishment calculated on the revenue.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Hazaribágh ..	58,843	2,666	38,136	40,802	8,088	48,890	1·7	83·1
Lohardaga ...	50,981	3,311	25, 32	38,646	9,004	47,710	23·4	93·5
Singhbhum ...	14,163	6,001	3,826	8,827	2,824	11,651	31·9	82·3
Total ...	1,61,309	13,715	1,01,821	1,15,536	27,362	1,42,598	25·6	88·5

The amounts spent by the several Committees on original works are small in all districts except Singhbhum. It is owing to insufficiency of funds and the length of roads to be maintained being great. The only original works undertaken during the year by the District Road Committee, Hazáribágh, were the construction of a third class inspection bungalow on the Balumath-Sherghatty road, and the gravelling of six miles of the Gola-Dakagurah viâ Dámra road. The District Road Committee of Lohardaga increased during the year the waterway of a bridge of four spans of 20 feet each on the Ranchi-Gola road by raising the abutments and piers by four feet, and renewed thoroughly the sâl timber platform on the bridge. The Singhbhum District Road Committee metalled during the year certain heavy portions of the Chaibassa-Bend, Chaibassa-Subornorekha river, Chaibassa-Khursowan, Chaibassa-Jaintigurh and the Chaibassa-Katbari roads at the total cost of Rs. 4,127, and improved the Subornorekha ghat on the Chaibassa-Subornarekha river road at the cost of Rs. 799. Besides these, it constructed a village road at the cost of Rs. 75. The Manbhum District Road Committee metalled two approach roads to the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, a portion of the 34th mile of the road No. 7 in the schedule of roads of that district, and the Renny road in the town of Purulia at the aggregate cost of Rs. 2,734. The repair works under the several Committees consisted mainly of maintenance of roads. No new trees on the sides of roads were planted during the year by the District Road Committee, Hazáribágh. The existing trees numbering 14,000 were maintained in a flourishing condition at the cost of Rs. 1,132, included under heading Repairs. In Lohardaga about 400 seedlings from the nurseries at Ranchi, Lohardaga and Daltonganj were planted along various roads to fill up vacancies, and plantation along 72 miles of roads maintained at the cost of Rs. 1,474, included under heading Repairs as in Hazáribágh. In Singhbhum the expenditure on arboriculture amounted to Rs. 7 only. In Manbhum nothing more could be done beyond planting and maintaining some trees in and close to the town of Purulia. The attempts made in this district to induce village headmen to plant and rear trees along roadsides under promises of reward when the trees attain the height of six feet have met with partial success.

5. The District Engineer and the subordinate establishment appear to have worked well during the year.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY 1893.

THE important features in the meteorology of February in Bengal and Assam have been:—

1. The mean pressure for the month has been in very distinct excess of the normal over the whole area, except perhaps at Darjeeling. The excess has usually equalled from 0·02″ to 0·04″, and it has been largest at the central and north-western stations, and smallest at the southern and eastern stations. At Sibsagar, Chittagong and Gopalpur, indeed pressure has been almost normal.

2. Temperature has been most abnormally low almost throughout the month, the general defect for the whole of Bengal equalling 4·1°, while in Assam it has equalled 2·7°. This defect has been most largely developed in the day or maximum temperatures, which at such stations as Berhampore, Burdwan, Krishnagarh, Naya Dumka, Purnea, Ranchi, etc., have been from 8° to 10° below the normal; while, on the other hand, at a few stations the night or minimum temperatures have been in slight excess of the normal.

3. Humidity has been in large excess of the normal at all except a few of the south-western stations, the variation in some cases exceeding 20 per cent. Cloud proportion for the month has also been very largely in excess of the normal, the amount of cloud in many cases being about twice as great as is usual in February.

4. Winds have been north-westerly and northerly for the greater part of the month, and have hence been rather unusual, for during February southerly winds usually commence at the southern stations, but this has not been the case in the present year.

5. Weather has been of a most unusual character from the large number of barometric depressions and disturbances which have advanced from North-Western India through the province and which have also been of a very influential character. Thus one depression appeared in North-Western India on February 4th, and passed through Bengal from the 7th to the 9th, giving very unsettled weather. Another storm or disturbance advanced from North-Western India on the 12th, reaching and affecting Bengal from the 13th to the 15th. Another depression advanced from Central India on the 16th, and affected Bengal from the 17th to the 20th, and a fourth disturbance coming from North-Western India on the 21st, caused disturbed weather and rain in Bengal from the 23rd to the 25th. Hence for a large part of the month weather was quite unusual with rather heavily-clouded skies and rain, and indeed almost the reverse of the ordinary north-east monsoon weather.

6. Owing to the large number and influential nature of the disturbances which have affected the province, rainfall in February has been very abundant, the falls averaging nearly five inches in South-West Bengal, about four inches in Chota Nagpur, about three inches in Orissa, East Bengal and South Bihar, about two inches in North Bengal, and an inch and-a-half in North Bihar. These amounts generally equal from three to six times as much as usual. The number of rainy days in February has also generally been about four times as great as in ordinary years.

Meteorology of the month.—The month of January in Bengal had been decidedly more disturbed than usual, and there had been no less than five periods of disturbed weather, owing to the passage of barometric depressions from North-Western India either towards or through Bengal. One of these depressions had passed through the province at the close of the month and had disappeared from about January the 30th, and from the 1st of February weather was again fine and settled in Bengal, and the usual cold wave had established itself in the rear of the depression. Thus from the commencement of the month the cold weather conditions were strongly established in Bengal, and these continued up till the 6th or 7th instant without material change. A barometric depression had, however, entered North-Western India on the 4th, and a secondary depression was developed over the North-West Himalayas, and both of these advanced steadily in an easterly direction towards Bengal. On the 7th the two depressions had apparently joined together, and a large shallow depression covered Bengal and the neighbouring parts of the Central Provinces, when the ordinary cold season conditions were reversed, the sky became overcast, temperature was in excess of the normal by from 1° to 4°, and rain became general over Bihar, North Bengal, Chota Nagpur, and South-West Bengal. On the 8th the depression had passed over the Bay, and was some little distance to the south of the Sundarbans, and hence weather over Bengal continued very disturbed, and general rain was reported over the whole province. On the 9th the depression had either passed on in an easterly direction over Burma, or had perhaps filled up: the wave of cold air following in the rear of the depression flowed over Bengal, and winds became northerly and north-westerly. Hence from the 10th instant the sky became cloudless and rainfall ceased. Temperature on the 10th became from 3° to 6° below the normal, while humidity was also low, and hence the cold season conditions again became strongly pronounced.

From this date up till the 13th, the meteorological changes of Bengal were again of little importance, but on the 12th another barometric depression appeared over North-Western and Western India, which travelled rapidly in an easterly direction, and on the 13th a shallow low pressure area existed over the Central Provinces and the west of Bengal, while a secondary depression had appeared over the Punjab. Conditions on the 13th, therefore, again changed in Bengal, temperature rose in front of the depression by 3° and 4,° the skies clouded over and rain commenced in the west and south of the province. On the 14th the depression had reached Orissa and the north-west of the Bay, where it was accompanied by a distinct cyclonic circulation of winds, and fairly general rain set in over almost the whole province. On the 15th the depression had apparently filled up or passed away in an easterly direction, and fine cool weather with little or no rain again set in for a day or two. On the 16th however, another shallow depression had formed over the central parts of India, and moving in an easterly or south-easterly direction it rather largely affected Bengal on the 17th instant, when it again produced fairly general rain in Bihar and North Bengal. On the 18th the low pressure area had again moved in an easterly and south-easterly direction, and was affecting the south-eastern parts of Bengal and Orissa, and fairly general rain was received in South-West, East and North Bengal and Chota Nagpur. On the 19th the depression continued to affect the weather in Bengal, but on the 20th it had apparently passed over the Bay, and from the 19th to the 20th weather was very disturbed in Bengal, and rain had again fallen at many stations, in several cases accompanied by local storms and sometimes with hail. On the 21st the area of low pressure in the Bay had disappeared, and weather again became fine in Bengal, the sky cleared, and temperature fell, while rainfall almost ceased. On this date, however, a fresh barometric depression entered North-Western India, advancing in an easterly direction, and on the 22nd one barometric depression was over the Central Provinces, while a second large depression existed over the Punjab. On the 23rd the depression from the Central Provinces had reached Orissa, that in the Punjab had passed into the Himalayas, and a new depression had advanced from the westward into North-Western India. Hence again conditions became very disturbed in Bengal, and on the 23rd heavy rain was reported at many stations. The depression was still over Orissa on the 24th, but on the 25th it began to move away in a south-easterly direction, and on the 26th it had apparently passed away into the Bay and had ceased to affect Bengal. Hence again from the 23rd to the 25th conditions continued in a very disturbed state, and fairly general rain was received up to the 26th. In the rear of the depression, as usual, a wave of very cool air advanced over the province from the 26th, the sky cleared rapidly, and rainfall ceased, while a steady dry north-westerly wind set in, which continued up to the close of the month, giving again very strongly pronounced cold weather conditions, which indeed were so marked that for the 24 hours from the 27th to the 28th of February, the mean temperature of the greater part of the province was from 10° to 12° below the normal.

Pressure.—At the beginning of the month the general pressure was nearly normal, and this continued to be the case up till about the 18th. For the week ending the 25th, however, the mean pressure had become very distinctly in excess of the normal, the excess equalling nearly 0·04″. For the last few days of the month, however, pressure became in rather large excess of the normal, the excess equalling from a tenth to nearly a sixth of an inch. Hence the mean pressure for the month has been very distinctly in excess of the normal, the excess usually ranging from 0·02″ to 0·04.″ Comparatively small excess pressures are shown in Orissa, South-East Bengal and Assam, and at Gopalpur, False Point, Chittagong, and Sibsagar the excess is not more than a hundredth of an inch. On the other hand, stations like Krishnagarh, Rampur Boalia, Bhagalpur, Arrah, and Chapra report excess pressures between 0·04″ and 0·05″.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the province for the first week in February was 3·3° below the normal. The defect for the second week was also large, and equalled 2·8,° while in the third week it only averaged 1·8°. From this time till the end of the month the variation rapidly increased and became more than 4° in defect, and on the last day of the month the general temperature was about 10° to 11° below the normal of the day. Hence the mean temperature for the whole month has been largely in defect, and for the whole province the mean shows a temperature 4·1° lower than usual, while in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur the defects have averaged between 5° and 6°.

The following table shows generally the variation of the mean temperature from the normal, week by week, at nine typical stations in different divisions of the province, and from it the unusually large defect in the day or maximum temperatures will be seen, for in the week ending the 25th the day temperatures at most stations averaged about 10° below the normal:—

Rainfall.—The largest falls have been in South-West Bengal, which has received an average amount of about five inches, or nearly five times the normal fall for the month. In Chota Nagpur the fall has equalled about six inches, or six times as much as the normal. In East Bengal an average amount of three inches has been recorded, or about three times as much as usual. Orissa has also received nearly three inches, or three times as much as in normal years. South Bihar has received between two and-a-half and three inches, or again six times as large a fall as usual; while North Bengal has received a little more than two inches, or about four times as much as in normal years. The smallest fall of all has been in North Bihar with about an inch and-a-half, or rather less than four times the ordinary fall. The number of rainy days in February was also exceedingly large, and averaged between five and six days over the whole province, while the normal amount is one or two days only.

Notwithstanding the general abundance of the rainfall in February, the falls in the extreme south-east corner of the province have been scanty, and the falls in the Chittagong district have only averaged about half an inch, and have been less than the normal amount. Comparatively small falls were also received in Rangpur and Kuch Bihar.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the month of February 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are missing, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least one inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 21st March 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 18TH OF MARCH 1893.

TOWARDS the close of the previous week a rapid fall of pressure was occurring over Bengal, and the unusually high pressure which had existed for some little time previously was gradually disappearing; but even on the 11th, or the last day of the week, pressure was still in excess by a tenth to a seventh of an inch. On the 12th pressure had fallen over the whole province, the fall being brisk over the western half, but pressure was still usually in excess by considerable amounts, though the distribution was a little irregular. Winds also were irregular in direction, for north-westerly winds were blowing at some of the western stations, north-easterly winds in the centre of the province, while at the western stations the directions were so irregular that at neighbouring stations winds were frequently of opposite direction. Hence weather conditions were rather disturbed, and from the 12th to the 13th numerous rain showers occurred over the greater part of the province except in Bihar. On the 13th pressure had again fallen slowly over the whole province, so that it was still in excess of the normal, but again winds over the whole province were decidedly irregular, and the disturbed conditions made themselves felt in the numerous showers which occurred between the 13th and 14th, for on the morning of the 14th almost all stations in Orissa, South-West Bengal, North and East Bengal and Chota Nagpur reported rain. On the 14th also a further slow fall of pressure had taken place, and pressure became relatively low over a considerable part of Bengal. This was followed by a further fal on the 15th and 16th, when pressure became below the normal of the day at the western and southern stations, though it was still in excess over the remainder of the province. A rather brisk fall of the barometer again occurred on the 17th, which brought pressure below the normal by amounts ranging up to about a tenth of an inch in the west of the province, and also made the pressure decidedly lower in Bihar and Chota Nagpur than over the eastern half of the province. On the 18th again a moderate to rapid fall of pressure occurred, and pressure became below the normal of the day by amounts ranging up to 0·16″ at Dehri, while in the east of the province the defect only equalled about half this amount, and the actual pressures varied from 29·71″ at Ranchi and Dehri to 29·83″ at Chittagong. This distribution of pressure which obtained on the 18th instant, it will be seen, is that which characterises the hot season in Bengal. During these rather rapid changes in the distribution of pressure in Bengal conditions remained somewhat disturbed, and a few local showers occurred on almost all days up till the close of the week.

The main feature in the meteorological changes of the week has been the practical reversal of the pressure conditions which had previously obtained. At the end of the previous week and beginning of the week under review the pressure distribution was almost that of the cold weather, while at its close it was practically that of the hot season. Accompanying this change of conditions also there has been a steady increase in the temperature, and while on the first day of the week the mean temperature was from 6° to 8° and 9° below the normal, and while the defect continued large for the first five days, on the 18th, or the last day of the week, the general defect had been reduced to about 2° or 3°. The changes therefore of both pressure and temperature during the week have been large and important.

Pressure—Has been falling throughout the week, and was at its close rather largely in defect, but nevertheless the mean pressure for the whole period has been in excess at twenty-nine and in defect at eleven stations. As a rule the variations are not larger than from one to three-hundredths of an inch, and usually the defects are shown at the extreme western stations of the province, while the largest excess pressures are recorded at the north-eastern stations. The variations, however, at neighbouring stations are somewhat irregular.

Temperature.—The changes of temperature during the week have been already alluded to. The mean for the period has again been largely below the normal value, and the defect equals no less than 5·4°. This defect has been largest at the western and south-western stations, and in the divisions of Chota Nagpur, South-West Bengal and Orissa it averages nearly 7°.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. The defect during the week again, it will be seen, has been most largely marked in the day or maximum temperatures, which at the majority of the stations given have been about 10° below the normal of the week:—

Rainfall—Has also been fairly frequent during the week, though the falls have usually not been heavy. Average falls of from three-quarters to one inch have occurred in Chota Nagpur and Orissa, and of about half to three-quarters of an inch in East, South-West and North Bengal. In Bihar, however, the falls have only averaged about a fifth of an inch. In all divisions except East Bengal the falls have been in considerable excess of the normal for the period. Indeed in Chota Nagpur the fall is seven times as much as usual, and in Orissa nearly four times as much, but in the other divisions the excess is not so large.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make provision for the licensing of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

Preliminary.

Title, application and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Licensed Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1893.

(2) It applies to Calcutta, as defined by the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888, and to such portions of the Suburbs thereof as are for the time being subject to the operation of Bengal Act II of 1866; also to the municipality of Howrah and to any other municipality in the neighbourhood of Calcutta or Howrah, to which its provisions may be extended by an order of the Local Government to be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

(3) It shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette, with the assent of the Governor-General.

Repeal.

2. (1) Act IV of 1883 is hereby repealed:

Saving clause.

(2) But all rules, orders, declarations, financial arrangements and appointments made under the said Act and which are now in force, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act, so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions thereof.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "basti land" means land which the owner lets out for the building of huts, in such manner that the tenant of the land is the owner of the hut: And "hut" includes any structure erected on such land, whether roofed with tiles or otherwise, and whether constructed with bricks, earth or other materials.

(2) "cotton" means loose raw cotton:

(3) "jute" means raw jute, either loose or in drums, and loose jute-cuttings and rejections:

(5) "person" includes an undivided Hindu family, a firm or company, or association of individuals whether incorporated or not:

(6) "The Commissioner of Police" means the officer vested with the administration of police in the town of Calcutta under the Calcutta Police Act, 1866, and any Act amending the same;

(7) "The Commissioners" mean, in respect of Calcutta, the Corporation of Calcutta; and in respect of Howrah and the other municipalities to which this Act applies or may hereafter be extended, the Municipal Commissioners of each of the municipalities concerned:

(8) "warehouse" means any building or place used for the storing, or pressing, or keeping of jute, cotton, resin, varnish, pitch, tar, hay, straw, rags, tallow, wood or other inflammable substance or thing for the time being subject to the operation of this Act.

CHAPTER II.

Licensed Warehouses.

Warehouse not to be used till licensed.

4. From and after the commencement of this Act, no building or place shall be used as a warehouse unless the owner or occupier thereof shall have previously obtained a license from the Commissioners for such use under this Act.

License of previously licensed building or place.

5. The owner or occupier of any building or place for which there is in existence at the commencement of this Act a license granted under the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act of 1872 or 1879, or the Licensed Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act of 1883, shall, upon application in writing to the Chairman of the Commissioners, be entitled to obtain a license from the Commissioners therefor as a warehouse under this Act, subject to the payment to the Commissioners of such annual fee as is hereinafter provided.

License of new warehouse.

6. Any person proposing to use any building or place as a warehouse within the area to which this Act applies, or may hereafter be extended, and who, at the commencement of this Act, does not hold such license under any of the said aforementioned previous Acts, shall, with his application for a license therefor, send to the Chairman of the Commissioners a plan in duplicate of such building or place prepared on a scale of 8 feet to the inch, and showing—

(a) the boundaries of such building or place;

(b) the position of the engines and furnaces used or proposed to be used in the warehouse;

(c) the space, if any, which has been reserved for the loading and unloading of carts thereat:

and thereupon it shall be within the discretion of the Chairman of the Commissioners to grant a license from the Commissioners therefor as a warehouse under this Act, subject to the payment to the Commissioners of such annual fee as is hereinafter provided, or to refuse a license for the same:

Provided that when a license is refused, the reason for such refusal shall be recorded in writing.

Period for disposal of application for license.

7. Every application for a license under the last preceding section shall be disposed of within thirty days from the date of its being received by the Chairman of the Commissioners, and if not disposed of within that period, the applicant shall not be liable to any penalties under this Act for the use, after the expiration of the said period of thirty days, of the building or place as a warehouse in respect of which such application shall have been made, so long as such application is not finally refused by an order in writing under the hand of the Chairman of the Commissioners setting forth the grounds for such refusal.

Term and conditions of license.

8. Licenses under section six of this Act may be granted either permanently or for such term of years as the Chairman of the Commissioners shall think fit, and shall be subject to the following conditions, namely:—

(1) that the warehouse shall at all times be open to the inspection of an officer appointed by the Commissioner of Police. Such officer shall be a member of the Fire-brigade, but shall not be a member of any Police Force:

(2) that the annual fee imposed in respect thereof be paid as in that case made and provided.

Special Committee may exercise powers of Chairman.

9. (1) With the consent of the Chairman of the Commissioners, any special Committee of the Commissioners, not less than three or more than five in number whom the Commissioners in meeting shall in that behalf appoint, may exercise the powers and discretion under this Act vested in the Chairman of the Commissioners.

(2) The proceedings of such Committee shall not be submitted to the Commissioners in meeting or be subject to revision by them.

Annual fee of license.

10. The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed ten per centum per annum on the annual value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of the municipal taxes, less ten per centum on the outlay incurred in respect of the means and appliances therein or appertaining thereto for preventing or extinguishing fire:

Provided that the annual fee payable by any owner or occupier in respect of any license shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty rupees, and that the estimated total annual amount to be derived from such fees shall not exceed fifty rupees per centum of the amount required to meet the cost of the fire-brigade, as shown in the budget mentioned in section twenty-six of this Act:

Provided also that the owner or occupier of adjacent warehouses and the godowns, yards or compounds auxiliary to such warehouses shall not be bound to take out more than one license in respect of such warehouses, godowns, yards and compounds.

Change in occupation of warehouse to be notified.

11. Whenever and so often as a change in the occupation of any warehouse occurs, the person entering into occupation of the same shall, within two weeks of his so entering into occupation, give notice in writing to the Chairman of the Commissioners of such change of occupation; and shall thereupon pay to the Commissioners a fee of five rupees: and his name shall accordingly be substituted in the license in respect of such warehouse for the name of the last occupier.

Chairman may apply to Magistrate to suspend license of warehouse.

12. (1) Whenever the Chairman of the Commissioners receives credible information that any of the conditions to which the license of any warehouse shall be subject has been broken by the holder thereof, he may apply in writing, setting forth the substance of such information, to a Magistrate for the issue of a summons upon the holder of the license to show cause why such license should not be cancelled or suspended, and may also apply to such Magistrate to suspend in the meantime such license pending the hearing of the case.

(2) The Magistrate shall not make an order suspending such license unless he is satisfied that it is necessary to prevent or obviate immediate danger or injury of a serious kind.

(3) The summons issued under this section shall be served upon the said holder of the license named therein in the manner provided in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, for the service of summons.

Magistrate may cancel or suspend license.

13. The Magistrate, before whom the case instituted under the last preceding section is brought on for disposal, may, if after taking evidence he be satisfied that there exist reasonable and proper grounds for cancelling or suspending the license, cancel such license, or may order the same, for such time as he may think fit, to be suspended; and may impose such conditions as to the reversal of such order of cancelment or suspension as may be consistent with the provisions of this Act, for the grant of a license for a warehouse.

CHAPTER III.

Penalties.

Penalty for not taking out license.

14. Any person who, without taking out a license, uses any building or place as a warehouse shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees for each day during which he may so use or continue to use such warehouse.

Penalty for using warehouse after refusal, &c., of license.

15. Any person who uses any warehouse in respect of which a license has been refused, or after the license in respect thereof shall have been cancelled, or during the time for which such license shall have been suspended, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding two hundred rupees, and to a further penalty not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which any such warehouse may be so used as aforesaid.

If, and so often as there be a change in the occupation of any warehouse, the person entering into occupation fail to give the notice and to pay the fee required by section eleven of this Act, such person shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding ten rupees for each day during which he may so use or continue to use such warehouse.

Penalty for giving false information to Chairman respecting license.

Penalty for preparing, &c., inflammable substance on roof of building.

19. Any owner or occupier of a warehouse who shall prepare or dry, or cause to be prepared or dried, any inflammable substance or thing for the time being subject to the operation of this Act, on the top or roof of any building constituting or forming part of such warehouse, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees for any one such offence.

Penalty for using as residence any warehouse used for pressing jute or cotton.

20. 21. Any person who shall bring into a warehouse used for the pressing or screwing of jute or cotton, if jute or cotton be then stored therein, or use therein any matches or any artificial light unless duly and thoroughly protected shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding ten rupees for any one such offence.

Penalty for smoking within warehouse.

22. Any person who shall smoke within a warehouse used for the pressing or screwing of jute or cotton, if jute or cotton be then stored therein, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding ten rupees for any one such offence.

CHAPTER IV.

23. The Commissioners shall pay to the Commissioner of Police half-yearly, in the months of May and November, such sums as are required to meet the cost of the fire-brigade as appear in the budget of the Commissioner of Police, and in such proportion, respectively, as the Local Government shall, from time to time, prescribe.

24. The Commissioners shall rateably impose the annual fees payable for licenses under section ten of this Act upon all warehouses, and shall appropriate towards the cost of the fire-brigade the amount derived from such annual fees, and all penalties and fines imposed, and all rates levied under this Act.

Cost of fire-brigade how to be met.

25. (1) The Commissioners may, for the purpose of further providing the cost of the fire-brigade, levy the following rates:—

Rates may also be levied to provide for cost of fire-brigade.

(a) a rate not exceeding two and a half per centum on the annual value, as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, on any building or place used for the storage of any other inflammable substance or thing not specifically mentioned in clause (8) of section three of this Act, which the Local Government may, by a notification to be published in the Calcutta Gazette, declare to be liable for the payment of such rate:

Provided that the rate payable by any owner or occupier in respect of any building or place under this clause shall not exceed one hundred rupees;

(b) a rate not exceeding one-half per centum on the annual value, as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, on all basti lands with the huts, if any, upon them;

(c) a general rate not exceeding one-eighth per centum on the annual value of all houses and lands assessed under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, and the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888.

Commissioner of Police to prepare annually budget or estimate of receipts and expenditure of fire-brigade.

(2) Such budget shall be laid before the Commissioners at a meeting, and shall be forwarded by them to the Local Government with such remarks as they shall think fit to record; and it shall be within the discretion of the Local Government to pass, modify or reject the estimates of all or any sums entered in such budget.

27. Any sum standing at the credit of the Jute Warehouse Fund of the municipalities abovenamed, or at the credit of any fund appropriated to the maintenance of the fire-brigade under the provisions of Act IV of 1883 at the time when this Act comes into force, shall be appropriated as an asset of the Fire-brigade Fund under this Act.

Sums to be appropriated as an asset of fire-brigade fund.

28. The provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, and the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888, relating to the recovery of rates levied under those Acts, respectively, shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, apply to the recovery of rates levied under section twenty-five of this Act:

Mode of recovery of rates levied under section 25.

Provided that the rates levied under this Act in Calcutta shall be included with the four rates mentioned in section one hundred and one of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888, as one consolidated rate.

29. The Local Government may fix the proportionate liability for the cost of the fire-brigade to be borne by the Commissioners of the municipalities to which this Act applies or may hereafter be extended; and may from time to time alter the proportions in which the Commissioners of any or all the municipalities, for the time being subject to the operation of this Act, are liable for the payment of the said sum.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 67.

The Council met at the Council Chamber on Saturday, the 11th March, 1893.

MALARIA IN SHAHABAD.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SYED FAZL IMAM, Khan Bahadur, asked the following question:—

"Whether Government is aware that the construction of irrigation channels in Shahabad has introduced malaria into the district, and that the health of the people has greatly deteriorated in consequence; and, if so, whether the Government has taken any steps or will take steps, and of what nature, to check the spread of the disease."

The Hon'ble Mr. COTTON replied as follows:—"The alleged deterioration of the health of the district of Shahabad, subsequently to the introduction of canal irrigation, has repeatedly attracted the attention of Government. It was brought prominently to the notice of the Sone Canal Committee of 1857, and their remarks on the subject will be found in paragraphs 69 to 77 of their report. The increase of malarial fever was considered to be established. The suggestion that irrigation should be prohibited in the immediate vicinity of towns and villages was thought to be of little practical value, because canal water is rarely used in those lands. With regard to drainage, the Committee held that it was the duty of the authorities to remove obstructions which caused the accumulation of surface water, but that there were no means of dealing effectually with the question of subsoil drainage so as to prevent the rise of the water level in the subsoil generally. Mr. Odling, the Chief Engineer and Secretary to this Government in the Irrigation Department, in a lecture, which he delivered at the Engineering College, Sibpur, on the 23rd February last (a copy of which I shall have much pleasure in placing in the hon'ble member's hands), has touched on this subject. He has shown that rice irrigation requires an artificial supply of about 30 inches of water, which is an addition of from 50 to 75 per cent. to the natural rainfall of the country. This necessarily affects the health of the district; but so long as the people insist on planting rice, which gives an easy and certain outturn in preference to wheat or other cold-weather cereals, this deterioration in health cannot be avoided, except by such measures of despotic interference with the choice of the agriculturists as to the crops they wish to raise, as Government would be very unwilling to adopt. He further asserts that the canals have not stopped the surface drainage of the country, but have on the contrary improved it. Before the canals were constructed 'there was not a stream or small river which was not every two or three miles practically closed by embankments, sometimes a mile in length, constructed across the stream. These embankments were mostly constructed for fishing purposes, but not unfrequently with the view of raising the level of the water and utilising it for purposes of irrigation.' These embankments have to a great extent been cleared away, the channels being taken up as public water-courses on which no encroachments will in future be allowed. The river Kao, for instance, which is the main drainage channel of the district, was, when irrigation works were commenced, completely closed at different points of its course by 14 embankments crossing the stream, and as a drainage channel it had ceased to exist. This has now been remedied, and the same process is going on elsewhere wherever it is found necessary, and this appears to be the most practical step that Government can take towards remedying the mischief to health which the lavish use of canal water for rice cultivation is liable to cause."

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON moved that the clauses of the Bill, for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade, be further considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE moved that, after section 26, the following section be added:—

'The Fire-brigade Fund formed under this Act, and the fire-engines, fire-escapes, horses, accoutrements and other equipments and appurtenances of the fire-brigade, and all stations, buildings and places heretofore acquired, provided or built out of any fund appropriated to the maintenance of the fire-brigade under Act IV of 1883, or any of the Acts repealed thereby, or which shall hereafter be acquired, provided or built under the provisions of this Act, are hereby vested in, and shall belong to, the Commissioners, subject to the control of the Commissioner of Police.'

He said:—"Under the Bill, as it at present stands, and so far as it has received the approbation of the Council, there will be imposed on the general public, through the Commissioners of Calcutta, a considerable charge for the maintenance and up-keep of the fire-brigade, which was not laid on the public before. The general public will have to pay at least fifty per cent. of such expenditure. Under the Bill there is a provision for the acquisition of sites for fire-brigade stations, and for the purchase of the various equipments and appurtenances required for the fire-brigade; but there is no provision in the Bill vesting those sites and things in any body. They ought, I conceive, to be vested in the Commissioners as representing the general public. Next, it appears to be very desirable that the control of the fire-brigade should, in express terms, be secured to the Commissioner of Police. The section, the introduction of which I have the honour to move, is framed with this two-fold object. By Act II of 1872, section 15, it was enacted that all existing public fire-engines, or stables or buildings thereto belonging, except those belonging to the Military Department, or to the Port Commissioners, constituted under Act V of 1870, should be transferred to the fire-brigade, which, by that section, the Justices were to organise and thereafter to maintain. By Act V of 1870, the Commissioner of Police was, under section 17, directed to take charge of the existing fire-brigade with all buildings, animals, &c., thereto belonging. In Act IV of 1883, there is nothing to be found as to the vesting of the proprietary right of the properties belonging to the fire-brigade, or as to the Commissioner of Police having control of the brigade. That is how the law stands at present.

"The practical results to be obtained by the proposed section are that if passed there cannot be at any time any question as to the persons in whom there is vested property in the fire-brigade, and that if it should be thought desirable to sell any site or to secure other sites in more convenient localities, the disposal and acquisition of such sites will be more readily effected. The existing sites and appurtenances have been acquired for the benefit of the fire-brigade in former years by means of the heavy license fees imposed on the jute industry. After the passing of this Bill, the burden will be divided, and the public will, in the shape of general taxation, have with the industries taxed to pay for those sites and equipments. It appears therefore, Sir, but just that the property and funds belonging to the fire-brigade should be vested in the Municipal Commissioners. It seems to me also just that while vesting the Commissioners with the proprietary right in these matters, they should be subject, as they practically have been during a considerable period of time, to the absolute control of the Commissioner of Police. It is not my intention to interfere with that control; nor do I think it could, under the language of this section, be contended that the Municipal Commissioners could interfere with or disturb that control. The proposed section merely provides for vesting in the Commissioners the Fire-brigade Fund, the fire-engines, fire-escapes, horses, accoutrements, and other equipments and appurtenances of the fire-brigade, and all stations, buildings and places heretofore acquired, provided or built out of any fund appropriated to the maintenance of the fire-brigade under Act IV of 1883."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton said:—"I regret, Sir, that I should find it my duty to oppose this amendment. It appears to me that there are only two principles before this Council in respect of the executive management of the fire-brigade. Either the fire-brigade must be managed as it is in other countries by the local body concerned, that is to say, in the case of Calcutta by the Calcutta Corporation, or it must be managed by an executive officer appointed for the purpose, as it has been the practice in Calcutta by the Commissioner of Police.

When first the fire-brigade was established in Calcutta, the responsibility of its administration rested with the Justices of Calcutta. The fire-brigade in those days was managed in a very simple manner; but when, in consequence of the large conflagrations in jute warehouses, it was found necessary to increase the fire-brigade, the Justices found themselves unable to administer it efficiently, and they requested the Commissioner of Police to take over charge. This he did, and the arrangement which was come to in 1872 was ratified by the Legislature in 1879, and that arrangement has remained in force ever since. The reason for the arrangement was that the Commissioner of Police, with the large staff at his disposal, is able to administer and control the brigade more efficiently and certainly very much more cheaply than the Calcutta Corporation would be able to do. He is able to administer the brigade thoroughly and efficiently at a cost of something more than Rs. 50,000 a year. There can be no doubt, I think, that if the control were transferred from the Commissioner of Police to the Corporation, the expenditure would be trebled. In Bombay, where the Corporation is responsible for the administration, the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade is about Rs. 1,50,000 a year. It was primarily in order to avoid this large expenditure that the Legislature decided that the arrangement for managing the fire-brigade through the Commissioner of Police should continue, and, as far as I am aware, the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta have not objected to this arrangement. It is no doubt inconsistent with the general doctrine that those who provide the funds should be responsible for the administration. That is a sound and healthy rule, but it is liable, like all other general rules, to exceptions. The reason for the exception in this case is that the fire-brigade can be managed very much more cheaply by the Commissioner of Police.

"The amendment proposed by the learned Advocate-General recognizes the control of the Commissioner of Police, but it vests the whole property of the fire-brigade in the hands of the Municipal Commissioners; and it seems to me that by so doing it introduces an element of friction and disturbance. Under the Bill as it now stands, the Commissioners of Calcutta will have nothing whatever to do with the fire-brigade or with the licensing of warehouses, except the collecting of the funds necessary for the purpose of maintaining the brigade. The powers hitherto exercised by the Calcutta Corporation have been materially diminished by the provisions of the Bill. It is, as hon'ble members are aware, a sore point with the representatives of the Municipality in this Council that it should be so. But of this I am sure that, if the amendment now proposed by the learned Advocate-General is passed, the sore which already exists will be constantly kept alive. This amendment will act as a perpetual blister which will serve to perpetuate the friction, which possibly, if left alone, may die out. It is inconceivable that the Municipal Commissioners, having the whole property of the brigade vested in them, should not take action under the power which the law gives them. I cannot say what direction that action might take, but there can be little doubt, I imagine, that it would result in interfering with the absolute discretion which the law at present leaves in the hands of the Commissioner of Police in administering the affairs of the brigade. If their interference should not tend in that direction, I cannot say in what direction it would operate; and I, for one, would very greatly regret if we allow a provision to be inserted in this Bill which is likely to produce so dangerous and troublesome an effect.

"There is one other very practical objection to the learned Advocate-General's amendment, and that is, that it is not the Commissioners of Calcutta alone who are interested in the working of this Bill. It is not in the Commissioners of Calcutta alone that the property of the fire-brigade will be vested, if this amendment is passed. But it is in all the Commissioners of the neighbouring municipalities as well as the Commissioners of Calcutta, and it will be absolutely impossible to define what property is vested in the hands of the Commissioners of Calcutta, what property is vested in the hands of the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah, or in those of the Commissioners of Cossipore or Chitpore, or of the South Suburban town. In those outlying municipalities, fire-brigade stations have generally been constructed. The head-quarters of the brigade are in Calcutta itself, and all the property of the brigade, fire-escapes, horses, accoutrements, equipments, and what not, which are now stationed in Lall Bazar, will, if this section be passed, be vested equally or proportionately, I cannot say what the learned Advocate-General's intention is in this respect, not only in the Calcutta Commissioners, but in those of the Commissioners of the municipalities to which this Act is extended. This is a very practical difficulty against the acceptance of the amendment proposed. I object to it, Sir, both on the ground of the extreme friction which a clause of this nature will be calculated to excite, and I object to it also on the ground of its extreme practical inconvenience."

The Hon'ble Mr. LAMBERT said:—"I think that this Council will consider that the motion brought forward by the learned Advocate-General ought to be based either on what is equitable, or what is expedient, if not on both. Now, is the proposal an equitable one? At an earlier stage in the debate, the learned Advocate-General insisted with much emphasis that the municipalities had without any kind of justification benefited largely from the Fire-brigade Fund. The amount appropriated for general improvements was said to amount to upwards of a lakh of rupees. The property of the fire-brigade may, at the present time, be estimated at something like two lakhs of rupees, and why this valuable property should now be made over as a free gift to the municipalities, simply because it is proposed to impose on these bodies a portion of the cost, I am at a loss to understand. The property has been paid for wholly by the owners of jute warehouses. If, therefore, the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair were to make any claim on behalf of the owners of warehouses, the proposal would be intelligible. But, Sir, as the matter stands, the Council will, I think, fail to see where the equity of the motion comes in.

"Nor is it expedient? The proposal to vest the control of the brigade in the Commissioner of Police is not a new one. This method of control was decided on twenty years ago, as soon as ever it was found necessary to maintain a brigade at all; and this method was decided for two reasons: economy and efficiency. Now, it is not proposed to disturb this arrangement. The control of the brigade is still to be vested in the Commissioner of Police, but the property of the brigade is to be vested in the Commissioners. I ask whether anyone in this Council Chamber would, in an important matter like this, willingly accept control so fettered? The property of the brigade is declared to belong to certain bodies, but the Commissioner of Police is to control it. And the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has explained that there is not one single municipality, but several municipalities. We already know of four. All these are separate bodies. How then is the property of the brigade to be apportioned amongst them? At the head station there are four steam-engines, and most of the plant and horses; at Howrah there is one engine; at Chitpore-Cossipore, one; at Manicktollah, none. Is Calcutta to take all that is at Lall Bazar?; and is Howrah to take what is at Howrah?, and so on. But, even if this were so settled, the property of the municipalities would be constantly on the move—sometimes here, sometimes there. How is all this to be settled? Again, it may be necessary to condemn an engine or stores. How is this to be done? Is each municipality to be consulted; and supposing one of them objects, who is to decide? Sir, if this motion of the learned Advocate-General be carried, there is only one logical sequence. The control of the fire-brigade must be transferred to the municipalities. Let them manage their own property, but do not by your vote sanction what is neither equitable nor expedient, and which must lead to friction and inconvenience."

The Hon'ble Mr. PLAYFAIR said:—"The statement has been accepted by members of this Council, that the jute industry founded the fire-brigade as it has been known since 1872, that that industry has been taxed so as to enlarge the resources of the brigade to an extent commensurate with the adequate protection of a metropolitan area not far short of 55 square miles, to provide pension funds and sums to improve the block property of the Corporation; yet it has never been stated to whom the property of the brigade belongs, or in whom it is vested. It is now, however, proposed that the valuable property represented by the brigade shall be made over to the town, that is, it shall be a new gift, as we have just heard, of two lakhs of rupees from the jute industry to the city, to the Corporation and citizens of Calcutta. Were the Government now to propose that, in consideration of this handsome donation, this real benefit, the jute industry should be relieved of fire-brigade taxation for, say, a period of five years, it would do nothing more than show a just concern for the interests of a community which, though small, has done a very great deal towards developing the prosperity of this City.

"The funds of the fire-brigade have been so freely utilized for other purposes that I gladly support any proposal that might in future confine the expenditure of these funds solely to the purposes of the brigade, and that would make some single body responsible for the equipment of the brigade. So long as particular industries continue to be assessed to special and differential taxation, I consider it most necessary that the expenditure of the contributions levied from them should be jealously watched. On the supposition that the amendment before the Council has this object in view, I give it my support."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE in reply said :—"This motion has been opposed by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on two grounds: first, he says it will operate as a perpetual blister, and, secondly, that it is impractical in its character; and he has alluded to there being some friction, as I understand him, between the Municipality and the Commissioner of Police. [The Hon'ble MR. COTTON :—"None at present."] How this provision can operate to cause friction of any kind which should be dreaded, I am unable to see. It was said by the hon'ble member that the fire-brigade has been managed, whilst under the control of the Commissioner of Police, in a most economical manner. I trust the hon'ble member will accept my assurance that I in no degree doubt that statement; nor is it any part of this amendment to alter the position of affairs as regards the control of the Commissioner of Police. So far, therefore, as the remarks of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill are concerned, as regards economy and good management, I am at one with him. It is said that the Municipal Commissioners have not objected to the present state of things. What is the present state of things? I was in hopes that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill would have favoured the Council with his opinion as to the persons in whom the property is vested at the present moment. That the Commissioners have not in times past insisted upon an express recognition of their proprietary right may well be, because in those days the general body of rate-payers did not contribute towards the cost of the fire-brigade. No doubt, in the time to come, when this Bill is passed into law and funds have to be provided by the general body of the rate-payers, we may expect that those rate-payers will be less supine in the consideration of their interests, and the safe-guarding of their property, than the Commissioners were when they did not tax the rate-payers at all. If everything is, as I have every reason to believe it to be, perfectly straight and perfectly satisfactory, then I have not such fear and dread of the rate-payers taking such action as the law allows. I think it very desirable that persons should take such action as the law allows them.

"I am not a believer in arbitrary power; my contention is that, whilst the Commissioner of Police should have complete control over the fire-brigade, the Municipal Commissioners should know what the property consists of, and that it should be treated in law as belonging to them. But my hon'ble friend suggested that there was a practical difficulty in the matter. The practical difficulty which suggested itself to him is, that the term used in the amendment is 'the Commissioners,' and that term is defined in the Bill, as he rightly points out, to include not merely the Commissioners of Calcutta, but also the Commissioners of the various suburban municipalities. The term was used by me of set purpose, in order to avoid the difficulty which the hon'ble member seemed to find. It is not my intention, and I do not think the proposed section can be read so as to vest in the Calcutta Corporation portions of the property, and in the Commissioners of Howrah, Cossipore, &c., other portions. For the purposes of this Act, the whole of those Commissioners have the property vested in them; and therefore the section will prevent the occurrence of that which has been described as a blister and as a friction. It will not in any way enable the Corporation to come in and make an objection to a particular mode of dealing with that portion of the fire-brigade property which is within its limits. Far from it. The property would be vested in the whole of the municipalities concerned, and there would therefore be no ground for the Calcutta Commissioners laying claim to the property in Lall Bazar, or any other particular property. It has been admitted by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that the general rule is, that to those who pay belong what they pay for. That I understand is the highest principle of law, and it will be found that there is nothing in this section to prevent there being a perfect safeguard in maintaining the complete control over the property of the fire-brigade being in the hands of the Commissioner of Police."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I am sure the Council will feel some hesitation in differing from the learned Advocate-General on an amendment which has been brought forward, on a matter which is mainly one of legal scope. I came down to this meeting without having formed any definite view as to what the meaning and effect of this amendment, if carried into law, would be, but I venture to say that the result of the discussion to my mind has been to create the opinion that it would be unwise and dangerous to pass this amendment. It is admitted that, under the present law, which has been in force since 1883, the property of the fire-brigade is not legally vested in any one. This may be technically an anomaly, but I think we should require of any one who wishes to remove that anomaly that he should show that inconvenience has arisen from it hitherto. Apparently, so far as I have understood the debate, no such inconvenience has been felt. If therefore we are to remove an anomaly, from which no inconvenience has arisen, we ought to do it by legislation, the results of which are clear and patent to all.

"It seems to me that the amendment which has been proposed might produce results which are not anticipated, and, at any rate, that there is considerable difference of opinion in the minds of hon'ble members as to what those would be. As far as I understand the question, the advantages which the Advocate-General has referred to as to be brought about by the passing of his amendment are already provided for in the law. The Commissioner of Police has to prepare an annual budget; that budget has to be laid before the Municipal Commissioners at a meeting and may be criticised and modified by them, such criticism and modification only taking effect, if ultimately they are approved by the Local Government. Again, at the close of the year, the Commissioner of Police has to present a report of the working and the expenditure of the fire-brigade, which is to be published in the Gazette. All information, therefore, which is needed by the public, who contribute by the payment of taxes towards the maintenance of the fire-brigade, will be conveyed to them under the provisions of the present law. But it seems to me that it might be a very dangerous thing if there is an obscure region in which the authority of the Commissioners and of the Commissioner of Police might possibly clash. I think we are justified in trusting to the good sense and moderation of both the Municipal Commissioners and the Commissioner of Police that there will be no clashing; but it would be unwise for the Legislature to introduce an amendment, the result of which would be to involve things in obscurity, and possibly clashing, which none of us desire and which can lead to no good result. I shall, therefore, vote against the amendment."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 3.	Noes 10.
The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.	The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
	The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
	His Honour the President.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis moved that the following section be added after section 28 of the Bill :—

'The Fire-brigade Fund formed under this Act, and the fire-engines, fire-escapes, horses, accoutrements and other equipments and appurtenances of the fire-brigade, and all stations, buildings and places heretofore acquired, provided or built out of any fund appropriated to the maintenance of the fire-brigade under Act IV of 1883, or any of the Acts repealed thereby, or which shall hereafter be acquired, provided or built under the provisions of this Act, are hereby vested in the Commissioner of Police, subject to the control of the Local Government.'

He said :—"The amendment which stands in my name is identical with that which was brought forward by the learned Advocate-General, and which has just been lost, except that my proposal is, that the property of the brigade shall be vested in the Commissioner of Police, subject to the control of the Local Government, instead of in the Municipal Commissioners as suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

"It seems to me beyond question that the valuable property of the brigade should be vested in some responsible official, and no arguments are required to prove that the official most suited to be entrusted with this charge is the Commissioner of Police, as the Chief Executive Officer of the brigade, and under whose sole orders the fire-brigade is worked. Throughout the whole Bill this officer is recognized as the person to whom Government will look for the efficient working of the brigade, and it seems but reasonable that the property should be vested in him, thus making him legally responsible for everything appertaining to or belonging to the brigade. In the event of land being acquired for the purposes of the brigade, it would be vested in the Secretary of State. In the first place, the Commissioner of Police, under section 8, clause (1), is empowered to appoint the Inspector of Warehouses. Under section 24 the Municipal Commissioners have leave to pay to the Commissioner of Police the sums required to meet the cost of the brigade. Under section 27 it is the Commissioner of Police who has to frame the annual budget and to distinguish in the receipts of such budget the proportionate sums to be contributed by the several municipalities. Under section 31 the Commissioner of Police is deputed to maintain an efficient fire-brigade, and finally under section 42 the Commissioner of Police has to submit a report to the Local Government showing the constitution, assets and working of the fire-brigade during the year.

"It will be seen from the sections to which I have ventured to draw the attention of hon'ble members that this officer is in every way held responsible for the equipment and efficient working of the brigade. It is therefore nothing but right that, as the Commissioner of Police is thus made liable, nothing should be done which is likely to hamper his freedom of action, which would interfere with the economical working of the brigade or impair its efficiency.

"It must be remembered that an immense saving is effected by Government allowing the Commissioner of Police to act as chief of the brigade, and in permitting the subordinate members of the police force to assist in cases of emergency. I understand that no charge has been made at the head-quarters of the police for stabling, accommodation for fire-engines, vans, breaks, &c., godowns for stores or quarters for men, and this may be considered an ample return for any benefit the Police Funds may derive by using the horses belonging to the brigade. It must be remembered that the horses would, under any circumstances, have to be kept in exercise, and were it not for the use they get in the police vans, &c., special men would have to be kept for the purpose.

"I think I have said enough to show that, if the property is to be vested in any particular official, the Commissioner of Police is the one in whom it should be so vested.

"With these remarks I would move the amendment which stands in my name."

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe said :—"Although it is very desirable that the property in question should be declared to be vested in some person, I confess there is some difficulty in enacting that such person should be the Commissioner of Police. The proposed section refers to the Commissioner of Police, whilst the hon'ble member suggests that the landed property will be vested in the Secretary of State, but the amendment which he has proposed vests it in the Commissioner of Police. There are, I think, very serious questions involved in the proposed new section which ought to be avoided, if possible."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"It appears to me that this amendment is decidedly of a very doubtful character, because the Commissioner of Police qua Commissioner of Police cannot hold property. In what capacity can he hold property? In England the Rector of a parish can hold property because under the English law he is a corporation sole, but the Commissioner of Police is not a corporation sole, Calcutta being ruled by English law. I speak with great hesitation in the presence of the Advocate-General, but apparently his view is almost identical with mine. Could the Commissioner of Police institute a civil suit? A large number of powers are conferred upon the Commissioner of Police, but they are exercised for the purposes of police. The property of the fire-brigade is mostly moveable property, and mere possession of that moveable property gives the possessor a right against wrong-doers. The mere fact of his having this property in his charge will entitle him to maintain a prosecution for theft. The property being mostly moveable property, there would appear to be no difficulty in protecting it under the ordinary law. But as to immovable property, the question is doubtful. That must vest in some body. I presume that all the immoveable property belonging to the Government and now occupied by the police is vested in the Secretary of State. I can see no difficulty in allowing the property which the police hold for fire-brigade purposes to be regarded as being also vested in the Secretary of State, and it appears to me, therefore, that it would be wiser not to press this very doubtful amendment."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I venture to suggest, after what has fallen from the legal advisers of this Council, to the effect that the passing of this amendment would be contrary to law, that the hon'ble mover will perhaps see fit to withdraw the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS, by leave of the Council, then withdrew the amendment.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE moved that, in section 46, the words "coir," "oil" and "ship-chandlery," wherever they occur, be omitted.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON moved that, for section 47, the following be substituted:—

'47. Sections three hundred and forty-seven of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888, and two hundred and sixty-one of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, are hereby repealed, in so far as they entitle the Commissioners to levy fees in respect of premises licensed as depôts for hay, straw, wood, rags, jute or other dangerously inflammable material, which are licensed and used as warehouses under this Act.'

He said:—"The amendment which stands in my name is of a formal character only, and is intended to extend the repeal of the law, in so far as the imposition of a special tax on hay, straw, wood, &c., applies in the Municipality of Calcutta, to other municipalities to which the Fire-brigade Bill has been or may be extended. By an oversight the Select Committee repealed this section in respect of the Calcutta Municipality only. It escaped notice that a similar provision is contained in the Bengal Municipal Act, and that a similar repeal should therefore be enacted in respect of such articles of an eminently dangerous and inflammable character as are enumerated in the Bengal Municipal Act. The amendment before you makes the proposed repeal apply equally to the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act and to the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884, and the concluding words of the section repealing the existing law, in so far as it enables the Commissioners to levy fees, in respect of premises licensed as depôts for hay, straw, wood, rags, jute or other dangerously inflammable material which are licensed and used as warehouses under this Act, make it sufficiently clear that the repeal cannot extend to any other municipality than those to which this Act will apply, or may hereafter be extended. It is only under the Bill now before the Council that warehouses can be licensed and used under the Act. But if this point, in the opinion of my legal friends opposite, is not clear, I shall have no objection to a postponement, in order to reconsider the terms of the section and make it quite clear. I believe, however, that the amendment, as it stands, is not open to any such objection."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I understand that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has asked for my opinion on this matter. In answer I have to say that I do not see any objection to the proposed amendment. I believe it was by an oversight that we did not take power under the Bill to deal with the mufassal municipalities in the same way as in the case of the Calcutta Municipality."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I may explain that the difficulty which, I believe, I suggested to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill was, that it appeared to me that as the section in the Bill stands, it precludes taxation of depôts for hay, straw, &c., in all municipalities in Bengal, and not only in those municipalities to which the present Bill applies. This difficulty is, however, an unusual one, for the Hon'ble the Advocate-General agrees with the Hon'ble the Chief Secretary that the introduction of the final words in his amendment would confine it to those warehouses which are licensed under the Act; and this will apply it only to the municipalities of Howrah, Cossipore-Chitpore and Maniktollah, and will prevent its being applied to other municipalities."

The Motion was put and also agreed to.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"We have now disposed of all the amendments which have been brought before the Council, and it is only necessary to hold one more meeting to pass the Bill as amended. It will now be printed and circulated in its revised form, and there will be a final opportunity for any verbal alterations which may be found to be required before it is passed into law at the next meeting of the Council. It will be convenient to allow more than one week for this purpose. The Council will, therefore, be adjourned for a fortnight."

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 25th March, 1893.

RESETTLEMENT OF CERTAIN PRIVATE ESTATES AND GHATWALI TENURES IN THE SONTHAL PARGANAS.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE.

READ—

A letter No. 1507R., dated 6th August 1892, from the Commissioner of Bhagalpur, with enclosures, reporting on the resettlement of certain private estates and ghatwali tenures in the Sonthal Parganas.

Letter from this Government to the Commissioner of Bhagalpur, No. 3632L.R., dated 21st October 1892, and his reply No. 2527R., dated 19th November 1892.

The Land Revenue paid by the estates in the Sonthal Parganas district is permanently settled, but the relations between the zamindars and raiyats are controlled by Government, and a settlement is made of the rents and rights of the raiyats under the provisions of Regulation III of 1872. The first settlement of rents in the Sonthal Parganas district was begun in that year, and was completed in November 1878 for terms of seven and ten years. During the years 1887 to 1889 applications were made to the Deputy Commissioner by certain zamindars and ghatwals for a revision of the settlement, on the grounds that the term had expired, that the measurements recorded had been very roughly made, and that, although there had been a considerable extension of cultivation since the previous settlement, no rents could be obtained for such land without a new settlement. Government at first directed that the applications should be granted under Regulation II of 1886, but it was finally decided to carry out the work under Regulation III of 1872, as supplemented by Regulation II of 1886. The objection that Regulation III of 1872 did not provide a sufficient guarantee for the recovery of the cost of the operations to be undertaken was met by the applicants depositing the costs in advance. During the progress of the operations rules were framed for the guidance of the Settlement Officer, under the provisions of the two Regulations. In Government notification, dated the 16th April 1889, rules under section 10 of Regulation III of 1872, and section 30 of Regulation II of 1886, relating to measurement, record of rights, and other matters, were prescribed; and in April 1891 the Lieutenant-Governor, after visiting Dumka, drew up, in consultation with the local officers, rules for the settlement of rents in supersession of rules which had been previously framed, but found to be unworkable.

Law and rules under which settlement has been made.

2. In the orders dated the 10th September, 16th November, and 12th December 1889, 31 estates and ghatwali tenures which lie scattered in the Dumka, Deoghur, Jamtara, and Godda sub-divisions were notified for settlement under the two Regulations. In addition two villages—Sitakatain and Killa Bhadrain—which are not estates, were settled under Regulation II of 1886. A complete list of the areas settled, including the two villages last mentioned, is subjoined. The aggregate area has been found to be 463,432·32 acres, or 724·11 square miles, comprised in 1,432 villages:—

Settlement and Assistant Settlement Officers.

3. Mr. J. A. Craven, Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, was appointed Settlement Officer. Field operations were begun on the 15th November 1888, Mr. Craven and the Assistant Settlement Officer, Babu Jogendro Chandra Bhanjo, each taking charge of one party. Three separate parties worked during the field season 1889-90—the first or Deoghur and Jamtara party under Mr. Craven's personal supervision; the second or Dumka party under the supervision of Babu Jogendra Chandra Bhanjo; and the third or Godda party under Babu Rash Behari Dutt, Second Assistant Settlement Officer. During the season 1890-91, the same number of parties were employed, but Mr. Craven was relieved of the charge of his party by Babu Balaram Das Gupta, the Special Kanungo, who was appointed Third Assistant Settlement Officer. The field work was completed in March 1891. In regard to settlement, the most important work was the determination of rents on the principles laid down by Sir Charles Elliott in the rules of April 1891, the chief heads of which are explained in paragraph 9 of the Commissioner's review. The record of rights drawn up at the last settlement having been found defective in some respects, it was also necessary that the Settlement Officer should prepare, under the rules of April 1889, a fresh record of rights for every village under settlement. This part of the work was done in a very complete and thorough fashion, and included many miscellaneous proceedings of a varied character, some of which are referred to below. The unit of settlement was, as before, the village, and not the estate. The publication, under section 24 of Regulation III of 1872, of copies of the khatian-jamabandis, and of the record of rights, was completed by the 15th February 1892. For almost the whole period covered by the proceedings, Mr. Craven worked under the supervision and control of Mr. Carstairs, the present Deputy Commissioner, and his final report was submitted on the 1st July 1892.

Particulars of lands.

5. The 1,432 villages which have been surveyed and measured cover an area of 212,610·82 acres rent-paying and 250,821·5 acres non-rent-paying lands. Of the rent-paying area 211,310·12 acres are cultivated, and 1,300·7 acres uncultivated. Of the non-rent-paying area 1,923·5 acres are cultivated, and 248,898 acres uncultivated. The total cultivated area is thus 213,233·62 acres, and the total uncultivated area 250,198·7 acres. The proportions of the total cultivated and uncultivated areas to the whole area are 46 and 54 per cent. respectively. The average rent of cultivated land is Re. 1-1 per acre.

Proceedings were taken under section 15 of Regulation III of 1872 in 48 villages for the exclusion of excess forest and waste. These excluded areas have been mapped and measured, and pucka boundary pillars have been erected. Proceedings were drawn up for every village headship, as also for every village settled khas. Rules regulating the rights of raiyats in regard to the village forest and jungle have been laid down, with a view to the permanent preservation of the village fuel and the timber supply. The village pasture lands, on which all raiyats are allowed to pasture their cattle, have been separately measured and defined, and the same has been done as regards the village common lands.

Number and area of holdings.

6. The total number of raiyati holdings is 36,733, and the average area per holding is 6·03 acres. The total number of sub-tenants is 8,941, and the average area of each sub-holding is 1·19 acres. The total number of headmen's private jotes amounts to 1,249, and the average area of each such jote is 24·97 acres. There are 659 official jotes held by headmen, their average area being 5·14 acres.

7. The particulars of land in the whole tract under settlement are shown in the following statement :—

8. The area under cultivation at the last settlement was 126,158 acres according to a doubtful estimate. The cultivated area now measured is, as above noted, 213,233·62 acres, giving an increase of 87,075·62 acres or 69 per cent. The rent has increased from Rs. 1,60,088-11 to Rs. 2,27,192-8, showing an increase of Rs. 67,103-13, or 41·9 per cent., equivalent to 45·6 per cent. of the cost of survey and settlement. The increase in the rent is therefore less than the increase in the cultivated area, and the rate per cultivated area has fallen (if the estimate of the former cultivated area may be accepted) from Re. 1-4 to Re. 1-1. The proprietors have thus secured, at a comparatively small outlay, (a) a considerable enhancement to their rentals, and (b) in the place of only rough approximations to the cultivated areas of the last settlement, an accurate and authoritative record of both cultivated and uncultivated areas in their estates. Of the total increased rental, Rs. 3,924 will not, according to Rule 6 of the Government Rules of April 1891, take effect until after the expiration of five years; this amount representing the aggregate excess increase over Rs. 100 per cent in the rents of individual raiyats. In other cases the new rents took effect from the beginning of the Bengali year 1299.

Rent.

9. The headman, manjhi, mustajir, or pradhan is elected by the villagers when the office falls vacant, either by reason of his dying without a male heir, or being removed for misconduct. He is the head of the village police, and can be removed only by the Deputy Commissioner. He collects the rents from the rayats except in the villages under khas zamindari management, where the rents are collected by the zamindar's amla. He receives a commission on his collections amounting to 6¼ per cent., or one anna per rupee, from the raiyats, and an equal sum from the zamindar, his nij-jote lands being assessed like other lands of the village. He is allowed to reclaim and cultivate the waste lands in the village without paying rent, or to settle such lands at half-rates with the other raiyats, the other half being appropriated by him; and he has the option of holding in his own possession or settling with other non-resident raiyats the jotes of absconded raiyats or of those who have died without heirs. His jote therefore consists of his private lands and the land which he acquires by virtue of his office. The latter constitutes his official jote. The headman's private and official jotes have been separately recorded in the record of rights; and the lands reclaimed by the headman during his term of office have been recorded as part of his private jote. The office of headman is not saleable, the only exceptions to this rule being the cases of (1) the memorialists to whom certain concessions were granted in Government order No. 1617, dated 7th June 1877, and (2) those settlement holders who were recorded as múl raiyats at the former settlement. The right of alienation in those cases does not include the right of splitting up the headship.

Headmen.

No raiyat can be evicted except by the order of the Deputy Commissioner, who sanctions eviction only on the ground of non-payment of rent. Only money rents have been settled at certain recorded rates, which are also applicable to under-raiyats. The raiyati jotes are heritable, but not transferable.

Raiyats.

10. The cost of the operations amounted to Rs. 1,47,158-11-9, which have been paid by the proprietors of the estates under settlement. The average cost is therefore about 5·1 annas per acre on the total area of cultivated and uncultivated lands. The expenditure includes the cost of—

Cost.

	Rs.	A.	P.
Tents	2,880	7	3
Furniture	698	8	0
Instruments	2,135	3	0

The Lieutenant-Governor approves the Commissioner's suggestion that the tents, furniture, and instruments be kept for future use. They will be valued and paid for from the funds deposited for the settlement, the amount of the valuation being then refunded to the proprietors of the estates now resettled in proportion to their contributions.

11. A Notification under section 5 of Regulation III of 1872, declaring that this settlement has been completed, will be published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 15th March 1893, the publication of the records of rights under section 24 having been completed, as stated before, on the 15th February 1892.

Economic information.

12. The Lieutenant-Governor has read with pleasure the interesting economic information contained in the report of the Settlement Officer, relating to the distribution of the area among different classes of cultivators; the system of agriculture, wages, food, dress; the areas of the several classes of land; the proportionate increase in each since the last settlement, and the principal products with the areas covered by each. The total areas of rice and bari lands (i.e., lands on which crops other than rice are grown) at present under cultivation are as follows:—

	Acres.
Rice	106,732·41
Bari	106,501·21

Representing the whole tract under settlement by 100, the proportions borne by the rice lands and the bari lands to the whole area are respectively 23 and 22·9 per cent. The proportion of the areas covered by the several kinds of crops is shown below:—

Rice.	Indian-corn.	Sugarcane.	Wheat.	Oilseeds.	Pulses.	Cotton.	Indigo.	Total.
50·05	10·6	2·7	2·28	7·53	24·09	2·4	0·6	100

Irrigation.

Bandhs or embankments thrown across the jores or narrow streamlets, so as to form reservoirs, are the chief means of irrigation in this district, and are constructed by the Santhals without any assistance from the zamindars. The total area covered by bandhs and tanks is as follows:—

	Acres.
In the estates in Deoghar	1,962·7
Ditto in Jamtara	1,690·6
Ditto in Dumka	1,495·1
Ditto in Godda	983·7

Or 9·5 square miles.

Mr. Craven estimates that the area now protected by irrigation from all sources taken together amounts to about 34,748 acres, and that the proportion borne by the present irrigated area to the whole cultivated area is about a sixth.

Condition of Diku and Santhal raiyats.

The ordinary Diku or non-Santhal cultivator is fairly well off. The Santhal is thriftless and fond of drink. He is consequently always in debt and in difficulties with his mahajan.

Maintenance of settlement records.

13. Rules for the maintenance of the settlement records were sanctioned in Government order No. 3254L.R., dated 27th August 1892.

14. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that his acknowledgments may be conveyed to Mr. Craven for the careful and thorough manner in which this survey and settlement have been carried out, and to Mr. Carstairs for his efficient supervision of the work.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and that a copy be forwarded for the information of the Commissioner of Bhagalpur.

DRAFT REVISED WATER-RATE RULES FOR THE MIDNAPORE CANAL.

The 20th March 1893.

No. 75.—Notification.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by sections 99 and 78 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to make the following rules and to fix the undermentioned rates to be charged for water supplied from the Midnapore Canal. These rules and rates will supersede those now in force.

C. W. ODLING,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

1. The Divisional Canal Officer is responsible for maintaining the canal in an efficient state of repair, for providing drainage channels where necessary, and generally for all engineering work involved in its management, as well as for the distribution of water to lessees. The word "canal" is here used as defined in section 3 of the Act.

2. The Deputy Collector is responsible for the assessment and collection of water-rates accruing to Government from the canal.

3. Water shall not be distributed otherwise than on the application of a lessee, or to a person in whose favour a provisional license under rule 15 has been issued. Such application may be made verbally or in writing to any subordinate in charge of that part of the canal from which water is required.

4. If any lessee apply for water to the Deputy Collector or one of his subordinates verbally, he shall be directed to address himself to an irrigation officer or subordinate. If he makes such an application in writing, his petition shall be forwarded direct by the zilladar, to whom it is addressed, to the Sub-divisional Canal Officer in charge of that part of the canal from which the petitioner's village is supplied.

5. The Divisional Canal Officer shall map out the irrigable area into blocks in accordance with the natural features of the ground, and so determine that the whole block shall be irrigable from one outlet, or from one set of outlets. So far as may be practicable, the blocks shall be separated by drainage lines.

6. Each block determined as above shall be numbered and recorded with its irrigable area in registers to be maintained by the Divisional Canal Officers and Deputy Collector. The blocks shall also be marked on maps to be maintained by the same officers.

7. Leases for not more than five years may be granted for the whole irrigable area of a block, or, subject to the provisions of Rule 13, for definite parts of a block, under the following conditions:—

I.—Ordinarily the whole irrigable area of any village, so far as situated within the block, must be included in the lease.

II.—All leases within one block shall be granted, so that they shall expire on the same date.

III.—In order to equalise the areas to be dealt with in each year, the date of expiry of the leases in each block shall be determined by the Divisional Canal Officer in consultation with the Deputy Collector, so that, as far as practicable, one-fifth of the total area usually irrigated may fall out of lease in each year

IV.—No permit shall be granted, when the supply of water must of necessity be delivered across an unleased area, unless a village-channel exists, which, in the opinion of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer, will deliver water without waste across the unleased area.

8. The rates to be charged for water supplied between June and November, whether by flow or lift, to lessees on application shall be—

For a term of five years—Re. 1-8 per acre for each season.

For one year or for water supplied on a provisional license for which a permit for a term of years is not subsequently issued, Rs. 3 per acre.

Provided that the leases, whether new or renewals, required for shorter terms than five years in order to develope the system of blocks as explained above, shall be charged Re. 1-8 per acre only. Otherwise, in addition to the rate of Re. 1-8 mentioned above, an extra rate of 12 annas per acre shall in the first year only be charged on leases for less than five and more than one year.

9. For the supply of water, when available, for winter crops, a rate of Rs. 2-8 per acre per season shall be charged.

10. For the unauthorized use of canal water a rate of Rs. 5 per acre, or such less rate as may be sanctioned by the Deputy Collector, shall be charged.

11. Application for water-leases under section 74 of the Act shall be presented to the zilladar of the division in which the applicant's land lies.

12. Every application for a water-lease shall contain the following particulars:—

1.—Name and residence of applicant.

2.—Name of pargana, mahal and village in which the land to be irrigated is situated.

3.—Total area for the irrigation of which the application is made and its boundaries, and if the lands to be irrigated lie in separate chaks, the name of each chak.

4.—Names of the raiyats whose lands are to be irrigated, and the quantity of land held by each.

5.—Name of the canal and number of distributary from which water is required.

6.—Signatures of the applicants.

13. A separate application must be presented for lands in each village, but tehsilalaida or other lands lying within the village boundary at the time of survey may be included.

14. Before a permit for a term of years is granted, the written consent of the Divisional Canal Officer shall be obtained, but permits for one year only and provisional licenses may be issued with the written assent of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer. The Deputy Collector shall on the day of issue forward a copy of all permits granted to the Divisional Canal Officer.

15. When a water-lease is granted, a kabuliyat shall be taken in a form approved by Government, and a "permit" shall be given to the lessee or lessees in a form similar to that prescribed in Schedule C of the Act. Pending the completion of a lease, the zilladar may issue a provisional license for the supply of water to an area covered by an application.

16. On the issue of a permit or provisional license, the zilladar shall forward to the Sub-divisional Canal Officer direct a requisition requesting him to supply water to the lessee on application. This requisition shall be kept by the Canal Officer till January 1st next following, and shall then be returned to the Deputy Collector. On the back should be noted the several dates on which the village was supplied with water. A fresh requisition shall be issued on or before June 1st, and returned on or before January 1st, each year, till the lease expires.

17. When it comes to the knowledge of the Sub-divisional Canal Officer that canal water has been taken without authority, he shall hold a local investigation and transmit the record thereof to the Deputy Collector. Separate proceedings shall be taken in the case of each village irrigated without authority.

18. On receipt of the record mentioned in Rule 17, and after hearing any objection which may be raised, the Deputy Collector shall determine whether water-rates can be legally charged, and if so, he shall proceed to assess, at the rate provided in rule 10, the land irrigated without authority.

19. The statements of the amounts demandable for water-rates leviable under the rules in force shall be prepared under the supervision and signature of the Deputy Collector in such form as shall from time to time be sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor. Persons charged under rule 10 or 18 shall be served, by post or otherwise, with a statement showing the amounts charged to enable them to lodge an appeal to the Collector under section 91 of the Act if they desire to do so.

20. Should it be proved, after due enquiry, that the supply of water given to any leased area is habitually wasted, or used for the irrigation of lands not under lease, it shall be competent for the Superintending Canal Officer, with the concurrence of the Collector, to direct that the lease shall be cancelled with effect from the 1st of June next following.

21. The rates for water supplied from June to November shall in each season fall due on the 1st January following, but the Deputy Collector may require one-half of the rates due on applications filed after the 1st of September to be paid in advance, and may refuse to issue a permit for more than one year. The rates for water supplied for winter crops shall fall due on the 1st April following.

22. Water-rates imposed under rule 10 or 18 shall fall due as soon as the assessment is made, and shall be realized at once.

23. The Superintending Canal Officer may, with the concurrence of the Collector, direct the Deputy Collector to -

I.—Cease to issue permits for the irrigation of lands in villages where there have been constant difficulties in realizing water-rates until all the arrears of water-rates due are paid up, and also, if specially so ordered, unless half the amount due under new applications is paid in advance. An order under this rule shall be in force for the time stated therein, which shall not exceed three years.

II.—Cancel any five years lease if on the 1st of June of any year water-rates to the extent of half the demand for one year are in arrears.

24. Remission of water-rates, either in whole or part, as the case may require, shall be granted by the Deputy Collector for—

I.—Errors in the assessment of rates.

II.—Injury to the crop on a leased area caused by deficient supply of water.

Provided a written application for remission has been made 15 days at least before the crop is cut.

In regard to applications under II, the written opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer shall be obtained and form part of the record of the case.

25. The Deputy Collector, with the written consent of the Divisional Canal Officer, may grant remissions of water-rates, either in whole or part, for injury to the crops on leased areas caused by excess of water due to deficient drainage.

26. The Deputy Collector may, with the written assent of the Divisional Canal Officer, commute rates charged under rules 10 and 18 to those chargeable for water supplied on application, provided that a lease either for a term of years or for the season has been subsequently executed for the lands in question.

27. Remissions on other grounds than the above require the sanction of Government.

28. In cases where sums due on account of water-rates cannot be collected owing to the death, bankruptcy, or absconding of the defaulter, the amount which is non-realizable may be written off as irrecoverable on the authority of the Collector.

29. Before awarding compensation under section 16 of the Act, or making a reference under section 17 of the Act, the Collector shall obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Canal Officer, and his written opinion shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

30. The Deputy Collector may distribute amongst village mookhyas, who give efficient assistance in collecting water-rates, and generally in his operations under Act III (B.C.) of 1876, a commission calculated in such manner as he may think fit, provided the total amount paid shall not exceed 6 pies in the rupee on the total water-rates collected during the year.

4. Masters and owners of vessels shall obey the directions of, and shall offer no obstruction to, Dock or Jetty officers in mooring, unmooring, moving or removing any vessel from one part of the Dock or Jetties to another part, or in regulating the position for loading and discharging of such vessels.

8. If the Dock Superintendent considers that there is good reason why a vessel should not be admitted into the Dock, he may refer the question to the Commissioners, pending whose decision he may refuse to allot a berth.

9. The Owners $\frac{\text{and}}{\text{or}}$ Master of a vessel shall—

(a) supply warping and other necessary appliances;

31. No coals, cargo or ballast to be shifted in any of the holds or bunkers after the vessel is blocked, without the special permission of the Dock Master. If done, it will be at the risk and responsibility of the Commander.

32. From the time that the Dock ropes are made fast to the ship till she is secured on the blocks, all duty on board is to cease in order that the crew may be available to trim the vessel, if required, by the Dock Master.

33. As soon as a ship is in Dock, the Commanding Officer will station his men to hook on the tackles for putting the ship fair over the blocks, both forward and aft, and to assist in pulling up the shores.

34. As the safety of the ship depends on her prompt shoring, the most particular attention is requisite to the observance of the foregoing rule. No exertions of the Dock staff can effect this without the co-operation of the ship's crew.

35. Masters of vessels shall furnish special notice to the Commissioners before landing hazardous goods, e.g., saltpetre, acids, sulphur, matches, spirits of wine, kerosine oil, turpentine, pitch, tar, and petroleum, &c.

39. Application to work at night or on Sundays or holidays must be made to the Commissioners, who, on production of the Custom House permission, will order all the necessary arrangements for the proper conduct of business. For work at night and on Sunday, and the holidays prescribed by the Commissioners, the extra rates fixed by the Commissioners from time to time must be paid.

41. No ashes, sweepings, or rubbish of any kind are to be landed on any part of the Dock or Jetty premises, except under such conditions as shall be approved by the Commissioners.

42. Except for the purpose of enabling Masters of vessels to take measurements or weighments of goods to be shipped on board their vessels, no goods shall be permitted to be stacked on the wharves beyond the time actually necessary to convey them away.

43. During the time it is actually necessary for goods in course of landing or shipping to remain on the wharves, such goods shall be piled in places assigned for the purpose by the Superintendents of the Wharves or their subordinates.

44. Boats shall not be moored or anchored at the wharves, in order that the owners of the goods brought in them may sell or barter.

45. Empty boats waiting to be hired, or having discharged goods, shall anchor in the stream, at least 150 feet off the wharves.

46. The hours for landing and shipping goods at the Inland Vessels Wharves shall be from 6 A.M. to 6 P.M., on all days, except Sundays and holidays authorised by the Commissioners; and no business shall be transacted on the wharves during the hours intervening between 6 P.M. and 6 A.M., nor on such Sundays and authorised holidays, except on payment of overtime or extra fees respectively.

47. When goods are to be landed or shipped inward or outward, authenticated challans, showing the descriptions and exact quantities of the goods shall be tendered to the cashier by applicants for the passes. On the data furnished in these challans the passes will be drawn up and the tolls levied. In the absence of such challans, or where reasonable doubts exist with regard to their genuineness or correctness, the calculation for levying the toll shall be based on the registered tonnage of the boats or vessels from which the goods are to be landed or on which they are to be shipped.

48. No unauthorised person shall lay hold of, or get into, or upon, any engine, carriage, or truck on the Commissioners' tramway.

49. No driver shall drive his engine over the Commissioners' tramway at a greater rate of speed than six miles an hour.

No. 22 Marine.—Notification.—Whereas it appears that the estimated income of the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta under Act III of 1890 from 1st April 1893 to 31st March 1894, after deducting therefrom the estimated expenditure for the above period, will be insufficient for the payment of the sums which, under the provisions of the said Act, are payable during the year to the Secretary of State for India in Council and to the holders of debentures under the said Act, it is hereby notified that from the 1st of April 1893 the Port Commissioners will charge upon all goods landed from or shipped into any sea-going vessel lying or being within the limits of the port, whether such goods shall or shall not be so landed or shipped at any dock, wharf, quay, stage or jetty belonging to the Commissioners, in addition to, or other than those prescribed by, any scale of tolls, dues, rates and charges now in force, a toll which shall approximate four annas per ton, except for export coal, the charge on which shall be two annas per ton and on bunker coal which shall be free. Goods transhipped within the port are exempt, also ballast with the exception of dressed stone. For the purpose of levying such toll on miscellaneous general cargo landed or shipped at the Kidderpore Docks or at the Jetties, the Commissioners will follow the schedules of charges prescribed for the Docks and the Jetties and charge one-fifth of the rates therein specified ; but where the landing or shipping charge is in these schedules levied on the ton by weight, then the special charge under this notification shall be four annas per ton. For the purpose of levying such toll on goods landed or shipped over the Inland Vessels Wharves, or otherwise than through the Docks or Jetties, the ton shall be reckoned at the actual weight where such is ascertainable. Where the weight is not declared, then the ton shall be reckoned at the respective weights and measurements given in the schedule in force for the Inland Vessels Wharves.

TRIAL BY JURY IN BENGAL.

NOTIFICATION.

THE following papers are published for general information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,
Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 28th March 1893.

Report of the Commission appointed to consider and report on certain questions connected with trial by jury in Bengal.

We, the undersigned, have been appointed by the Government of India by a Resolution, dated the 23rd February, 1893, as Commissioners,

(2) to consider and report whether any, and, if so, what modifications of the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code relating to the trial of offences triable by jury before Courts of Session are desirable for the purpose of preventing miscarriage of justice.

2. We have read and considered the papers mentioned in the Resolution as well as papers placed at our disposal by the Government of Bengal and obtained from the High Court. These are specified in a Schedule attached to this Report. We have anxiously considered whether we should be materially assisted by the examination of witnesses, but, having regard to the ample information furnished by the large mass of official papers and statistics before us, supplemented by our own experience and knowledge of the subject, we have felt that the taking of oral evidence would not adequately compensate for the delay that it would necessarily entail.

3. Before proceeding to report the conclusions at which we have arrived, it is desirable that we should state briefly the origin and history of trial by jury in the Criminal Courts of Bengal outside the Presidency town of Calcutta, so as to show more clearly the grounds upon which our opinions have been formed.

i. Until the 1st of January 1862, when the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV) of 1861 and the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) came into operation, there was no regularly defined procedure in those Courts and the law administered, except where specially defined in regard to certain offences, was involved in some uncertainty.

ii. In 1793, Regulation IX was passed establishing certain Criminal Courts in Bengal under certain rules. Trials before the Courts of Session were held by an European Judge associated with a Mahomedan law officer, whose duty it was at the conclusion of the trial to deliver his futwa or exposition of the Mahomedan law applicable to the case. The law administered under the Mahomedan Criminal Code was modified from time to time in regard to certain offences by successive Regulations passed under the authority of Government to supply defects found to exist therein.

iii. Regulation VI of 1832 for the first time left it to the option of a Sessions Judge to dispense with the futwa of the Mahomedan law officer, and enabled a person under trial, who did not profess the Mahomedan faith, to claim exemption from trial under the Mahomedan Criminal Code, and in such a case the trial was to be held without the futwa of the law officer, and under one of three procedures described by that Regulation:

(a) The Sessions Judge might refer the case, or any point or points in it, to a Punchayet of respectable natives, who were empowered to carry on their inquiries "apart from the Court" and report to it the result, or

(b) The Sessions Judge might constitute two or more such persons assessors or members of the Court. These persons were required to give their opinions separately for discussion, and if any of the assessors or the Sessions Judge so desired it, the opinions of the assessors were to be recorded in writing on the proceedings, or

(c) The Sessions Judge might employ such persons "more nearly as a jury." It was left to the discretion of the presiding Judge to select the jurors, and to fix the number to be employed, and the manner in which their verdict was to be delivered. After consultation, a verdict was to be delivered; but it was provided that, in all cases, the decision was vested exclusively in the presiding Judge.

If the futwa of the law officer was, in a trial so held, dispensed with, and the crime of which the prisoner was convicted was one not specially provided for by the Regulations, the Sessions Judge was not competent to pass sentence, but was directed to refer the case for the consideration of the Nizamut Adawlut. Trial by jury, therefore, under this Regulation, was a very different matter from what the use of that term would ordinarily imply, and we may add that this mode of trial was very seldom adopted.

iv. In 1859, on the Report of the Indian Law Commissioners, the Bill to introduce a Code of Criminal Procedure came before the Legislative Council of India. The Report of the Select Committee was considered by the Secretary of State for India in Council who, on the 31st December 1859, communicated the following despatch on the subject of the introduction of trial by jury in the form and to the extent proposed in the Report of the Select Committee:—

"4. The Law Commissioners appointed under the Indian Act of 1853, proposed to retain the mode of trial by jury in the Presidency towns, and in the case of British subjects in the mofussil; to extend it to certain other classes in the mofussil who have not hitherto enjoyed it; and to leave it to the discretion of the Government to extend it to such other places out of the Presidency town as it may think fit. All other trials before the Sessions Courts were to be conducted with the aid of two or more assessors as members of the Court.

"5. In jury-trials the verdict of the jury was to be binding on the Court. In trials with the aid of assessors the decision was to be vested exclusively in the Judge.

"6. The course proposed by the Commissioners appears to Her Majesty's Government to have been a very safe and judicious one. Under a system intended to be ultimately adapted to the whole of India, including the Presidency towns, it was necessary to secure the binding nature of the verdict of a jury as to matters of fact. This was done, and the trial by jury was to be at once extended as far as it appeared to the Commission it could be safely done by a mere act of the legislature. Beyond this it was proposed to associate natives of the country as assessors with the Judge, in conducting criminal trials, and thus to prepare them for taking hereafter a more decided and efficient part in the administration of criminal justice than they now appear to be prepared for; and in such cases, the decision was to be left with the Judge in order to provide against failures of justice arising out of religious or other prejudices.

"7. The Code as prepared by the Commissioners was laid before the Legislative Council and referred to a Select Committee who struck out the provision respecting assessors thus providing for a general system of trial by jury.

"8. The members of the Select Committee, however, appear to have had their misgivings on this subject; and they accordingly inserted a clause to the effect that the Sudder Court should have the power of over-ruling the verdict of a jury because, said Mr. Harrington in the Legislative Council, 'there was a difficulty in making any other provision without giving a power to native jurors, with which, for the present at least, it was thought that they could not be safely entrusted.'

"9. The clause proposed by the Select Committee was struck out by the Council, and the Bill as now approved by them places the whole of the territories in India, in which the Codes of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, prevail, under a system of trial by jury, the unanimous verdict of the jury being final and conclusive in questions of fact.

"10. Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that the course recommended by the Law Commissioners should be followed, that trials in the Sessions Courts should be generally conducted with the aid of assessors, and that trial by jury being settled by law in regard to certain classes it should be left to the Government to extend it to localities as it may deem fit. Whatever objections there may be to such a course they appear to Her Majesty's Government to be far less than those which exist to the introduction of a general system of criminal administration for which the country is not prepared."

The Legislative Council accordingly modified their recommendations, and the Bill which became Act XXV of 1861, was passed, and came into operation on the 1st January, 1862. Under Section 322, the Local Government was empowered to order that the trial of all offences, or of any particular class of offences, by any Court of Session should be by jury in any district, and from time to time to revoke or alter such order. It was also empowered to direct that the jury in such trials should consist of five persons or of such number, being an uneven number, and not being less than five or more than nine, as it might direct in respect of any particular district or of any particular class of offences in that district. Accordingly the Government of Bengal fixed seven as the number of all juries in such trials, and also in the course of 1862 directed that trials should be held by jury in the Sessions Courts of the Districts of 24-Pergunnahs, Hooghly, Burdwan, Moorshedabad, Nuddea, Patna and Dacca in respect of offences under the following Chapters of the Indian Penal Code:—Chapter VIII (Offences against the Public Tranquillity); Chapter XI (False Evidence and Offences against Public Justice); Chapter XVI (Offences affecting the Human Body); Chapter XVII (Offences against Property); Chapter XVIII (Offences relating to Documents and to Trade or Property Marks); and also abetments of, or attempts to commit, any of those offences. Under Section 328, in order to constitute a legal verdict, the jurors were to be unanimous, or, if the jury consisted of five persons, a majority of four, if of seven, a majority of five, if of nine, a majority of six was necessary. In the event of a majority of a smaller number, the jury was to be discharged and a new trial was to take place, and if, on such new trial, a verdict by a legal majority was not obtained, the accused person was to be acquitted (Section 351). The verdict of the jury was final, except on a point of law, that is, on misdirection established on the part of the Sessions Judge.

v. The Code of Criminal Procedure came under revision by the Legislative Council in 1870, and, in introducing the Bill, the Hon'ble Mr. (now Sir) J. F. Stephen, on the 9th December, 1870, made the following observations:—

"The third and last alteration was with regard to trial by juries, the provisions regarding which appeared to be complicated. There were certain specified majorities which might convict a man of an offence; if a smaller majority wished to convict, the prisoner might be tried again. The Indian Law Commissioners observed that this was an extremely intricate way of proceeding, and that the concurrence of the Judge was a far better guarantee of the justness of the conviction than any specified majority of jurors; and the Bill was altered accordingly thus:—that if not less than two-thirds of the jury convicted a man, and if the Judge agreed with them, the accused was to be convicted; if there was not such a majority, or if the Judge did not agree with them, the accused would be acquitted."

Mr. Stephen then proceeded to state that according to his views trial by jury primâ facie was an institution unsuited to such a country as India, and he asked for information as to its working since 1862.

The reports of the local authorities consulted expressed a good deal of dissatisfaction with trial by jury in the seven districts of Bengal. The Select Committee of the Legislative Council, on consideration of those reports, in their preliminary report on the Bill thus dealt with the subject:—

Resolution III.—"We think that if the jury system in the Mofussil is to be maintained, the Judge should, in cases in which he differs from the jury, have power to refer the case to the High Court, and that the High Court should be empowered to pass final order in the case."

On the 30th January, 1872, the Honourable Mr. Stephen, in presenting the preliminary report, made the following observations:—

"The third Resolution had reference to a question which was referred to the Local Governments when this Bill was introduced; it was a question connected with the jury system in the mofussil. The jury system, as the Council were aware, was introduced by the Criminal Procedure Code passed in 1861. It was then felt to be an experiment, because the whole system of trial by jury implied the existence of a state of things which was peculiar to a community of Englishmen, or a people with English ideas, and if it did succeed, it would succeed in spite of difficulties peculiar to India. The committee had considerable doubts as to the course which ought to be taken in regard to the jury system in the mofussil, and whether it ought to be maintained at all. There was, however, one point upon which they felt clear. They thought that the Judge, in cases in which he differed from the jury, should have power to refer the case to the High Court, and that the High Court should be empowered to pass final orders. In trials by jury, a degree of finality attached to the verdict which attached to the decisions of no other tribunal in the country, and which was entirely opposed to the general spirit of the administration of justice in India. If a man was convicted before a Sessions Judge, he had an appeal to the High Court where they discussed the whole matter, and if they thought justice had not been done, they would reverse the decision. In England this could not be done, and the effect was that an irregular appeal to the Home Secretary was in practice allowed, by which the ends of justice were often defeated. Here if a jury convicted, their verdict was absolutely final; and the only remedy available when a man was unjustly convicted in that way was a petition to the Local Government or to the Governor General in Council, as the case might be, for the exercise of the prerogative of mercy. That was a power to which Mr. Stephen thought there was the very strongest possible objection, the administration of the law was one thing, and the exceptional setting aside of the law was quite a different thing. He admitted that there might be exceptional cases where, owing to peculiar circumstances, it would be proper for the Government to interfere to mitigate sentences which the Judge was bound to pass. But it appeared to Mr. Stephen altogether improper that a man should be permitted to say, 'the Judge thinks I am guilty, but I tell you that I am innocent.' Substantially that was an appeal; but it was an appeal to a person who ought not to accept the appeal; such questions ought to be left to the judicial authorities. The information before the Committee upon this subject, and the experience of the members of the Committee, led strongly to the conclusion that failures of justice resulted from this circumstance."

A further report was made by the Select Committee on this subject:—

Paragraph 9.—"As to Resolution III, we do not recommend the abolition of the jury system, but we think that the opinion of a majority of the jurors with the concurrence of the Judge should decide the case, and that, if a Judge differs from the verdict of the majority of the jury, he should have power to refer the case to the High Court, which may pass such order thereon as it thinks fit."

vi. On the 16th April, 1872, the Hon'ble Mr. Stephen, in presenting this report, accepted the suggestions of the Select Committee and made the following observations:—

"I am aware that some of my honourable colleagues think that we have changed the spirit of the whole system so much by these alterations, that it would have been better to sweep it away altogether. I cannot myself think so. I certainly should not have suggested the introduction of the jury system into India, if I had not found it here, and I cannot say that the opinions given of it by those who have had experience of its working are at all favourable. They were not, however, so altogether unfavourable as to induce us to take the step of recommending its total abolition. In giving the Judge power to refer to the High Court cases in which he differs from the jury, we have no doubt made a considerable alteration upon English precedents. But the alteration, if adopted, will be entirely in harmony with the whole spirit of Indian criminal procedure, the very essence of which is control and supervision by one set of Courts over another. We do not, of course, mean that the Judge should act in this manner in every case in which he has doubts as to the propriety of a verdict, or even in those cases in which he feels that, if he had been a juror, he would not have returned the same verdict. Our intention is, that he should exercise the power in question in those cases only in which it is necessary to do so in order to prevent a manifest failure of justice, and having regard to the strong motive which the Judge always has for avoiding all future trouble by accepting the view taken by a jury, I think there is little reason to fear that the power will be abused."

And the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Sir George Campbell, said :—

"Another subject to which he would draw the attention of the Council was the difficult subject of juries. It was His Honor's opinion that, in this country, juries framed on an English model were not altogether beneficial instruments in the administration of criminal justice; at the same time he had not been willing to abandon the jury system altogether, because, although he did not think that trial by jury was an unmixed good, he believed that the system had a great effect on the political education of the people. It was a very great object to induce the natives of the country to take a part in self-government and in the administration of justice, and it was in that respect only that he regarded the maintenance of the jury system in criminal trials to be of some value."

vii. The Code of 1872 modified that of 1861 in respect of the finality of the verdict of a jury. Section 263 declared that—

"If the Sessions Court does not think it necessary to dissent from the verdict of a majority of the jurors, it shall give judgment accordingly . . . . . If the Court disagrees with the verdict of the jurors and considers it necessary for the ends of justice to do so, it may submit the case to the High Court, and may either remand the prisoner to custody, or admit him to bail. The High Court shall deal with the case so submitted as with an appeal, but it may convict the accused person on the facts, and if it does so, shall pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session."

viii. (An unimportant alteration in expression amounting to more accurate drafting was made in 1874, together with some other amendments in the Code which we need only mention in passing to the real matters in issue.)

ix. It will be observed that, while the Legislature enabled the Sessions Judge to suspend the verdict of a jury by submitting the case for the orders of the High Court, it permitted a verdict by a bare majority of the jurors, that is, by a majority of one juror. The Legislature apparently considered that if the Sessions Judge did not so disagree from the jurors, it was not necessary to have the absolute majority provided for by the Code of 1861. The orders of Government regarding the offences triable by jury, and the districts in which such trials were to be held, remained unaltered. The number of the jurors was in 1873, with the concurrence of the High Court, reduced from seven to five.

x. The Code of Criminal Procedure came again under discussion before the Legislative Council in 1881, and the system of trial by jury again became the subject of many reports, which were duly considered by that Council. But still, though those reports were not altogether favourable, no alteration was made in the Code of 1872 with the exception of a slight alteration of Section 263. Instead of the words quoted above, the corresponding Section (307) of the Code of 1882 provided—

"If in any such case the Sessions Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, so completely that he considers it necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion, and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed."

It was further provided that,

"in dealing with the case so submitted the High Court may exercise any of the powers which it may exercise on an appeal, but it may acquit or convict the accused of any of the offences of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it, and if it convicts him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session."

xi. On 17th July 1884, the Government of Bengal asked the opinion of the High Court whether it was desirable to introduce trial by jury into certain other districts mentioned. After stating that the seven districts had been selected by the late Sudder Court on the ground that the intelligence of the residents was higher than that of the residents of other districts, and that the means of education existing in them, or in their immediate vicinity, would enable the better class to qualify themselves thoroughly to take part in the administration of justice, the letter from Government of Bengal proceeded in these terms :—

"3. The reports submitted by District Magistrates and Commissioners of Divisions on the working of the system during the first years of its introduction were not favourable. The Commissioner of Dacca stated that he had no confidence in the jury system so far as that division was concerned, and he was of opinion that justice would be defeated in the more important trials by its application to them, though it might work well in unimportant cases, where the parties were poor and insignificant. The Commissioner of the Presidency Division thought the country was not sufficiently advanced for the introduction of the system, as in his opinion, even the higher classes of the people, with the exception perhaps of those residing in the immediate vicinity of the metropolis, were unfit for the duty of jurors, not so much by reason of their education as on account of their peculiar religious tenets, and their more cherished feelings and prejudices; and where these objections did not exist, there was another not less important, viz., their ignorance of the first principles of the law of evidence. The Commissioner proposed that Judges should be vested with the power of selection and rejection, not of persons, but of classes, so that where there was reason to believe that a Brahmin might be, on religious grounds, acquitted solely through the religious scruples of Hindus, or a failure of justice might be apprehended from the existence of party feeling, the Judge might form a mixed jury of Mahomedans, Hindoos, and Eurasians or Europeans, so that no one religion or class should largely predominate. He considered that if this were done, and if greater care were taken in testing the qualifications of the persons selected to serve as jurors, and a clear summing up of the facts of the case were laid before the jury, the chief evils complained of would be remedied. The Commissioner of Burdwan, while prepared to see failures of justice in places where an unusual question arose or difference existed, was of opinion that the system was one of good promise, but that it ought to be gradually and discreetly introduced. The Commissioner of Patna concurred with the Magistrate of Patna in thinking that the natives of India were not, as a body, sufficiently enlightened, either morally or intellectually, to hold the important position of jurors, and he observed that the sooner trial by jury was abolished, in Patna at least, the better it would be for the administration of justice.

4. The reports of the Sessions Judges of the 24-Pergunnahs and Nuddea, copies of which were forwarded with the High Court's letter No. 3325, dated the 29th November, 1864, were more favourable to the system.

The Judge of Nuddea expressed his decided opinion that it had worked well, although there were a few cases in which the verdict of the jury had been directly against the evidence adduced. From his actual experience of the trials in his court, he was satisfied that the presence of a jury in criminal cases had been of essential assistance to himself, and was regarded by the natives themselves as a safeguard against errors of judgment and a guarantee that all the details in a case would be fully understood before any conclusion was formed; and he observed—"Whatever confidence a native may have in the strict and unswerving impartiality of the European Judge, I am not so satisfied that he ever places the same reliance in his power to comprehend all the intricate details which are involved in a difficult case where only natives are concerned, and it is just in these cases, specially where questions of caste, and questions involving family disputes, and native social life and manners, are constantly arising, that a jury taken from the body of the community and intimately acquainted with the ordinary transactions of native life are in the best position for giving most material assistance to the Court." The Judge of Nuddea therefore felt sure that the abolition of trial by jury would be a retrograde measure; and he added, "Every year I hope to see an improvement of what, in its present stage, can only be regarded as an experiment; and while no institution could be better devised for leading the people to think and act more independently for themselves, to rely less upon the opinions and assistance of others, and to trust more to their own energies and exertions, we shall find that the diffusion of the knowledge of the laws, in the practical administration of which they take so responsible a part, will produce a more intelligent attachment on the part of the natives to the Government under which they live."

The Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs considered the jury system to be unsuitable to the existing state of affairs, but he did not think it advisable to abolish it after so short a trial. He was in favour rather of retaining the system and of endeavouring to improve it by amending the jury list. He proposed having on every trial a mixed jury of Europeans and Eurasians with natives, and that the jury should be composed of 5 instead of 7 members.

The Hon'ble Judges of the High Court were of opinion that a certain measure of success had attended the introduction of the system, notwithstanding a few instances in which verdicts had been given palpably against the weight of the evidence, and from which, in consequence, a failure of justice had resulted. While, however, expressing generally their opinion that the system had not proved unsuccessful, the majority of the Hon'ble Judges were not prepared to advise its extension to other districts, or to crimes other than those specified in the chapters of the Penal Code to which it had been applied. They were of opinion that looking to the increased facilities of travelling both by land and water, the radius from within which jurors were drawn might be properly and advantageously extended to 15 or 20 miles instead of 10 miles, the distance from the court-house to which it was restricted, and that a reduction in the number of the jury from 7 to 5 would conduce not only to the convenience of the persons liable to serve as jurors, inasmuch as their services would be less frequently required, but also to the improvement of the system itself by the concentration of responsibility in a smaller number.

5. On a review of the reports summarised above, the Lieutenant-Governor (Sir Cecil Beadon) came to the conclusion that although there had been a few cases in which a failure of justice had resulted from the perversity, prejudice, or want of intelligence of the jury, yet the experiment had succeeded to an extent which was scarcely to be anticipated, and that, on the whole, the jurymen had discharged their duties intelligently and conscientiously. Sir Cecil Beadon was of opinion that in the face of the testimony to the beneficial working of the system in Nuddea borne by the Sessions Judge, who had evidently given the subject very serious thought, there was not sufficient ground for suspending trial by jury in that district, as had been proposed, and that, to abolish or suspend it in any district into which it had been introduced in respect to any particular class of offences to which it had been made applicable, would be open to very serious objection. At the same time, there appeared to him to be sufficient grounds for not introducing the system into other districts until it had been tested for a longer period in the districts in which it was then in force. With a view to the improvement of the system, the radius of the area of selection was extended to 20 miles in the case of Krishnaghur, Patna, and Burdwan, and to 15 miles in the case of the sudder stations of the other jury districts, and the Commissioners were asked to have the jury lists carefully revised by Collectors and to see that the duty of a juror was made as little harassing as possible. The Lieutenant-Governor was of opinion that, in order to render the system applicable under all circumstances to the districts into which it had been, or into which it might hereafter be, introduced, provision should be made by law for empannelling a special jury whenever the Sessions Judge might think it necessary for the ends of justice to adopt this course; and also that the time had arrived when an attempt might be made to prevent access to the jury during the progress of the trial. He was not disposed to accept the recommendation of the High Court for reducing the number of the jury from 7 to 5.

6. In their report on the criminal administration of the Regulation Districts of Bengal for the year 1865, the High Court remarked that the jury system had worked well in the districts into which it has been introduced in 1862. They observed that its success must of course depend partly upon the proper selection of persons to form the jury list of a district, but mainly upon the ability and care with which the presiding Judge performed his duty of setting before the jury the evidence adduced, its legal value, and its bearing upon the crime of which the parties were charged, and they therefore strongly urged the importance of invariably selecting the most experienced and efficient officers at the disposal of the Government to serve as Judges in the jury districts.

7. In February 1867, Sir Cecil Beadon, before severing his connection with the Government of Bengal, recorded his deliberate and mature conviction, founded on long experience and observation, and specially on the results of the system in the Lower Provinces, so far as it had been acted upon, that the trial of all offences before the Courts of Session, in all parts of these Provinces, ought to be by jury; and that the system might be universally adopted not only without prejudice to the administration of criminal justice, but with decided benefit to the courts, and with increased confidence on the part of the public in their judgments. He observed that it had been his invariable aim to select the most efficient, and generally the most experienced, officers at his disposal, to serve as Judges in the jury districts, and that it might be in some degree owing to the care with which the selection of judges had been made that the system had been so entirely successful as far as it had been introduced. He added that, even if there were one or two Judges on the mofussil bench who were not fully competent to direct a jury, it seemed to him that this circumstance ought not to operate against the general introduction of a measure believed otherwise to be expedient. The Government of India coincided generally in the views expressed by Sir Cecil Beadon, but they were not in favour of the extension of the system suggested by him, as they preferred that its extension should depend in the main upon the assured capacity of the Judges available.

8. In their Registrar's letter No. 512, dated the 6th May, 1867, the High Court communicated their views on the following points in connection with the working of the jury system:—

(1) Whether the system should be extended to any districts besides those in which it was in force.

(2) Whether it should be extended to any other offences besides those to which it had been made applicable in certain districts.

(3) Whether any provision should be made for the empannelling of special juries.

(4) Whether it was desirable to frame rules for preventing access to juries during the progress of trials.

The High Court observed that they had had another year's experience of a system which was still new to the country, and that results had not been sufficiently encouraging to warrant them in recommending its extension either to new districts or to other classes of offences than those to which it had in some districts already been applied. With reference to the third point, the Court were of opinion that the preparation of special jury lists was undesirable by reason of the difficulty which was already experienced in keeping up the lists of persons qualified to act as common jurors in mofussil stations; and that any measure which was calculated to diminish the number of common jurors, or to lower the standard of intelligence required of them should be avoided in a country where the system was still upon its trial. As regards the fourth point, the Court were very decidedly opposed to the adoption of any such measure as the framing of rules for the seclusion of juries during the progress of trials. With the exception of the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, all the Commissioners of divisions, who were asked for their opinions on the points specified above, were opposed to the system of trial by jury.

9. The attention of the Government having been drawn to certain cases in which there had been a failure of justice, owing to the action of the juries which tried them, the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court were asked, in July 1871, for an expression of their opinion as to whether the system should be continued or not; and if not, whether it should be abolished or modified, and if modified, in what particulars. In reply, the High Court forwarded the opinions of nine of the most experienced Sessions Judges, seven of whom were opposed to the system, together with a minute by Mr. Justice Jackson, which was concurred in by the Judges of the English Committee. The High Court were not prepared to recommend the removal of any district where it prevailed from the operation of the system; and with regard to any change in the class of offences triable by jury, they stated their willingness to express their opinion upon it should circumstances arise indicating the need of change.

10. Mr. Justice Jackson was of opinion that in cases where popular superstitions, prejudices or predilections operated for or against the accused, it was very unlikely, or at best it was far from certain, that the verdict would be in accordance with the evidence. He observed that it was notorious that in some districts a jury would convict a man charged with dacoity on the slightest evidence, while in many cases it was extremely difficult to obtain a verdict of guilty in cases of perjury and even of forgery. Juries would often acquit, in the face of the clearest proof, rather than run the risk of conducing to a capital sentence, and more especially if the crime had arisen out of conjugal infidelity, and in some places it was next to impossible to obtain from Hindu jurors the conviction of a Brahmin. For these reasons, Mr. Justice Jackson strongly urged the necessity of amending the law in the direction of enabling the presiding Judge whenever he disapproved the verdict of the jury, to refer the case for final orders to the High Court. He also thought that the number of jurors (viz., seven) prescribed by Government was unnecessarily large, and should be reduced. With these modifications he considered that the system might be maintained, and that it was too late to withdraw entirely a boon which had been granted ten years previously, and which was capable of being continued if proper safe-guards were employed. These recommendations were substantially adopted in the Criminal Procedure Code of 1872. Under the Code of 1861 (sections 328 and 352) convictions and acquittals could be obtained only when there were certain fixed majorities in the jury. Under section 263 of the Code of 1872, a Sessions Judge was empowered to refer for the decision of the High Court any case in which he considered the verdict of the jury to be subversive of the ends of justice, and under section 236 the minimum number of the jury was reduced from five to three. No important changes in the system have been made in the Code of 1882; the only new provision being that in section 304, which empowers a jury to amend its verdict.

11. Without going so far as to pronounce the system of trial by jury to have been anything like a complete success, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that it has worked fairly well in the more advanced districts to which it has been applied. Occasionally, no doubt, bad verdicts have been given by juries and miscarriages of justice have resulted; but since 1872, when, at the suggestion of Mr. Justice Jackson, the law was amended and a reference to the High Court allowed in cases in which the presiding Judge considered the verdict given to be wrong, these have decreased in number, and one of the faults of the system at present seems to be that Sessions Judges do not make use of the power thus conferred upon them as often as they should. It will be seen from paragraph 7 of this letter that Sir Cecil Beadon advocated the extension of the system to all the districts of the Lower Provinces so far back as 1867, when it had been in force for only five years. This proposal was apparently abandoned in deference to the view which had been expressed by the High Court that a longer trial should be given to the system in the districts into which it had been originally introduced. Upwards of 14 years have elapsed since Sir Cecil Beadon's Resolution of February 1867 was recorded, and Mr. Rivers Thompson thinks the time has now come when the matter might, with advantage, be reconsidered. I am accordingly to request that the Hon'ble Judges may be moved to favour him with an expression of their opinion as to the advisability of extending the system to the districts named in the margin, supposing that, in the opinion of the local officers who will at the same time be consulted by Government, it will be possible to prepare for these districts a sufficient jury list."

(1) Midnapore. (2) Rajshahye. (3) Rungpore. (4) Mymensingh. (5) Chittagong. (6) Cuttack.

We have set out this letter at length because it embodies the deliberate opinion of the Local Government in 1884 on the working of the jury-system in the seven districts up to that time, and because the view expressed in it appears to be borne out by the papers before us relating to that period.

The High Court considered that the extension of the jury-system thus proposed was not desirable. The Judges (Mitter, Norris and Ghose, JJ., dissenting) reported against it in view of the following considerations:—

(1) The difficulty of procuring proper persons as jurors, regard being had to deficiency of education, using that term not only in its popular sense but in its widest acceptation.

(2) Superstition and prejudice which were still disturbing influences not unfrequently leading to failures of justice.

(3) Perversity, instances of which occasionally came to the notice of the Judges.

(4) Inability to grasp numerous details in complicated cases.

(5) Distaste for the duty shown by those whose services as jurors were specially desirable.

(6) The difficulty of providing a sufficient number of District Judges who were sufficiently experienced and qualified to preside at the trial of jury cases.

It will be observed that the opinion of the High Court was expressed only on the proposed extension of the system, and that neither the Government of Bengal nor the High Court contemplated any limitation of the system then existing, in respect either of districts or of the offences to which it had been applied since 1862.

xii. In 1890 the Government of India requested the Local Government and the Judges of the High Court to consider and report how the system of trial by jury had worked in the Lower Provinces; what opinion was entertained as to its merits as a means for the repression of crime; and what improvements, if any, were called for in its application.

As far as the High Court is concerned, it is sufficient to say that most of the Judges suggested amendments of the law calculated to secure a better administration of justice, and that none of the Judges suggested any other alteration in the system existing, except Mr. Justice Tottenham, who proposed the abolition of trial by jury in capital cases in the mofussil.

xiii. On 22nd June 1891 the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal reported that a careful consideration of the opinions and figures obtained by him left no doubt in his mind of the failure of the jury system in these Provinces in its present shape. His Honour accordingly proposed to withdraw certain classes of offences which under the orders of 1862 and since that time had been triable by jury in certain districts, and also to extend that system to the trial of offences relating to marriage, and further recommended certain alterations in the law in respect of references by Sessions Judges in case of disagreement with the verdicts of juries, the ascertaining of the reasons for such verdicts, and the right of appeal on the facts where a jury was not unanimous and the Judge did not record his agreement with the majority.

xiv. The Government of India approved of the proposed withdrawal and addition of certain classes of offences; and accordingly on the 20th October 1892, the Government of Bengal excluded from trial by jury in the seven districts in which that system of trial had been introduced in 1862, offences under the following chapters of the Indian Penal Code, namely:—

Chapter VIII (offences against the public tranquillity).

Chapter XVII (offences affecting the human body), with the exception of sections 363 to 369 (kidnapping and abduction), section 372 (selling a minor for purposes of prostitution, etc.), section 373 (buying a minor for purposes of prostitution, etc.), and section 376 (rape).

Chapter XVIII (offences relating to documents and to trade or property marks).

The Lieutenant-Governor further directed that all offences under Chapter XX (offences relating to marriage) and abetments of, and attempts to commit, such offences should be tried by jury in any Court of Session established in the seven selected districts. These orders took effect from and after the 1st November 1892.

xv. Subsequently the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in his letter to the Government of India of the 2nd January 1893, stated that he desired to reconsider the matter in view of the distress and dissatisfaction, caused by the partial removal of what is valued as an important privilege, having been so great and so much beyond his expectation, and he suggested a Commission to consider the matter. This suggestion was approved of by the Government of India and the Secretary of State, and the present Commission has accordingly been appointed.

4. We understand our instructions to direct us to report with as little delay as possible whether in our opinion the classes of offences triable by jury in the seven districts should continue as notified on 20th October 1892, or should be altered by reverting to the former classification or by adopting any new classification, and also to report what changes, if any, in the present Code of Criminal Procedure are desirable to prevent miscarriages of justice.

5. We propose to consider, firstly, how far it has been established that trial by jury as introduced into Bengal in 1862 has proved unsuccessful with regard to the administration of justice, to what extent any failures of justice imputed to it are attributable to juries, and, lastly, whether this system of trial should be withdrawn in respect of certain classes of offences so triable or whether, with proper safeguards, it should be maintained as under the orders passed in 1862.

The working of the system generally.

6. We have already shown the procedure in Sessions trials in Bengal since 1793, and the working of the jury system from its introduction in 1862 up to 1884, when the Local Government did not consider it to be a failure but thought that it had "worked fairly well."

7. In 1890 inquiry was made into the system of trial by jury and reports were called for by Government on the following points:—

(1) how the system had worked;

(2) what opinion was entertained as to its merits for the repression of crime; and

(3) what improvements, if any, were called for in its application.

The Judges of the High Court considered that the system was capable of improvement. Their opinion was not especially asked as to any withdrawal of the system in respect either of locality or of the classes of offences triable by jury. It was evidently thought by the Judges that no opinion on this subject was required by the terms of the reference to them, and though some of the Judges stated that difficulty had been experienced in obtaining proper verdicts in certain classes of offences, especially in cases of homicide, and various amendments in the existing law were suggested, only one Judge suggested the abolition of trial by jury in capital cases.

The reports from the Executive and Judicial Officers varied. The majority of the Executive Officers was opposed to trial by jury and condemned the system. Some of the Judical Officers reported strongly in favour of it; others reported against it. It is to be observed that in 1884 also the reports of the Executive Officers were more adverse than those of the Judicial Officers, and that in 1890 many of the Judicial Officers who reported against the system based much of their opposition to it on grounds not special to Bengal but equally applicable to England. Many of them were of opinion that in any country a trained Judge is a better tribunal for discovering the truth than an untrained jury. Apart from general considerations many of them complained of the reluctance of juries to convict in cases of homicide or murder, and of the reluctance of the High Court to interfere with the verdicts of juries in cases referred under section 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

8. The Local Government was of opinion that these reports showed that trial by jury was a failure in Bengal in its present shape, and that, its total abolition being undesirable on political grounds, early steps should be taken to make such changes in its working as might be best calculated to limit the injury which it entailed.

The Local Government accordingly recommended that references by Sessions Judges, when they differ in opinion from the verdict of a jury, should be compulsory; that it should be incumbent on the Sessions Judge to ascertain and record fully the reasons of the jury for their verdict, as "a simple and reasonable way to enabling him to be sure that he ought to disagree with the jury," and that there should be a right of appeal on the facts against the verdict of a jury, when the jurors are not unanimous, unless the Judge records his agreement with the majority. The Local Government also expressed its opinion that "the system of trial by jury in Bengal is particularly unfitted for certain classes of cases, especially those relating to murder and rioting" and it accordingly proposed to the Government of India that the trial by jury of offences under Chapters VIII, XVI (with some exceptions) and XVIII of the Indian Penal Code should be withdrawn, but that the system should be extended to offences under Chapter XX (relating to marriage). In the opinion of the Local Government the evidence adduced clearly pointed to the necessity of making the withdrawals proposed.

9. The Government of India were of opinion that the defects of the present system of trial by jury in Bengal, as well as in other Provinces, appeared to be mainly attributable to two causes:

(1) To the extension of the jury system (a) to areas to which it is unsuitable, and (b) to classes of offences which, as the experience now gained has shown, ought not to be cognizable by juries.

(2) To the fact that the provisions of section 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which were intended to give Sessions Judges and the High Court power to remedy and correct wrong verdicts, have failed to fulfil this intention.

After pointing out that the Lieutenant-Governor had, under the existing law, full power to modify the orders of 1862 so as to withdraw any classes of offences from trial by jury, the Government of India expressed their conviction that the action which the Lieutenant-Governor proposed to take was fully justified by the results reported.

The Government of India were opposed to the proposal to make reference by a Sessions Judge compulsory in every case in which he might disagree from the verdict of a jury; they disapproved of the proposal to empower Sessions Judges to question juries as to the reasons for their verdicts, except in so far as might be necessary to ascertain what the verdicts were, as provided by section 303 of the Code, but they noted for consideration on an amendment of the law the question whether before or after a general verdict has been taken, special verdicts should not be required on particular issues of fact, if not on the general credibility of particular evidence; and lastly, they disapproved of allowing an appeal against the decision of a jury, at least until all other available methods for the improvement of the system had been exhausted.

10. On 20th October 1892 orders, as already stated, were passed by the Lieutenant-Governor withdrawing from trial by jury in the seven districts of Bengal various classes of offences, and extending that form of trial to offences relating to marriage, as well as to abetments of, and attempts to commit, such offences.

11. In their Despatch to the Secretary of State dated 21st December 1892, the Government of India thus summed up the result of the inquiries held and the information so acquired—

"The results of the recent inquiry and the combined weight of high authority, which it disclosed, appeared to us to point distinctly to the adoption of one or other of two alternatives (1) either by legislation to impose the further restrictions on the jury system which are declared by the Local Government and the High Courts to be necessary to provide against failures of justice, or (2) to invite the responsible Local Governments to consider the question of making such necessary changes in the system as are practicable under the existing law."

12. We think that in the recent inquiry sufficient attention has not been given, by many of the officers who have reported against it, to the inherent merits of jury trial as a system, which may be held to compensate for its defects, or to the special advantages which it possesses in a country like India, and which must be set off against the special disadvantages necessarily to be expected. As to the first, we would quote the words of Sir J. F. Stephen in his History of the Criminal Law of England (Vol. I, p. 572), which express our opinions in more appropriate language than we could offer. After considering the relative advantages to a proper administration of justice from trial by a jury, special and common, and from trial by a Judge alone, and generally expressing an opinion adverse to trial by common juries, Sir J. F. Stephen proceeds to discuss the benefits resulting from the system of trial by jury :—

"There is a third point of view from which trial by jury must be considered, namely, its collateral advantages, and those I think are not only incontestable in themselves, but are of such importance that I should be sorry to see any change in the system though I am alive to its defects. They are these :—

"In the first place, though I do not think that trial by jury really is more just than trial by a Judge without a jury would be, it is generally considered to be so, and not unnaturally Though the Judges are, and are known to be, independent of the executive Government, it is naturally felt that their sympathies are likely to be on the side of authority. The public at large feel more sympathy with jurymen than they do with Judges, and accept their verdicts with much less hesitation and distrust than they would feel towards judgments, however ably written or expressed.

"In the next place, trial by jury interests large numbers of people in the administration of justice and makes them responsible for it. It is difficult to overestimate the importance of this. It gives a degree of power and of popularity to the administration of justice which could hardly be derived from any other source.

"Lastly, though I am, as every Judge must be, a prejudiced witness on the subject, I think that the position in which trial by jury places the Judge is one in which such powers as he possesses can be most effectually used for the public service. * * * * * * *

"I think, however, that the institution does place the Judge in a position in which, with a view to the public interest, he ought to be placed,—that of a guide and adviser to those who are ultimately to decide, and a moderator in the struggle on the result of which they, are to give their decision. The interposition of a man, whose duty it is to do equal justice to all between the actual combatants and the actual Judges on the result of the combat, gives to the whole proceedings the air of gravity, dignity, and humanity, which ought to be, and usually is, characteristic of an English Court and which ought to make every such Court a school of truth, justice, and virtue. In short, if trial by jury is looked at from the political and moral point of view, everything is to be said in its favour, and nothing can be said against it. Whatever defects it may have might be effectually removed by having more highly qualified jurors. I think that to be on the jury list ought to be regarded as an honour and distinction. It is an office at least as important as, say, that of guardians of the poor, and I think that if arrangements were made for the comfort of jurors, and for the payment of their expenses when on duty, men of standing and consideration might be willing and even desirous to fill the position."

13. As regards India the system has special merits and special drawbacks. Some of its special advantages arise from the fact that our Criminal law is foreign, and that it is desirable to familiarize the people of India with it, by making them take part in its administration under the guidance of Judges who can explain to them its reasonableness and justice. Some, from the fact that the Sessions Judges are also foreigners and that as compared with them, even after they have acquired experience from a prolonged residence in the country, a local jury (supposing the jurors to be intelligent and honest) should be better able to draw inferences of fact and to discriminate between the truth and falsehood of conflicting oral evidence given in their own language. Further, the odium of what may appear harsh punishments is shifted in great part, from the Government, and the dread, however unfounded it may be, of the all-pervading influence of the Government affecting the judgment is removed. These advantages are sufficient to compensate for a certain number of cases in which criminals may escape conviction or may be convicted of lesser crimes than the evidence might warrant.

On the other hand it was always evident from the beginning that the introduction of the system in India was an experiment involving certain risks. The people were unused to it; the diversity of races, religions and castes might cause a bias in the minds of the jurors in particular cases; it was known that there was amongst many of them a reluctance to be accessory to the taking of life. This last feeling varies much in different parts of the country and among different sects, and is said in some places, such as Surat, to form an insuperable obstacle to securing a conviction in a case of murder. These difficulties no doubt deterred the Government from introducing the system over the whole province of Bengal and led them to introduce it in the first instance in the seven most intelligent and advanced districts. These difficulties also led to the introduction of section 263 of the Code of 1872, now re-enacted in section 307 of the Code of 1882, so as to correct the miscarriages which must occasionally occur in any country where trial by jury exists and which experience was held to have shown occurred in an appreciable number of cases in Bengal.

14. The opinions before us show that experienced officers have frequently complained of the prevalence of wrong verdicts, which they have attributed to various innate defects in the jurors. The statistics on the other hand do not show that there has been any larger number of such cases than might have been reasonably expected, and they certainly do not indicate any break down of the system. We think that considerable weight should be given to the opinions of competent observers. Still the statistics are of great importance as indicating the number of trials, the number of cases in which the Judge has disagreed with the jury, the number of cases referred, and the result of references; and they form a sound basis for judging how far the matters complained of have operated so largely as to seriously interfere with the administration of justice. Opinions of this character have been expressed from time to time since 1862, but they have never been accepted as sufficient material for the condemnation of the system. There is reason to think tha the variance between the adverse opinions and the actual results shown by the statistics can be explained by the bias caused by the occurrence of some case, in which the unexpected results have shocked these officers, who are thus too easily led to believe in the prevalence of the influence which may have caused a failure of justice in an individual case. Having formed this strong opinion and probably reported it to their superior officers, and having satisfied themselves of the existence of certain tendencies or prejudices calculated to interfere with the correctness of verdicts, and seen some instances of their operation, they have too readily assumed that these tendencies and prejudices were overwhelming and generally operative to the subversion of justice, without considering how far education or a sense of responsibility might counteract them and might have led to the majority of the verdicts being such as could not have been given if the tendencies and prejudices in question had swayed the decision of the jury.

Assuming that such tendencies and prejudices on the part of jurors do exist, the statistics show that they do not operate to anything like the extent which might be expected from the perusal of many of the reports made to Government.

15. It must be borne in mind that some of the erroneous verdicts are probably due to want of practice on the part of the Judges in the very difficult art of charging a jury. A good and clear charge or an inefficient one frequently makes all the difference in a verdict. The careful appointment of only the best and most experienced Judges to jury districts must mitigate this danger, but the exigencies of the service must occasionably cause inexperienced officers to be temporarily appointed.

Some of the verdicts alleged to be erroneous may be fairly attributable to distrust of police evidence and of the manner in which cases are got up by the police. This distrust has not been without reason in the past, but steps have been recently taken to improve the police generally, and in particular to secure that the investigation and preparation of cases shall be entrusted to a higher and more trustworthy class of officers. With these improvements the distrust may be expected to gradually disappear.

Steps also have been taken to revise the jury lists so as to obtain a better class of jurors. No doubt this will have a most appreciable effect upon the character of the verdicts, and we notice that one Sessions Judge already reports an improvement from this cause.

16. For such erroneous verdicts as may be given, in spite of all improvements of the kind we have mentioned, and in spite of the increasing education of the people, the remedy of a reference under section 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure ought, we think, to be sufficient. But there is a considerable body of opinion that this safeguard does not work as well as it ought to do owing to two causes,—the reluctance of Sessions Judges to refer cases, and the disinclination of the High Court to disturb a verdict when the case has been referred. This evil, so far as it exists, may, we think, be met by an alteration of the law. This matter we shall discuss later on. It cannot safely be inferred that, in every case in which a Sessions Judge has disagreed with a verdict but has declined to refer the case, the verdict was necessarily wrong. Even after allowing for the reluctance to refer abovementioned, many of the cases must belong to that class where the Judge is not sufficiently confident of the correctness of his own conclusions, as against those of the jury, to feel that for the ends of justice he is bound to press his opinion, or to be certain that the case is not one in which two opinions can be reasonably formed on the evidence. In such cases there is a fair probability that the jury may be right, for there are many referred cases in which the High Court has on a full consideration of the evidence adopted the same conclusion as the jury and rejected that of the Judge.

17. We have examined certain statistics showing the percentages of judgments of Sessions Judges sitting without a jury which have been reversed or modified on appeal. There is no possibility of drawing from these statistics any safe deduction as to the comparative correctness of such judgments and the verdicts of juries, because the former are open to an appeal on the facts in every case at the instance of the accused, whereas no appeal on facts ordinarily lies from the verdict of a jury. These statistics, however, show how possible it is for Judges conscientiously to come to different conclusions on the same evidence in a large percentage of cases, and emphasise the observation that it is unsafe to assume, as a rule, that the Judge is right and the jury wrong when they disagree.

Under section 374 of the Criminal Procedure Code all sentences of death are referred to the High Court for confirmation, and that Court, before confirming any such sentence, considers the evidence, whether the case has been tried by a jury or not. The statistics for six years show that 220 cases were referred under this section, and that in 18 cases, or about 8 per cent., the persons convicted and sentenced by the Court of Session were acquitted by the High Court. These cases are from all the districts of Bengal, including jury districts; and the figures indicate that, whatever be the form of tribunal, a certain percentage of reversals must be expected upon revision by a higher Court, and that erroneous convictions occur in a considerable number of cases.

18. We have not been able to find any reliable evidence of any deterioration in the verdicts of jurors since 1884. We have prepared, from the Annual Administration Reports of the High Court, a statement showing the results of trial by jury since 1877. This statement shows the number of cases tried by juries, the number of such cases in which the verdicts have been approved by the Sessions Judge, the number of cases referred, and the result of the cases tried by the High Court on such references. The returns on which the Government of India and the Bengal Government have proceeded relate only to the five years ending 1891. We have accordingly also showed the results for each of the preceding periods of five years, which are as follows :—

* In 14 cases of 1884 no approval or disapproval was expressed, the Judge having vacated office without recording his opinion.

† Cases actually disposed of during the period.

These returns, in our opinion, show no deterioration during the five last years, on the figures of which period the system of trial by jury has been condemned. If the slight variation can be accepted as any criterion, it would seem to show less cause for dissatisfaction. If, on the other hand, we take the returns of 1883, which the Government of Bengal must have had before them when their letter of 1884 was written, stating that, though the system of trial by jury might not be said to be "anything like a complete success," it had "worked fairly well," we find that out of 344 trials held, the Judge concurred with the verdicts in 292 cases, disapproved wholly in 33, and partly in 19 cases, and referred only 15 cases, out of which the verdicts were accepted in only 3 and set aside in 12. In 1891, on the other hand, the results were much more favourable to juries, for out of 20 references made and tried, the verdicts were set aside and affirmed in an equal number. So far, therefore, as statistics go, the results certainly do not indicate a deterioration.

19. After the fullest consideration of the very abundant materials before us we cannot come to the conclusion that the jury system in its present shape has proved a failure in Bengal. Our general conclusion is the same as that arrived at by the Local Government in 1884, that "the system has worked fairly well in the more advanced districts to which it has been applied." We think that the evils complained of can be sufficiently met by progress on the lines previously followed and by slight alterations of the law so as to express, in terms open to no doubt, what we understand to have been the intention of the Legislature in 1872 and 1882.

Murder Cases.

20. It is in trials for murder that complaints have been most general of failure of justice because juries are unwilling to convict.

This is a complaint which has been made ever since the introduction of the system, and is one which section 307 was designed to meet. But the statistics show that the reluctance to convict in capital cases, so far as it exists as a sentiment, has been to a great extent overcome. We do not find that it can be imputed to any of the seven districts in Bengal, as it has been to three districts in Bombay, that there exists such an antipathy to the taking of life in any form on the part of a large and influential class of the community, as renders it impossible to obtain verdicts of conviction, however clear the evidence may be. We observe that both the Government and the High Court of Bombay propose that charges of murder should still remain triable by jury in the two jury districts of that Presidency to which these special objections do not apply. The complaints in Bengal are more of a general character, that juries are prone to acquit in cases of homicide, as they are too ready to convict in cases of dacoity and kindred offences.

Taking the statistics of trials by jury in murder cases in the seven districts of Bengal, the results cannot, we think, be regarded as very unfavourable; nor are they especially unfavourable in cases in which Brahmins were the persons under trial.

We find that in six years, i.e., from 1887 to 1892, the total number of murder cases tried in the jury districts was 404. Of the persons charged with murder in these cases, 23 were Brahmins. Of these, 13 were acquitted and 8 convicted on verdicts concurred in by the Sessions Judge. Two cases remain; in one, a case from Nuddea, the verdict of the jury, though not approved by the Sessions Judge, was not referred to the High Court, evidently on the ground that the Sessions Judge's dissent was not complete. In the other case a Brahmin named Khan Chand Boid, a constable employed to guard the Government Treasury at Hooghly, was convicted by the High Court against the verdict of the jury and was sentenced to transportation for life.

The Reports show that in one case (20 W. R., 19) a jury at Hooghly convicted one Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty, a Brahmin, of murder, and the Sessions Judge passed sentence of death, but a majority of the Judges of the High Court who tried the case acquitted on the facts. In an unreported case at Howrah a Brahmin, named Ram Charan Mookerjee, was in 1891 convicted of murder by a Hindu Jury and sentenced to death, but was acquitted by the High Court.

No case has been brought to our notice in which an erroneous verdict can be attributed to undue deference to the social position of the accused person. If there be any such case, it is not improbable that the verdict may be due in a great measure to greater care in the defence and to the accused being better able than an ordinary criminal to obtain the services of an experienced and competent legal practitioner.

We have had inquiries made as to the status and position of the persons whose cases have been referred to the High Court by Sessions Judges who disagreed with the verdict, and we find that in an overwhelming majority of cases these persons were of humble position and low caste and in many instances too poor to afford the expense of being represented at the hearing of the case before the High Court.

Riot Cases.

21. It has been said that riot cases ought to be withdrawn because they are complicated, because there is apt to be local feeling, and because the results of the trials are unsatisfactory; and the Shambazar case is quoted as a convincing proof of this. These cases in Bengal present peculiar features. Generally there are two parties to the riot, and the prosecuting party are unwilling to state the actual truth as to the occurrence, lest it should appear that they too have rioted. There is no class of cases in which it is more difficult to ascertain the truth as regards either the circumstances of the riot or the participation of the accused in it. It is not unusual for the prosecuting party to introduce as actors in the riot persons belonging to the opposing party who were not present at the time. The large number of cases in which all or some of those who have been convicted by Sessions Judges without a jury have been acquitted by the High Court on the ground of the untrustworthy character of the evidence or of inconclusive identification, shows how unsafe it is to conclude that it is always the fault of the tribunal if, when a riot has undoubtedly taken place, it is impossible to obtain a conviction. The untrustworthy character of the evidence in these cases has usually more to do with this result than any incompetence in the tribunal.

Much might be done to simplify these cases for the jury by trying the accused in small batches, as allowed by section 239, and by the Judge, after summing up generally on the circumstances of the alleged riot, summing up clearly as to the evidence of identification against each of the accused, and its value.

The objection arising from local feeling can be met, where it exists, by the transfer of the cases to another district under section 523.

22. The Shambazar case is a very peculiar one. There was a notorious riot of a very grave character which could not be doubted or disputed. We have not the evidence before us so as to express an opinion on it even if it were desirable to do so; but it is, we think, clear that there must have been very grave defects in the evidence of identification. For, had the identification of the accused been as clear as the occurrence of the riot, it is not conceivable that the experienced Judge who tried the case would not have referred it to the High Court. He must have been well aware of the numerous cases in which the High Court has reversed unanimous verdicts of juries when they appeared to be clearly wrong.

We do not find any sufficient case made out for the withdrawal of this class of cases, i.e., Chapter VIII of the Penal Code, from the cognisance of juries.

Forgery, etc.

23. No cases have been brought to our notice to show any substantial reason for withdrawing cases under Chapter XVIII of the Indian Penal Code (offences relating to documents or to trade or property marks) from trial by jury. The complaints made have been of a general character and have not been established.

Working and proposed amendment of section 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

24. It has been urged that the remedies provided by law to prevent miscarriages of justice through erroneous verdicts have not been consistently applied, that there has been reluctance on the part of Sessions Judges to refer cases which should have been referred, and that in dealing with referred cases there has not been that uniformity of practice amongst the Judges of the High Court which is so necessary for an efficient administration of justice. We have had under consideration the judgments delivered in such cases during the last five years, and also in other cases published in the Law Reports. It has been argued that in some of these cases, so far as the judgments show, the opinions of the Sessions Judges have not been taken into consideration, and that the Judges of the High Court have been hampered in the consideration of the cases on their merits by analogies of English law applicable to the revision of verdicts in civil cases by Judges who are not judges of the facts, and have rather required the party supporting the reference to show that the particular verdict was "perverse or unreasonable," which are the words used in the older English cases; or, if the case was dealt with without argument, have considered the case only from that point of view; although there are cases in which the Judges have considered the evidence on the merits in order to determine whether the view taken by the jury or that taken by the Sessions Judge was correct.

On the other hand it has been argued that all that can be deduced from the reported cases is that some Judges have given more weight to the opinion of a jury than others; but that as this manifestly depends on the different points of view from which different Judges regard the same matters, the Legislature could not possibly lay down any rule regarding the degree of weight to be attached to the verdict of the jury or the opinion of the Sessions Judge.

To remove all doubts and to define the duties of Sessions Judges and of the High Court in more clear language, we recommend that for the words "so completely that he considers it" in the first paragraph of section 307 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1882, the words "and is clearly of opinion that it is" should be substituted, and that the last paragraph of the same section should be modified so as to run somewhat in the following terms:—

"In dealing with the case so submitted the High Court shall consider the entire evidence, giving due weight to the verdict of the jury and to the opinion of the Sessions Judge and of the dissentient jurors, if any, and may exercise etc., etc.," continuing in the terms of that section. The words in italics are those which in our opinion should be introduced.

25. We learn the intention of the Legislature as to the duty of Sessions Judges from the observations of the Honourable Mr. J. F. Stephen:—

"We do not, of course, mean that the Judge should act in this manner in every case in which he has doubts as to the propriety of a verdict, or even in those cases in which he feels that, if he had been a juror, he would not have returned the same verdict. Our intention is that he should exercise the power in question in those cases only in which it is necessary to do so, in order to prevent a manifest failure of justice; and having regard to the strong motive which the Judge always has for avoiding all future trouble by accepting the view taken by a jury, I think there is little reason to fear that the power will be abused."

To encourage disagreement from the verdict of a jury, or to require a reference in every case in which the Sessions Judge would have come to a different conclusion, would be attended with mischievous results. Amongst these we may point out that it would by degrees utterly destroy all sense of responsibility amongst jurors, a feeling which it is obviously desirable to strengthen, rather than to impair; and the unfortunate effects that would probably ensue from the removal of all such trials to the High Court to be decided on the bare record, and without the advantage of hearing the evidence given.

We understand the meaning of the law to be, that if the Sessions Judge, after considering the fact that the jury or a majority of them have arrived at a certain conclusion, disagrees with that conclusion, and is clearly of opinion that it would occasion a failure of justice if he were to accept the verdict, it is his duty then, and then only, whatever the result may be, to refer the case to the High Court. The two elements (1) disagreement with the verdict and (2) the opinion that he cannot record and give full effect to the verdict without causing a failure of justice, are distinct and should be kept so. The alteration proposed is slight, but we trust that it will serve to make the law clearer and to emphasise the duty of a Sessions Judge not to record a verdict which he is satisfied will cause a failure of justice merely because he is uncertain whether the High Court will concur in his opinion, while making it equally clear that he ought not to refer unless he is satisfied that by giving effect to a verdict a failure of justice will ensue.

26. With regard to the second amendment recommended, we think that it was intended that the High Court should form an independent opinion on the evidence in the same way as it is bound to do, and invariably does, in an appeal in a case tried with Assessors, giving due weight to the opinion of the Sessions Judge as well as to the verdict of the jury. If we are correct in this view, it is desirable that the law should be expressed in clear terms admitting of no doubt.

With the law thus expressed we think that sufficient safeguards would be provided against any miscarriages of justice from erroneous verdicts.

27. After considering all the matters above set forth, including the probable effect of the further safeguards we have recommended, and the fact that for thirty years the offences specified in the orders of 1862 have been tried by juries, and that grave distress and dissatisfaction has been caused by the partial withdrawal of what has come to be regarded as a boon and a privilege, and considering also that, while it is necessary that justice should be administered, it is equally necessary that the subject should feel and be satisfied that it is being properly administered, we have come to the unanimous conclusion that the classification of offences triable by jury as it stood before the 20th October 1892 should be reverted to.

The additional safeguards and improvements recommended in our report will, we anticipate, diminish such evils as exist at present, but it is not in our opinion necessary or desirable to delay reverting to the former classification until the necessary legislation can be carried out. At the same time we think it desirable that the alteration in the law recommended by us should be made with the least possible delay.

28. We have also considered how far there should be any changes in the classification of offences triable by jury. We can suggest no improvement in the classification of offences as given in the orders of 1862. We prefer a classification by Chapters of the Penal Code to one by the degree of punishment which may be imposed, as in Bombay. The Bengal classification is more simple and not open to confusion resulting from charges for offences not triable by jury being added to charges for offences so triable.

Offences relating to marriage.

29. We observe that by the recent order offences under Chapter XX, Indian Penal Code (offences relating to marriage), have been made triable by jury, and we have considered whether this is reasonable and expedient. The change has no doubt been prompted by a desire to leave to juries the determination of cases in which matters relating to their social or religious habits or customs may be involved. It seems to us, however, that in consequence of the diversity of religious and social habits and caste-customs, this object will not be attained so well as in a trial with the assistance of assessors. The jurors are selected by lot and it may so happen that by this process none of the very religion or class which should be associated for the trial may be selected. For instance, where the parties in a trial for an offence relating to marriage may be all Mahomedans, a jury consisting entirely of Hindus may be selected by lot, and where the parties are Chamars or members of the lowest classes, a jury of Mahomedans or Hindus of the higher and educated classes, ignorant of all the habits and customs of the parties, may be selected. On the other hand, in a trial with the assistance of assessors the very opposite results can be secured, because the Sessions Judge is able to choose persons to act as assessors, who are of the same caste or religion or have intimate knowledge of the customs of the parties. Advantages too can be derived in such cases from the more intimate relations which exist between a Judge and assessors than between a Judge and a jury. If, therefore, we have rightly understood the reasons which have induced the Local Government to include offences relating to marriage amongst those triable by jury, we would recommend that they be excluded.

Extension of the system to other offences.

30. We have also had under consideration whether trial by jury in the seven selected districts should be extended to the trial of other offences. We feel, however, that, with the information before us, we are not competent to express any safe opinion on this matter. It is one that can be determined only after detailed inquiry which, from the instructions that we have received to submit our report with as little delay as possible, we have not thought it our duty to undertake. It is a matter that can be separately dealt with by Government.

31. Several minor points in connection with the terms of the reference made to us have been considered and discussed, and upon these we desire also to express an opinion.

Section 303, Code of Criminal Procedure.

32. It has been suggested that the terms of section 303 of the Code of Criminal Procedure should be amended so as to enable a Sessions Judge to obtain more clearly the opinions of the jury on parts of the evidence so as to learn and place on record the grounds upon which the verdict was arrived at. We are not in favour of any alteration in the present law, which provides sufficient means for obtaining a verdict, and we think that there are strong objections to anything of the nature of a cross-examination of the jurors as to details of a case so as to obtain their opinion on portions of the evidence. Amongst these it will be sufficient to say that it must very frequently happen that the jurors may individually arrive at the same conclusion by different processes of reasoning, or they may find difficulty in expressing intelligently or logically a conclusion fairly arrived at on consideration of the entire case. No doubt in certain cases, for instance, in cases of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, or of house-breaking with intent to commit an offence, it may be necessary to give a special verdict to determine the exact offence, so as to regulate the sentence; but the terms of the present law sufficiently provide for this and we are opposed to any alteration for the purposes suggested.

It has also been proposed to permit questions to be put to the jurors after verdict delivered, so as to enable the Sessions Judge to determine whether he should refer the case to the High Court, as well as to enable the High Court itself in a referred case to learn whether a verdict was on reasonable and proper grounds; but the same objections equally apply. We prefer to adopt the course recommended by us, viz., that each case referred by a Sessions Judge should be tried by the High Court on its merits on the evidence, as less likely to cause embarrassment and more certain to ensure a just and proper decision.

Special Verdicts.

33. We have considered anxiously whether it is practicable to enable the Judge to direct the jury to return a special verdict on issues framed by him. This proposal is supported by high authority, and we are fully sensible of the advantages it would be to the High Court in referred cases to have a special, instead of a general, verdict to deal with, but we have reluctantly come to the conclusion that such a procedure would be liable to create greater evils than it would remedy.

Special Juries.

34. We agree with the conclusion arrived at by the Government of India that it is not desirable to have Special Juries, in so far as these may tend to weaken Common Juries, but at the same time we are of opinion that cases may occur in which the employment of a Special Jury may be highly desirable in the interests of justice as well as to satisfy public opinion, and we think that means may be provided which will meet the objection raised. It might be provided that while there is a separate list of Special Jurors, the gentlemen on that list should not be exempted from ordinary service as Common Jurors. They might be included also in the general list and be liable to serve when drawn for ordinary trials without being reserved only for trials by Special Juries. No additional service within the prescribed period of six months should be required. It might be left to the Local Government on consideration of the jury list and other matters, peculiar to a district to which trial by jury may have been extended to declare that in the Sessions Court of that district trials by Special Jury might be held, and it might be left to the discretion of the Sessions Judge of that district to determine in each case, on application made, whether a trial should be so held, provided that the application be made in sufficient time to summon a Special Jury. If this recommendation be accepted, it will become necessary to amend the law, so as to provide for the preparation of Special Jury lists, and for summoning such Jurors.

Number of Jurors.

35. It has been proposed by the Government of Bengal to reduce the number of jurors from five to three. The law permits a jury to consist of from nine to three members, according as the Local Government may direct. Under the Code of 1861, the minimum was five, and seven was the number fixed by the Local Government for juries in Bengal. The Code of 1872 reduced the minimum to three, and in 1873, with the concurrence of the Judges of the High Court, the number was fixed at five. We are aware of no reason for a further reduction. It is not stated that under the present rule service on juries is too frequent or irksome. On the other hand, we think that three, except on some special ground, is too small a number for a jury, and that if improper influences are attempted, they are more likely to be successful on the smaller number.

Age of Jurors.

36. We also find no sufficient grounds assigned for altering the limits of age of persons liable to serve as jurors, and we observe that this limit was fixed by the Code of 1861 and has remained unchanged until the present time.

Area of Selection of Jurors.

37. Under the Codes of 1861 and 1872, a jury list was prepared of "persons residing within 10 miles from the place where Sessions trials are held, or within such other distance as the Local Government may think fit to direct," but the Code of 1882, Section 319, made all persons between the prescribed ages liable to serve as jurors at any trial within the district within which they reside. We prefer that it should be left to the discretion of the Local Government as under previous legislation to determine, on consideration of the circumstances of each district, the area from which a juror should be selected, as districts vary in extent and in the means of travelling available.

Revision of Jury Lists.

38. We observe that attention has been directed to this subject, and that in the revisions recently made the lists have been considerably reduced by the exclusion of many unfit persons. There can be no doubt that much benefit will result from this, and strict attention should be enjoined to this important duty in the future.

We notice that in one district the recent revision of the list of jurors has resulted in the exclusion of the names of all Honorary Magistrates, that is to say, of a class of men who, for the very reasons for which they have been given Magisterial powers, are best fitted to serve as jurors. They are not liable to exemption under any of the provisions of section 320 of the Procedure Code; and we think that all Honorary Magistrates as such should be included in all lists of jurors in the districts in which they reside.

We would also invite attention to the large number of exemptions granted under clause (k) of section 320 of the Code. These include certain officers of the Eastern Bengal State Railway,* all Barristers practising in the Mofussil†, District and Assistant Superintendents of Traffic and Guards on the East Indian Railway,‡ and local Auditors on the Staff of Examiners of Local Accounts in Bengal§. The Chief Customs Authority or Chief Customs Officer is also exempted under section 10 of Act VIII of 1878, and he has power under that section to exempt from service as a juror any other officer of Customs whom he deems it necessary to exempt on grounds of public duty. We would suggest that the necessity of exempting such a large body of men, who primâ facie are well fitted to serve as jurors, should be carefully reconsidered. Such exemptions deprive the jury lists of some of the persons best fitted to serve, and further tend to take from the position of juror much of the dignity which should attach to it.

Accommodation for Jurors.

39. It has also been represented to us that sufficient attention is not paid to the convenience and comfort of those summoned as jurors, and that in consequence native gentlemen of recognised social position are reluctant to attend. The matter was dealt with by a Circular of the High Court, dated 9th August 1865, but it does not appear that adequate steps have been taken to give effect to the instructions regarding the accommodation for jurors.

Remuneration of Jurors.

40. On this point we are not unanimous and find some difficulty in making any recommendation. The question is one which more intimately concerns the native community, and our members who represent that community differ in opinion. The matter is of no great importance, and may be left for settlement by Government after inquiry such as we have not been able to make.

Seclusion of Jurors.

41. The question of the seclusion of jurors during the trial and up to the delivery of their verdict is one which was considered by the Local Government and by the High Court in 1867. It is sufficient for us to say that the High Court has power under section 296, Criminal Procedure Code, to make rules in this direction, that it has never seen its way to framing any such rules, and that we find ourselves equally unable to suggest any rules which would not be repugnant to the prejudices and customs of the native community in Bengal.

Right of Appeal.

42. We are aware that opinion in England is inclined to an appeal, but we are not aware with what restriction it would be allowed; we are, therefore, unable to determine how far any recommendation that we could make would be in accordance with the rule in England and also applicable to Bengal. It has been recommended on high authority that an appeal should be allowed in cases in which the verdict is not unanimous and where the Sessions Judge also disagrees, but does not consider it necessary to refer the case to the High Court. We are of opinion, however, that section 307 of the Criminal Procedure Code, with the alterations that we have suggested, will provide adequate protection against failures of justice.

43. It has been suggested to us that some provision should be made for a verbatim record of Sessions Judge's charge to the jury, but, in the opinion of the majority of us, none of the suggestions made on this point are practicable. Heads of charge to Jury, S. 367, C. P. C.

44. In dealing with all these matters, we have abstained from going beyond the strict terms of the reference made to us. We may mention that discussion of other matters has been invited, but we have, for the reasons stated, not taken them into consideration. We consider that the matters referred to us are defined by the two paragraphs of the Resolution of the Government of India dated the 23rd February 1893, set out in the commencement of this report, and that we are not authorized to travel beyond them.

We, the undersigned, accordingly report that, in our opinion, it is desirable that the classes of offences which, before the 20th October 1892, were triable by jury in the seven districts of Bengal abovementioned, should be triable by jury in those districts, and that the present classification should be amended accordingly.

We further report that, in our opinion, it is desirable, for the purpose of preventing miscarriage of justice, to amend section 307 of the Criminal Procedure Code by the substitution of the words "and is clearly of opinion that it is," for the words "so completely that he considers it," in the first paragraph of that section, and by the insertion in the third paragraph of the words "shall consider the entire evidence, giving due weight to the verdict of the jury and to the opinion of the Sessions Judge and of the dissentient jurors, if any and"; and that it is also desirable for the same purpose to make such further amendments in the Criminal Procedure Code as may be necessary to carry out our recommendations hereinbefore set forth as regards special jurors and the area from which jurors should be selected.

Note by Sir Romesh Chunder Mitter, Kt.

I. As regards the question whether Trial by Jury in the seven selected districts should be extended to the trial of other offences, I think it right to add that in my opinion there are many offences in the Indian Penal Code and other Acts which were not made triable by jury in 1862, but which may now with advantage be made so triable. Certain offences under the Penal Code were probably not originally made triable by jury because they were not exclusively triable by Courts of Session. But cases coming within this class are, by reason of their importance, frequently committed to Courts of Session for trial, and many of these should, in my opinion, be tried by jury in jury districts. There seems, for instance, no reason why offences under Chapter IX or Chapter XXII of the Code should not be triable by a Jury when committed to the Sessions, considering that offences against Public Justice are so triable. Similarly the offence of Defamation (Chapter XXI) seems to me to be an offence eminently fit for trial by a jury.

II. As regards offences under special Acts, I am of opinion that there are several which might conveniently be made triable by jury. For example, when in the course of proceedings under the Registration Act, a person is charged with using a forged document and making a false statement with reference to it, it is manifestly inconvenient that, as regards the charge of forgery under the Penal Code, he should be tried by a jury, while on the same facts as regards the charge under Section 82 of the Registration Act he should be tried by the Judge with the aid of Sessions. This anomaly could be avoided by making all offences in the Sessions Court in jury districts triable by jury except those which are specially mentioned by the Local Government.

III. It seems to me of the utmost importance that in cases tried by jury there should be an accurate record kept of the Judge's charge to the jury. At present though the law requires that the Sessions Judge should record the heads of his charge to the jury, it contains no provision as to when or how such record should be made. As a matter of practice I am informed Sessions Judges generally record from memory or their own notes the substance of the charge delivered orally, after the verdict has been taken. This course is open to many obvious objections and is likely to lead to unsatisfactory results. When an appeal has to be preferred to the High Court in a jury case, the appellant in appealing against an alleged misdirection of the Judge is sometimes forced to complain of the Judge's charge, not as it was probably laid before the jury, but as it has been recorded by the Judge after the verdict has been delivered. I am of opinion that the record should contain a strictly accurate report of the charge as delivered by the Judge to the jury.

IV. In my opinion there are two courses, the adoption of either of which would secure this end :—1st, it should be made obligatory upon the Judge to write out his summing up before he proceeds to charge the Jury. But this is a course which I am informed, though occasionally adopted by Judges in the Mofussil, is fraught with inconvenience and is likely to delay the trial. I am therefore disposed to recommend that a Bench Clerk should be attached to each Sessions Court whose duty it should be to take down in shorthand the Judge's charge as it is delivered and whose transcript of the charge, when signed by the presiding Judge, should form part of the record.

Note by Maharaja Sir Jotindro Mohun Tagore, Bahadur, K.C.S.I.

I sign the Report subject to the note recorded below.

I agree with my Colleague, Sir Romesh Chunder Mitter, Kt., in the opinions he has expressed in paragraphs 1 and 2 of his note appended to the Report, so far as they relate to the extension of trial by jury to other offences. I agree that all offences in the Sessions Court in jury districts should be made triable by jury save those which may be specifically excepted by the Local Government. Primâ facie I see no reason why a majority of the offences which now come before the Sessions Court, and which are comparatively of a less serious nature than those included in Chapters 8, 17, 18, etc., of the Indian Penal Code, should not also be made triable by jury, especially as some experienced Government officials have themselves recommended the extension of trial by jury to those offences. I also agree in the opinion expressed in paragraph 3 of the aforesaid note regarding the importance of keeping a full and accurate record of the Judge's charge to the jury, but I am not sure how far the means suggested by my learned Colleague in paragraph 4 of his note are likely to secure practically the object aimed at.

From—H. J. S. Cotton, Esq., C.S.I., Chief Secy. to the Government of Bengal,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

The Lieutenant-Governor has been furnished unofficially with a copy of the Report of the Jury Commission, and feels bound, in accordance with the recommendation of the Commission, to withdraw the notification of this Government, dated 20th October 1892, making certain alterations in the classes of cases which are triable by a Jury in the districts to which the Jury system has been extended, at once. His Honour would have taken action in this direction on his own authority, were it not that he had already referred the question to the Government of India and had acted under the authority of the Government of India in issuing the notification. He considers therefore that the notification should be withdrawn with the authority of His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, and awaits the receipt of orders to this effect.

No. 357, dated Calcutta, the 28th March 1893.

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

In reply to your letter No. 1523J., dated the 25th instant, I am directed to say that the Governor-General in Council authorizes the issue of a notification by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, under section 269 of the Criminal Procedure Code, withdrawing the notification of the 20th October 1892, by which certain changes were made in the classification of offences triable by Jury before the Courts of Session in the districts of the 24-Parganas, Hooghly, Burdwan, Murshidabad, Nadia, Patna, and Dacca, and restoring the classification of offences so triable in those districts which was in force prior to the issue of that notification.

RESOLUTION.

JUDICIAL.

Dated Calcutta, the 25th March 1893.

UNDER Rule II of the Regulations which have been framed by the Governor-General in Council with the sanction of the Secretary of State under section 1(1) of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, for Bengal, it has been laid down that the nomination to seven seats in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor for making Laws and Regulations shall be made by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the following bodies and associations respectively, viz.—

A.—The Corporation of Calcutta;

B.—Such Municipal Corporations or group or groups of Municipal Corporations other than the Corporation of Calcutta as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe by Notification in the Calcutta Gazette;

C.—Such District Boards, or group or groups of District Boards, as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

D.—Such Association or Associations of merchants, manufacturers or tradesmen as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe as aforesaid;

E.—The Senate of the University of Calcutta:

Provided that the bodies described above under A, B, C, D, and E, respectively, shall each (except as hereinafter provided in Rule VII) have at least one Councillor nominated upon its recommendation, and A, D, and E not more than one each.

With reference to the above proviso, it has been decided that District Municipalities and District Boards shall each be ordinarily represented by two members.

2. Under Rule V (c) of the same Regulations, it has been laid down that the recommendation of a person for nomination by the Lieutenant-Governor shall be made "in the case of a group of Municipal Corporations, District Boards, or Associations by the majority of votes of representatives to be appointed according to such scale as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time prescribe by the Corporations, Boards, or Associations."

3. The Corporation of Calcutta and the Senate of the University of Calcutta will now be asked by a separate communication to recommend a person for nomination by the Lieutenant-Governor. The votes of the Commissioners of the Corporation of Calcutta will be given at a meeting of the Commissioners. Those of the Fellows of the Senate will be given by voting papers to be delivered personally to the Registrar, or forwarded by post under certain conditions. The Bengal Chamber of Commerce are already represented on the Council by the Vice-President of their body, the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, and no steps can be taken under clause D of the Rule II above quoted until he resigns his appointment or the term of his office expires.

4. The following observations exclusively refer to the arrangements which will now be made regarding the nomination to the four seats which will be made by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of District Boards and of Mufassal Municipalities.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor has decided that both District Boards and Municipalities shall be grouped together separately division by division, and that the District Boards and Municipalities within each divisional area shall take it in turns to exercise the privilege which is now bestowed on them of recommending a person for nomination to the Council. It is proposed that this privilege should be exercised by the groups of Municipalities and District Boards in each Division according to rotation. The following is a sketch of the form which the rotation may probably assume: but the Lieutenant-Governor cannot bind himself or his successor as to the exact order in which the privilege will in future be exercised:—

Date of election.	Municipalities.	District Boards.
1893 ...	Presidency Division	... Patna Division.
	Rajshahi Division	... Chittagong Division.
1895 ...	Burdwan Division	... Dacca Division.
	Orissa Division, Chota Nagpur Division	... Bhagalpur Division.
1897 ...	Patna Division	... Presidency Division.
	Chittagong Division	... Rajshahi Division.
1899 ...	Dacca Division	... Burdwan Division.
	Bhagalpur Division	... Orissa Division.
1901 ...	Presidency Division	... Patna Division.
	Rajshahi Division	... Chittagong Division.

and so on.

The necessary notification will now be published in the Calcutta Gazette specifying the groups of District Boards and Municipalities in the Divisions from which a recommendation will be made to the Lieutenant-Governor for the nomination to four seats in Council in 1893.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to prescribe the following procedure under which each District Board and Municipality concerned shall, for the purpose of making its recommendation, proceed to elect from amongst its own members an electoral representative, who shall be entrusted with full powers to vote for a member to represent the group in Council.

7. In respect of Municipal Corporations, it has been determined that only those municipalities which enjoy a clear income from municipal resources proper of Rs. 5,000 and over shall exercise the right of electing an electoral representative. The voting power of each of these representatives will be calculated by the income of the municipalities concerned according to the following scale:—

	Votes.
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 5,000 and less than Rs. 10,000 will be entitled to	1
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 10,000 and less than Rs. 20,000 to	2
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 20,000 and less than Rs. 50,000 to	3
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 50,000 and less than Rs 1,00,000 to	4
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 1,00,000 and less than Rs. 1,50,000 to	5
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 1,50,000 and less than Rs. 2,00,000 to	6
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 2,00,000 and less than Rs. 2,50,000 to	7
Municipalities with an income of Rs. 2,50,000 and over to ...	8

Each Municipality will elect one electoral representative only, and this representative shall be entitled to exercise all the votes of the Municipality which he represents.

8. All districts are considered by the Government to be of approximately equal importance, and each District Board will appoint one representative having one vote.

9. According to the scales above laid down, the following Municipal Corporations and District Boards will now proceed to elect their electoral representatives as follows:—

10. Under Rule IV of the Regulations quoted, the Lieutenant-Governor now desires that intimation may be at once communicated by the Commissioners of the Divisions concerned to the Chairmen of all the Municipalities and District Boards enumerated in the above lists, requesting them to arrange without delay for the convention of a special meeting of each District Board and Municipality concerned at which one of their members may be elected to represent them for the purpose of recommending the nomination of a member in the Lieutenant-Governor's Council. The name of the electoral representative elected in each must be reported at once by the Chairman of the local body concerned for the information of the Commissioner of the Division.

11. The period of two months which is contemplated under Rule VII of the Regulations as the period within which a recommendation shall be made to the Lieutenant-Governor is hereby declared to run from the date on which the Commissioner of the Division issues his invitation to the Chairman of any Municipality or District Board within the group concerned to elect one of their members to represent them for the purpose of recommending the nomination of a member in the Lieutenant-Governor's Council.

12. As soon as the electoral representatives are elected by the local bodies concerned, they will be called upon by the Commissioner of the Division to meet together on an early and convenient date with special reference to the limit of time imposed under rule VII of the Regulations, and at such convenient place as he may specify, for the purpose of electing by a majority of votes a person whom they will recommend to the Lieutenant-Governor to be nominated as a member of the Council. The names of all candidates put forward at such meeting shall be duly proposed by one of the electoral representatives present. The election shall be by ballot, and the person elected must obtain a majority of the votes of the representatives present. If on occasion of the first ballot an absolute majority is not obtained, the candidate who obtains the least number of votes shall be withdrawn from the election, and another ballot shall then be held for the remaining candidates, and so on until an absolute majority is obtained.

The electoral representatives present at this meeting shall elect among themselves a Chairman, who shall preside and be responsible for the fair and proper exercise of the ballot vote.

As soon as the election is made, the Chairman of the meeting shall without delay report to the Commissioner of the Division the name of the person so elected with the number of votes obtained and any other information which it may appear desirable to communicate, and on behalf of the meeting shall recommend to the Lieutenant-Governor to nominate for Council the person so elected. The Commissioner shall submit the report from the Chairman of the meeting, with any observations he may wish to add, to the Chief Secretary to Government, by whom the recommendations will be submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor.

13. Attention is drawn to the following Rule VI of the Regulations which have been framed by the Governor-General in Council and Secretary of State:—

VI.—It shall be a condition in the case of any person to be recommended by a Municipal Corporation or group of Municipal Corporations that he shall be a person ordinarily resident within the Municipality or the district in which it is situated, or in some one of the municipalities constituting the group or of the districts in which they are situated. A similar condition shall also apply to persons to be recommended by District Boards.

Under this rule it is not necessary that persons recommended shall be members of any Municipality or District Board concerned, but they must be ordinarily resident within the division from which the recommendation is made. Subject to this condition, the rules declare no limit of qualification, and it is left to the electoral representatives to recommend a person under Rule V(c) according to the majority of their votes.

14. The Lieutenant-Governor is anxious to ensure the success of the operation of the new rules, and with this object has been careful to provide that all the subsidiary arrangements now sanctioned shall, as far as possible, be given effect to by the local bodies concerned with the minimum of official interference. He is confident, however, that District Magistrates will afford any assistance that may be required and do their utmost to facilitate the smooth working of the elections. The experiment now being tried is one of considerable importance, and the arrangements made are necessarily of an experimental character, and will be reconsidered if experience shows that they require modification.

ORDERED that a copy of this Resolution be furnished to all Commissioners for information and guidance and for communication to all the District Boards and Municipalities in their Divisions.

Ordered also that a copy be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered also that a copy be submitted with a covering letter to the Government of India for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H J. S. COTTON,

Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO REPORT ON THE MEDICAL NEEDS OF CALCUTTA.

RESOLUTION.

No. 1134Med.

READ—

Report on the Calcutta Medical Institutions for 1891.

RESOLUTION.—The question of providing suitable and sufficient accommodation for the gratuitous treatment of the sick-poor in Calcutta, whether as out-door or in-door patients, is one which has for many years engaged the attention of the Government of Bengal, while it has more lately attracted the notice of the Government of India who in July last intimated their opinion that the existing provision for the medical relief of the poorer inhabitants of Calcutta was still inadequate.

2. The Northern and Central portion of the city are fortunate in possessing a large number of excellent medical institutions, and their usefulness has frequently been acknowledged; but even in this part of the town there is a large tract in the north-east, where no public hospital or dispensary exists. On the other hand, with the exception of the Presidency General Hospital, which does not admit native cases, and the Military Hospitals, European and Native, which are necessarily exclusive, there is no institution south of Government House which provides accommodation for in-door patients. Dispensaries exist, it is true, for the out-door relief of the sick which are supported either by Government, the Municipality, or private benevolence, but useful and beneficent as their operations are, they cannot supply the place of a hospital for the treatment of the sick in the large area which lies south and east of the Calcutta Maidan.

3. In these circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor has decided that a small Committee should be formed to consider and report upon the whole subject, and he is pleased to nominate as members the Hon'ble J. Lambert, C.I.E., and Surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel A. Cronbie with Surgeon Colonel J. G. Pilcher, Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, as their President, with power to add to their number. It will be the duty of these gentlemen to submit with as little delay as possible a report with a map showing what accommodation now exists, and what additional accommodation they consider to be necessary both for out-door and in-door patients. They should lay down what is in their opinion the maximum distance within which each resident of the town should be able to find medical relief, and they should indicate what parts of the city do not satisfy this principle, and where, therefore, new dispensaries or hospitals are required. They should also, after looking to the population which an institution so situated will serve, frame an estimate of the number of beds to be provided in each for the accommodation of males and females, but the question of cost of construction, or the source from which the funds for maintaining the institution should be drawn, need not be considered by them at the present stage. When this report has been received, the Lieutenant-Governor will be in a position to decide whether, and to what extent, an urgent need exists for more dispensaries or hospitals in the metropolis of Bengal.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. A. BOURDILLON,

Offg. Secy. to the Government of Bengal.

Explanation,—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 28th March 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 25TH OF MARCH 1893.

DURING the previous week a continuous and rather rapid fall of pressure had occurred, and the distribution had completely changed from what it had previously been, and at the close of the week pressure was low over the western and north-western parts of the province, and comparatively high in South-East Bengal, and on the whole the distribution resembled that which usually obtains in the hot weather months. On the 19th pressure had risen slowly at the western stations, and fallen over the remainder of the province, but generally over Northern India the pressure changes were irregular, and a feeble area of low pressure existed in North-West India near the hills. This pointed to the existence of rather disturbed conditions over the whole of Northern India, and on this day a number of local hot weather storms or nor'-westers occurred in all districts of Bengal except Orissa, the rainfall from which was rather heavy, and was reported on the morning of the 20th. From the 19th to the 20th pressure began to fall at all except a few of the south-eastern stations, the fall being brisk in Bihar, while at the same time a barometric depression had appeared in Chota Nagpur, South Bihar and the neighbouring districts of the North-West Provinces. Again, therefore, conditions continued disturbed, and numerous local storms occurred in Bengal, and on the morning of 21st the majority of stations, except in Orissa and parts of Bihar, reported rain. On the 21st the low pressure area had apparently advanced slowly in an easterly direction, and a very shallow depression covered the western half of the province. Hence again conditions remained very disturbed in Bengal; local storms continued numerous, and a large number of stations reported rainfall on the 22nd. From the 21st to the 22nd the shallow depression had again advanced in an easterly direction, partially filling up in its advance, and two feeble residual low pressure areas existed, one in Orissa and one in North Bengal and Assam. The disturbed conditions therefore still existed in Bengal, and numerous local storms occurred, and on the morning of the 23rd rainfall was again reported in Orissa, South-West Bengal and East Bengal, though the remainder of the province had become almost rainless. On the morning of the 23rd, however, a rather rapid increase of pressure had taken place over the whole province, and the residual low pressure areas, which had existed on the 22nd, had disappeared, though the actual pressure recorded over the province was still in moderate defect of the normal. With the disappearance of the actual depressions, however, weather immediately began to improve, the sky rapidly cleared, a dry north-westerly and westerly wind current set in over the whole province, and rainfall entirely ceased. A further moderate increase of pressure took place on the 24th, which made pressure in excess of the normal of the day at almost all stations, while again on the 25th a further moderate increase of pressure took place, and it became in excess of the normal by amounts ranging up to nearly a tenth of an inch in the west of Bihar, and pressure became very uniform over the whole province, while over the greater part of Bengal a dry westerly wind current was blowing. The first half of the week was therefore stormy and wet with rather heavily clouded skies, and the second half fine and dry and with almost cloudless skies, but throughout the week temperature has again been much below the normal for the period.

Pressure—Has been very decidedly low for a considerable part of the week, and hence the mean pressure has been in distinct defect of the normal. This defect has usually equalled from 0·05″ to 0·07,″ and it has been fairly uniform over the whole province.

Temperature.—Owing to the rather heavy rainfall in the first half of the week and to the cool dry north-westerly and westerly wind which was blowing for the last three days of the week, temperature has again been largely in defect of the normal. Indeed on the morning of the 25th the mean temperature reported was from about 8° to 11° below the normal of the day. Hence for the whole week the mean temperature has been in defect of the normal, the defect equalling about 5°, while in South Bihar and Chota Nagpur it has equalled 6°.

The distribution of temperature for the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. The defect during the week, it will again be seen, has been considerably larger in the day than in the night temperatures :—

Table showing the excess or defect of the actual mean temperature from the normal for the week ending 25th March 1893.

Rainfall.—The rainfall during the week has again been heavy. It has averaged nearly three inches in East Bengal, one inch and-a-half in South-West Bengal, about one inch in Orissa and North Bengal, about half an inch in Chota Nagpur and South Bihar, and only a quarter of an inch in North Bihar. In all divisions of the province, however, the falls have been rather largely in excess of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 25th of March 1893 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; t, thunder; ≤, lightning; /, strong wind; ⛅, dew; p, passing temporary showers; d, drizzling rain.

N.B.—In the weekly report from 5th to 11th March 1893 read "66·0" for "6·60" as the mean wet bulb of the 10th March 1893.

Tide signals.

The Portmaster, Brisbane, has given notice (No. 6 of 1893) that vessels arriving at the fairway off the bar to Cairns harbour may have the depth of water available signalled to them at night if they have advised Cairns of the probable time of arrival.

Signals are made with the front leading light as follows, viz:—

The light will be obscured one minute to draw attention, then the number of flashes made at 5-second intervals denotes the number of feet over 10 feet, e.g., two flashes at 5-second intervals denote 12 feet, three flashes 13 feet, and so on. Odd inches are denoted by the number of flashes in quick succession.

The signals will be repeated until answered by a flare light from the vessel.

Flood tide is denoted by a red light shown from the platform of the outer leading light.
